

A WARRIOR UNDEFEATABLE

/ A Man Like None Other

Chapter 4401

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4401 – “What should we do, Mr. Chance?” Judith asked, turning to Jared.

After all, they didn’t have that many spiritual stones to spare.

Even if the entire Castenada Town were to pool their money, it was doubtful that they could gather that much at that point since practically all of their resources had been expended to treat Owen.

“I’ll go and make some enquiries.” Jared then headed toward the woman.

Although he didn’t have any spiritual stones on him, he had purple spirit coins. They could be used as money, not to mention a cultivation resource.

“Excuse me, miss, but I don’t have that many spiritual stones on me. Would it be possible for me to substitute them with purple spirit coins instead?” Jared asked.

“Of course.” Having said that, the woman held her hand out at him.

Jared simply returned her the purple spirit coins she gave him.

Holding the purple spirit coins in hand, the woman gave a slight smile. “You may enter now. I gave you these purple spirit coins so that you’d have an opportunity to go in since one of my men was rude to you just now.”

Jared was taken aback. Subsequently, he chuckled wryly and asked, “Why bother going to the trouble of giving me the purple spirit coins, then? You could have just let me in for free.”

“That won’t do. This is the rule, and it can’t be broken.”

The woman shook her head.

Jared couldn’t help but laugh. He found her rather endearing, charming in her stubbornness.

“What about my two friends?”

He pointed at Cloud and Judith.

“It’s the same for all. A hundred thousand spiritual stones or the equivalent amount in purple spirit coins,” the woman answered.

“Alright, then. Hopefully, this trip to the Celestial Battlefield will earn me back the cost of the tickets.”

Chuckling, Jared casually took out two bags of purple spirit coins from his Storage Ring.

At the sight of him nonchalantly taking out two bags of purple spiritual coins, the woman’s expression noticeably faltered for a moment.

After all, someone who could casually produce such a large amount of purple spirit coins was certainly far from ordinary. There was even a good chance that he had a powerful force backing him up.

The woman took the purple spiritual coins before asking, “May I know your name, sir?”

“Jared Chance,” Jared replied, announcing his name candidly.

Since he then knew that she wasn’t from Demon Seal Alliance, he saw no need to hide his identity anymore.

Sure enough, there was no change in the woman’s expression at the mention of his name. It seemed that she didn’t know him, let alone the fact that Demon Seal Alliance was hunting him down with a hundred-year offering as a reward.

Following that, a wave of relief finally washed over Jared. She’s not a member of Demon Seal Alliance and knows nothing about me. With that, I’m much safer in the Celestial Battlefield!

“I’m Catalina Lantz, but everyone calls me Lina.”

The woman, Catalina Lantz, also introduced herself to Jared.

“Miss-”

Rightblind wanted to caution her about something or other, but a glare from her silenced him, making him swallow the words right on the tip of his tongue.

“Until we meet again, Ms. Lantz. See you in the Celestial Battlefield.”

After-Jared had said that, he made to lead Cloud and Judith into the mouth of the cave.

But no sooner had he turned around than Catalina suddenly cried out to him, “Wait a moment!”

“Is something else the matter, Ms. Lantz?” Jared asked, looking at her in surprise.

“You said the Celestial Battlefield just now?”

How do you know that it isn’t ancient ruins here but the Celestial Battlefield?”

It was only then that Catalina realized as much.

Everyone had mistaken the place to be ancient ruins, with only Jared calling it the Celestial Battlefield.

“That’s easy. The aura of this Celestial Battlefield is already leaking out, so I naturally know. Moreover, this isn’t the first one I’ve entered, so I can sense it!”

With that said, Jared turned around and walked into the mouth of the cave with Cloud and Judith, paying no further attention to her.

Catalina stared at Jared’s retreating figure, her expression turning solemn.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4402 – “Ms. Lantz, something seems off about this brat. He’s clearly a Seventh Level Tribulator, but the aura he exudes doesn’t match his cultivation level. When Leftblind made his move just now, any average Seventh Level Tribulator would have been scared witless. However, this guy not only showed no fear, but he even managed to activate his protective skill instantly. Moreover, he casually produced such a large amount of purple spirit coins earlier, so he’s obviously no ordinary cultivator. Ms. Lantz, I urge you to be cautious of this brat,” Rightblind reminded in a hushed tone.

Catalina rolled her eyes at Rightblind and said in an exasperated tone, “Am I blind? Can’t I see for myself? Do I need your reminder?”

Upon seeing the situation, Rightblind was so frightened that he dared not speak anymore.

The reason why Catalina had a poor attitude toward Leftblind and Rightblind was because they had previously spied on her.

Although they didn’t actually see anything, Catalina continued to dwell on that matter.

Leftblind and Rightblind had paid the price of an eye each for what they did. However, that turned out to be a blessing in disguise as they were taken under the wing of Catalina’s father, which saved them from being hunted down.

After all, many years ago, Demonic Cultivators were scorned by all.

This time, Catalina’s father had assigned Rightblind and Leftblind to accompany her in an attempt to improve their relationship.

“Rightblind, I was merely toying earlier. I didn’t even use my full strength. Don’t overpraise that brat. If I had given it my all, he would have been done for a long time ago,” Leftblind snapped in displeasure.

After all, Rightblind’s words were meant to belittle Leftblind. Naturally, the latter was not pleased.

“Forget it. Even if you gave it your all, I doubt you could harm that brat. Didn’t you see the sudden activation of his protective skill? His entire body was covered in golden scales. That is definitely not a common cultivation technique. Also, that girl is actually a disciple of Ten Thousand Sword Sect. You should know that those guys from Ten Thousand Sword Sect are all about reputation and prestige.

They're extremely discerning. How could they possibly let themselves be a mere sidekick? The girl is obviously that brat's sidekick, but the brat isn't a disciple of Ten Thousand Sword Sect. This implies that the forces backing this brat are undoubtedly significant. Even the likes of Ten Thousand Sword Sect have to bow down to him," Rightblind analyzed.

Rightblind was quite intelligent, much wiser than the simple-minded Leftblind.

"I won't discuss this further with you. Once we enter the Celestial Battlefield and I come across that brat, I'll interrogate him thoroughly. I'm curious to see just how powerful he really is." Leftblind knew he couldn't out-argue Rightblind, so he averted his gaze and fell silent.

"Don't even think about stepping foot into the Celestial Battlefield. If a conflict breaks out there, who do you think will clean up your mess?" Catalina glanced at Leftblind, then continued, "You stay here with your men. Don't let anyone in who hasn't handed over the spiritual stone. If anyone dares to intrude, don't hold back. But remember one thing, never harm others' lives without reason. If my father learns of it, there will surely be punishment. Don't you dare breathe a word about today's incident to my father. He's become such a soft-hearted saint lately that he can no longer attain any success," Catalina warned everyone around her.

Everything that happened that day was clearly orchestrated by her alone. Her father was completely unaware.

"Ms. Lantz, you can rest assured. We'll never spill the beans," Rightblind hastily said.

This was a golden opportunity for him to curry favor with Catalina, and he certainly wasn't going to miss it. Moreover, Catalina was going to bring him into the Celestial Battlefield, not Leftblind.

"Ms. Lantz, although I may be impulsive, I still know what should be said and what shouldn't."

Leftblind also made his stance clear.

After all, he had just taken a life not long ago. If word got out, he'd surely face punishment.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4403 – As for those several sword-bearing cultivators, Catalina didn't even spare them a glance. She knew they wouldn't dare to utter a word out of line. Those were her death warriors. Even if Catalina asked them to die, they would not hesitate to comply.

Hence, there was absolutely no need for her to remind them to be discreet.

Catalina entered the Celestial Battlefield with Rightblind, while Leftblind could only lead the others in guarding the cave's entrance.

Even though he was extremely annoyed, there was nothing he could do about it.

Although he was a Demonic Cultivator, he still understood the importance of repaying favor.

Meanwhile, at Quinlan Town, Gatlin, accompanied by Seth, was meeting with Keegan, the town mayor.

When confronted with the representatives from Demon Seal Alliance, Keegan showed exceptional respect. After all, he needed their assistance if he was to avenge his son.

"Mr. Keegan, since the Quinlan family has already joined Demon Seal Alliance, we're practically family now. There's no need to beat around the bush anymore. Lead us directly to Castenada Town. We'll annihilate the town and apprehend that Jared to avenge your son.

However, our hasty arrival took quite a toll on us, draining much of our spiritual energy. We need to take a moment to regain our strength," Gatlin said to Keegan.

Gatlin's implication was clear. He was expecting Keegan to provide resources. After all, replenishing one's energy wasn't something that could be achieved with mere words. It required resources.

Keegan was momentarily taken aback but quickly snapped back to his senses and said, "Of course. Since you all came to help me, I couldn't possibly let you go hungry. I'll give the order at once for my men to gather Quinlan Town's resources to provide for all of you. However, due to the desolation of the eastern region, resources are not abundant. I hope you all won't find it unsatisfactory."

"Of course not. Rest assured, Mr. Keegan. There's no way we'd do that." Gatlin was overjoyed to see Keegan being so cooperative.

Just then, a gust of wind swept through, followed by the emergence of a dark figure in the hall.

Keegan instantly became tense. He hadn't expected someone to barge into his living room so casually.

Upon seeing the situation, Gatlin quickly explained, "Mr. Keegan, there's no need to be nervous. This is just one of my disciples."

Upon hearing that, Keegan immediately breathed a sigh of relief. If this were an enemy who could enter and exit his room so easily, what security could he possibly have?

"Ruth, didn't I send you to investigate the place of the unusual phenomenon? How come you returned so swiftly?" Gatlin asked.

"Mr. Gatlin, I ran into Jared on my way here. We had a bit of a skirmish. Surprisingly, the brat's got some skills. Plus, they had the advantage in numbers. To avoid any losses, I made a hasty retreat," Ruth reported truthfully.

"Jared?" Upon hearing this name, Keegan was instantly enraged. He then abruptly knelt before Gatlin. "I beg you to swiftly eliminate Jared and avenge my son, Mr. Gatlin. As for the matter of resources, I'm willing to offer everything Quinlan Town can provide."

Gatlin helped Keegan up with a gentle lift of his palm. "Mr. Keegan, there's no need to rush. Let me get things straight first. Right now, you and I are on the same side. You don't have to say anything more regarding doing away with Jared."

After speaking, Gatlin turned to Ruth and asked, "Ruth, can you explain in detail what happened?"

Subsequently, Ruth thoroughly explained the entire situation to Gatlin.

Gatlin slightly furrowed his brows. "It seems that this Jared is also heading toward that place of unusual phenomenon. I reckon there must be something extraordinary there."

After-Keegan, who was standing on the side, heard all this, his expression shifted.

The Quinlan family had been searching for an entrance to the ancient ruins atop Mount Gonagles for a hundred years without success. Now, they finally had a clue, but the unusual phenomenon unexpectedly attracted so many people.

Even if they managed to find the entrance, Keegan reckoned the Quinlan family would have nothing to do with the ancient ruins anymore.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4404 – “Mr. Keegan, do you know exactly what kind of a place the unusual phenomenon that’s taking place is?” Gatlin asked.

“I-I...” Keegan was at a loss for words.

He wasn’t sure if he should reveal matters related to the ancient ruins to Gatlin.

Just as Keegan was stammering, unsure how to respond, a cultivator from the Quinlan family suddenly rushed in hurriedly. “Mr. Keegan, we’ve got a problem. The entrance to the ancient ruins on Mount Gonagles has been discovered and opened. Jared is also involved.”

The cultivator was drenched in sweat, seemingly having raced back to deliver the news.

Keegan had intended to stop him from speaking, but it was simply too late.

Gatlin slightly furrowed his brows and said, “Mr. Keegan, what’s going on? And what’s the deal with that ancient ruins?”

“Mr. Gatlin, rumors abound of another world existing within Mount Gonagles, which is said to house an ancient ruin. This is recorded within the Quinlan family’s ancient records. However, we’ve been unable to locate the entrance to the ancient ruins for nearly a century. The frequent occurrence of this unusual phenomenon must be related to that ancient ruin. Now that the entrance to the ancient ruins has been discovered and even opened by someone, I’m sure there must be plenty of treasures inside.” Keegan had no choice but to tell the truth.

Gatlin’s eyes instantly lit up with excitement after he heard that.

“Mr. Keegan, where are those ancient records? Bring them here so I can thoroughly examine them,” Gatlin demanded.

“Mr. Gatlin, the ancient ruins have been discovered and opened by now. While you’re engrossed in those ancient records, I’m afraid all the good stuff might have been snatched away,” Seth uttered urgently.

“Exactly. Mr. Gatlin, we must set off as soon as possible. Plus, Jared is also there. It’s perfect since we can capture him at the same time,” Ruth urged as well.

“Ruth, Seth, you two head to that ancient ruins first. With your combined strength, capturing Jared should be no problem at all. However, try your best to avoid conflicts with others and restrain yourselves. The sudden occurrence of this unusual phenomenon and the appearance of the entrance are far from simple. I have to investigate to ensure it’s not a trap.” Gatlin was extremely cautious.

He feared that the unusual phenomenon’s sudden occurrence was a setup for them.

After all, it seemed too much of a coincidence that such an event occurred as soon as they arrived.

Upon hearing that, Ruth immediately exclaimed with joy, “All right. We’ll go ahead and scout the area, and while we’re at it, we’ll nab that Jared.” Without Mr. Gatlin around, the two of us can do as we please, and we are no longer subject to any restrictions. With our combined strength, we’re virtually unbeatable in the eastern region. We’re almost peerless! If I could really find some treasures in the ancient ruins and even keep some for myself, wouldn’t that be absolutely thrilling?

Gatlin saw through Ruth’s intentions at a glance, but he didn’t call him out on it. Instead, he turned to Seth and said, “Seth, you need to gauge things better. Don’t be too reckless.”

“Rest assured, Mr. Gatlin.” Seth nodded.

After bidding farewell, Seth and Ruth headed toward Mount Gonagles. The two moved so quickly that they disappeared in a flash.

At that moment, at the entrance of the Celestial Battlefield on Mount Gonagles, Leftblind was idly sitting on a large rock, munching on popcorn.

A long sword lay by his side. In front of him were over a dozen corpses. Those were the people who had refused to pay spiritual stone and had attempted to force their way in.

With Catalina’s restraints gone, Leftblind let loose, embarking on a killing spree since no one would dare to speak of that day’s events.

As Leftblind casually snacked on his popcorn, two illusory shadows suddenly approached swiftly. They brought about an invisible wave of aura that struck like a tidal wave..

That was because the speed of the two was incredibly fast, resulting in a shockwave. Under this shockwave, the rocks on the mountain shattered one after another.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4405 – Leftblind furrowed his brow. With a casual wave of his large hand, he shattered the oncoming shockwave effortlessly.

The two fleeting figures were none other than Seth and Ruth, who were rapidly approaching.

After they reached the cave entrance, they fell from-mid-air.

Leftblind had risen to his feet with his sword in hand, his gaze fixed intently on his adversaries.

At that moment, Leftblind no longer wore a relaxed expression. After all, Seth and Ruth were not to be underestimated.

Both of them were Ultimate Realm Level Two cultivators.

Such strength was not commonly seen in the eastern region. What was more, the two were also Demonic Cultivators like Leftblind.

For a Demonic Cultivator to attain such a cultivation level was certainly no easy feat.

After all, the survival space for Demonic Cultivators in Ethereal Realm was extremely limited. The resources they could acquire were scant, so reaching Ultimate Realm in their cultivation was undoubtedly an arduous journey.

Upon seeing Leftblind, Ruth and Seth were slightly taken aback. They hadn't expected to encounter a fellow Demonic Cultivator.

Moreover, the aura emanating from Leftblind was utterly terrifying. They were simply unable to discern the extent of the latter's capabilities.

Seth respectfully nodded to Leftblind as a greeting before he proceeded to lead Ruth into the cave.

However, Leftblind raised his hand, stopping the two individuals in their tracks.

"Fellow cultivator, may I ask why you've stopped us? Is there something you need?" Seth asked.

"If you want to enter, each person needs to pay a hundred thousand spiritual stones," Leftblind said.

"A hundred thousand spiritual stones?" Seth and Ruth were instantly taken aback.

They were all at the mercy of others, serving as lackeys to Demon Seal Alliance. Hence, there was no way they could have a hundred thousand spiritual stones.

“Who are you? Is this cave yours? Why should I give you the spiritual stones?” Ruth asked discontentedly.

“Regardless of whether this cave belongs to me, you must pay if I ask you to. Otherwise, don’t even think about getting in.” Leftblind maintained an unyielding stance.

Ruth’s brow furrowed, and his hand instantly gripped his blood-red sword. This old geezer is way too outrageous. Isn’t this just like highway robbery?

Upon seeing the situation, Seth quickly tapped Ruth’s arm, then turned to Leftblind with a full-faced grin. “Fellow cultivator, when we venture out, it’s impossible for us to carry that many spiritual stones. Besides, considering we’re both Demonic Cultivators, how about you consider letting the two of us in?”

“No. This is the rule, and it can’t be broken,” Leftblind replied.

If even Catalina weren’t exempted from the rule, Leftblind certainly wouldn’t allow anyone else to break it.

“F*ck! You old geezer. Are you letting us in or not? Just so you know, we’re from Demon Seal Alliance. Old geezer, if you don’t behave, we’ll send you to Demon Seal Alliance and let you suffer a life worse than death!” Upon seeing Leftblind’s disregard, Ruth was instantly filled with anger.

He brought up Demon Seal Alliance since many Demonic Cultivators feared it. Demon Seal Alliance was, after all, an organization specifically established to deal with Demonic Cultivators.

The moment Ruth mentioned Demon Seal Alliance, Leftblind’s anger surged instantly.

“F*ck, so you’re just lackeys of Demon Seal Alliance. You’re a disgrace to our kind. Pfft!” Leftblind surprisingly spat fiercely in the direction of Seth and Ruth.

“F*ck you!” Ruth was instantly enraged.

In a flash, he drew his blood-red sword and lunged directly at Leftblind.

His temperament wouldn't allow for such humiliation from others.

Leftblind was also incensed. Seeing that Ruth dared to lay a hand on him, he was immediately filled with rage. With a swift motion, he slashed his long sword, causing a burst of sword light to explode in front of him.

Upon seeing the situation, the several sword-bearing cultivators immediately drew their long blades, encircling Seth.

Although their abilities paled in comparison to Seth's, those few sword-wielding cultivators didn't show the slightest hint of fear, their faces devoid of any expression.

Seth watched the few sword-bearing cultivators, sensing something was off. Clearly, the state those cultivators were in was far from ordinary. He doubted that a typical sect could cultivate such individuals.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4406 – “We were just passing through and had no intention of getting involved, folks!”

Seth knew better than to stir up trouble with other factions. After all, Gatlin had made that explicitly clear.

Neither Seth nor the sword-bearing cultivators made a move.

But Leftblind had already engaged Ruth in a fight.

Both of them had fiery tempers, and they clashed instantly.

Rumble...

With a deafening roar, countless beams of sword light collided, forcing Ruth to stagger backward.

After being pushed back, Ruth stared in shock at Leftblind, his brows slightly furrowed as he muttered, “You geezer, you’ve actually got some skills...”

It was clear that Ruth was no match for Leftblind.

But Ruth wasn't backing down because he knew Seth was there. Together, they were sure Leftblind would be no match for them. Seth wouldn't just stand there and watch him get beaten.

Ruth didn't even bat an eyelid at the sword-bearing cultivators. After all, they were only Tribulator cultivators.

However, Ruth's assumption was completely wrong. They were the most terrifying of all.

They were completely unafraid of death, devoid of emotions, with only loyalty remaining.

"You lackeys of the Demon Seal Alliance, I'm going to break your legs today!"

With that, Leftblind launched another attack on Ruth.

While fending off the blows, Ruth shouted toward Seth, "Seth, aren't you going to help? You're just going to stand there and watch me get killed?"

Seth furrowed his brows slightly and glanced at the surrounding sword-bearing cultivators. Then, gritting his teeth, he leaped into the air.

If he didn't help Ruth, Ruth would surely face defeat.

Just as Seth made his daring leap, several sword-bearing cultivators also sprang into action.

"Don't interfere, all of you. Today, I'm taking on these two lackeys from the Demon Seal Alliance myself!"

Leftblind stopped the sword-bearing cultivators from helping.

Upon his command, they instantly halted, quietly observing from the sidelines.

Seth and Ruth attacked Leftblind from either side.

It was two against one, and Leftblind was clearly at a disadvantage. He was forced to retreat repeatedly as beams of sword light struck him.

"You two runts, you've got some nerve. But guess what? I'm not scared!"

Although at a disadvantage, Leftblind didn't back down. His longsword radiated a chilling white light as he struck at Ruth and Seth.

Upon witnessing Leftblind's obvious disadvantage, yet still daring to launch an attack, Ruth and Seth furrowed their brows in surprise.

They had come to apprehend Jared and investigate the ancient ruin incident. Little did they know they would run into a relentless old lunatic.

Ruth and Seth, both seething with anger, were soon thrown into a chaotic fight with him.

The void trembled, sword light soared, and dazzling beams of sword glint shrouded the entire sky above Mount Gonagles.

Although Leftblind was incredibly powerful, he was, after all, fighting against two opponents. Over time, it became clear he couldn't hold out much longer.

"How shameless can you get, ganging up on an old man like me?"

Even though Leftblind was at a disadvantage, he didn't hold back with his sharp tongue.

"You old geezer! Weren't you the one bragging about taking both of us on by yourself? And now you're whining about being ganged up on?"

Ruth sneered mockingly at Leftblind.

"I don't want to fight like this anymore!"

declared Leftblind, his voice laden with frustration. He turned to the sword-bearing cultivators standing nearby and commanded, "Don't just stand there, attack! We must take these two brats down!"

At his command, several sword-bearing cultivators leaped into action, swiftly moving to surround Ruth and Seth.

"Geezer, they're just a few Tribulator cultivators. Are you sending them to their deaths?" Ruth scoffed, not the least bit afraid of those sword-bearing cultivators.

Leftblind smirked. "Ignorant brat, you'll soon learn just how powerful these Tribulator cultivators are."

With that, he swung his sword and charged forward, and the sword-bearing cultivators followed suit.

Ruth's expression changed. He realized that the attack from the cultivators was incredibly well-coordinated, and the power they unleashed was every bit as formidable as those of Ultimate Realm.

The chaos of battle erupted once again.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4407 – Within the Celestial Battlefield, Jared, along with Cloud and Judith, found themselves in a desolate place.

Judith gazed at the scene before her, her face filled with astonishment.

This was her first time seeing such a place. She had traveled the entire eastern region, but this area clearly didn't belong to any part of it.

Jared and Cloud, on the other hand, remained calm. They had both been to the Celestial Battlefield before, so they were well acquainted with its nature. Nothing here surprised them.

“The Celestial Battlefield seems incredibly desolate. It’s even more barren than the eastern region. Could there possibly be any magical item here?” Judith asked in confusion.

“Whether there are magical items or not, nobody knows. It’s all up to luck. We might not find anything and could end up losing our lives here,” Jared said nonchalantly.

“Huh?” Judith was taken aback. “Could there be danger here?”

“You don’t need to worry too much. It’s usually safe.”

After Jared finished speaking, he walked straight ahead without hesitation.

Cloud and Judith followed behind, stepping across the barren land and leaving a trail of footprints.

Clearly, no one had been here before. Those who had initially entered the cave were probably sent to other parts of the Celestial Battlefield.

After all, teleportation into the Celestial Battlefield from the entrance was entirely random.

Jared activated his spiritual sense, hoping to probe his surroundings and see if anyone had entered before him.

Just as his spiritual sense expanded, a mysterious force suddenly shattered it, leaving him feeling dizzy.

His expression changed drastically. His face was filled with disbelief.

He was well aware of the strength of his own spiritual sense, yet it had been shattered so effortlessly.

“Such restraining power, this Celestial Battlefield seems far from simple,” Vermilion Demon Lord commented.

Even within Jared’s consciousness, he had felt the immense power of the unknown force.

After a moment, Jared's mind gradually cleared. Looking out over the vast, desolate landscape, he began to question whether entering the Celestial Battlefield so recklessly had been the right decision.

Right then, the sound of footsteps echoed from nearby. Catalina and Rightblind slowly approached.

Seeing Jared's condition, Catalina smiled faintly and asked, "Did you activate your spiritual sense and get attacked?"

Jared was momentarily taken aback, but he remained silent.

"There are restrictions in this place. It's impossible to use spiritual sense to probe, let alone unleash any spiritual energy. Even the thought of flying through the sky is out of the question," Catalina said to Jared.

Upon hearing this, Jared immediately tried to channel his spiritual energy, only to discover that it was indeed being suppressed.

He quickly summoned every other force at his disposal—the Power of Dragons, nascent power, and even the Power of Three. Yet, all of them were firmly suppressed, and he couldn't unleash even a fraction of his potential.

Jared's expression darkened significantly. If danger arose now, he would be like a lamb waiting for slaughter.

"How is this possible? How do you know about these restrictions in the Celestial Battlefield?"

Jared didn't understand. This was Catalina's first time in the Celestial Battlefield, yet she seemed to know so much about it.

"I've just heard about it," Catalina replied with a slight smile. But Jared didn't believe her.

She simply didn't want to say more. Since she didn't want to talk, Jared didn't press the matter.

"Once you enter the Celestial Battlefield, everyone becomes ordinary. You're forced to rely on your most primal strength, making this place incredibly brutal. Out there, you might have been top-notch, but here, you're just an ordinary person. Be careful not to run into any danger," Catalina reminded.

Jared took a deep breath, slowly calming himself. After all, his physical body was quite exceptional. Even relying purely on his physical strength, he had no fear of anyone.

Moreover, he had Sacred Light Fist—a technique he could execute with just his physical strength without any need for magical power.

For Jared, this restriction might actually turn out to be a blessing in disguise.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4408 – During their conversation, an unexpected rustling sound arose. Immediately after, a sand scorpion, several meters long, launched a swift attack.

The tail of the sand scorpion was raised high, with its venomous stinger radiating a chilling gleam.

Upon seeing the situation, Cloud and Judith quickly readied themselves. Judith was all set to strike with a longsword in her hand.

However, she recalled that she had no spiritual energy left when she swung her sword, and she could not kill the sand scorpion in front of her.

At that moment, they were in a panic, their faces turning incredibly pale.

Jared's brows slightly furrowed. He clenched his fists, ready to strike the sand scorpion with his Sacred Light Fist.

Catalina and Rightblind, on the other hand, looked fearless when the sand scorpion rapidly approached them.

Just as the sand scorpion drew near, Rightblind abruptly drew his sword with a forceful swing.

The sand scorpion was instantly cleaved in two. Even the ground bore the mark of sword energy, left with a deep gash.

Upon witnessing this scene, Jared and the others were utterly amazed.

Jared turned his gaze toward Catalina and asked with confusion, "Why can he still harness the spiritual energy within him?"

"He is a swordsman, and what he just used wasn't spiritual energy but sword intent! This young lady is from Ten Thousand Sword Sect. She's a swordsman with sword intent too, right?"

Catalina looked at Judith.

Judith lowered her head in embarrassment.

She was indeed a swordsman and a disciple of Ten Thousand Sword Sect. However, she didn't own any sword intent because only a few higher-ups from Ten Thousand Sword Sect could cultivate it.

"Sword intent?" Jared murmured in contemplation.

Catalina chuckled. "To make up for my subordinate's rash behavior, I have told you about some restrictions on the Celestial Battlefield. It's up to you whether you can survive or find the magical items."

After Catalina finished speaking, she turned around and left with Rightblind.

Jared remained silent as he continuously pondered the concept of sword intent.

Suddenly, the barren land echoed with a rustling sound again, but the noise was louder this time.

Quickly, they saw dozens of sand scorpions rushing toward them.

Upon witnessing this scene, Cloud and Judith were petrified.

Even Catalina, who was about to turn and leave with Rightblind, looked shocked. Their previously easygoing expression had vanished, replaced by an intense seriousness.

Rightblind, who held a longsword in his right hand, began to tremble.

Catalina also held the jade pendant tightly, hoping she could stay safe.

It was impossible for those who had lost their spiritual energy to fight with all these sand scorpions.

As dozens of sand scorpions were about to strike with their venomous stingers, Jared suddenly sprang into action.

"Sword intent..." Jared uttered, and then, with a swift motion, he swung his Dragonslayer Sword.

Beams of light radiated from the Dragonslayer Sword, piercing through the bodies of the sand scorpions.

The sand scorpions, originally poised to attack, suddenly collapsed.

After piercing through the sand scorpions' bodies, the beams of light extended into the distance: Eventually, they heard an explosion echoing from afar.

Everyone looked at Jared in disbelief.

Even Catalina, who was about to leave, was filled with shock.

Rightblind looked astonished, his mouth agape.

“Is this... sword intent too?” Rightblind asked.

“It could be, but it was just a casual swing of my sword...”

Jared was also somewhat bewildered. He wasn't sure if it was sword intent since he didn't know much about it.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4409 – Rightblind was so shocked by Jared's words that he nearly spat blood.

He had spent his entire life mastering the sword, and cultivating sword intent was no easy feat. Yet, with a casual swing, Jared managed to unleash a tremendous amount of sword intent.

Moreover, it appeared that Jared himself was unaware of it. To Rightblind, his capability was truly impressive.

At that moment, Catalina found herself reassessing Jared. Her gaze was filled with confusion and bewilderment.

She couldn't understand how, even as a Seventh Level Tribulator cultivator, Jared could astonishingly slay so many sand scorpions with a single sword stroke, despite the suppression of his spiritual energy.

It was clear that Jared had also unleashed sword intent, as nothing else could have possibly produced such immense force.

However, it was utterly perplexing that Jared himself didn't comprehend what sword intent was.

Catalina began to develop a deep interest in Jared.

She was about to leave, but she turned around and looked at Jared, saying, “I didn't expect you to have such skills. Let's go together. It would be nice to have each other's company!”

Catalina took the initiative to invite Jared and his group, clearly recognizing his capabilities.

Jared nodded because he was unfamiliar with the Gelestial Battlefield. Since Catalina seemed to know more about it, he figured it would be beneficial to stick with her.

At that time, Cloud and Judith were just like ordinary people. If they were in real danger, Jared was afraid he wouldn't have the energy to take care of them.

Should they journey together, they could mutually support each other. Since Rightblind was indeed very capable, their group could be considered an invincible force within the Celestial Battlefield.

Seeing that Jared agreed to go with her, Catalina smiled and then turned to walk ahead.

Jared and his companions followed closely, with Rightblind at the rear, constantly maintaining a vigilant watch.

Given the presence of so many sand scorpions here, it was possible that other demon beasts could be lurking.

After walking for some time, they found more than ten enormous rocks looming ahead.

These rocks, with their unusual and irregular shapes, appeared to be sculpted by the whims of the universe.

However, Jared immediately noticed something unusual. These rocks didn't look natural. Instead, someone had deliberately arranged them to form a mini illusion array.

If one accidentally entered the array, they would undoubtedly lose their way. But since Jared had mastered the art of array craft, the mini illusion array posed no challenge for him.

Catalina merely glanced at those massive rocks, then walked over. She didn't notice the arcane array.

Jared didn't voice his thoughts. He simply followed behind because he knew they wouldn't get lost with him around.

As they approached the massive rocks, they realized they were tens of meters high.

They hadn't noticed from a distance. But up close, these massive rocks were as large as small hills.

They felt a sense of oppression when they stood in front of them.

"Mr. Chance, look. There seem to be some unique inscriptions all over these rocks," Cloud said to Jared in excitement.

After looking carefully, Jared found many incomprehensible words on the massive rocks, resembling some sort of runes.

This discovery stirred a sense of exhilaration in Jared. If these were indeed celestial or secret techniques, he would have hit the jackpot.

However, Jared was unfamiliar with the words inscribed on them. He had no clue what they were all about.

Catalina examined the rocks and remarked, "This is merely a record carved by someone, not a cultivation technique..."

Jared was taken aback. "Ms. Lantz, you recognize these words?"

"I don't..." Catalina shook her head.

Jared was on the verge of swearing out loud, but he managed to hold back.

You don't recognize these words, but you acted as if you do!

"You don't even recognize these words, yet you claim they are not cultivation techniques. Who are you trying to fool? Are you going to lie to us and secretly learn the techniques for yourself?"

Judith looked at Catalina with dissatisfaction.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4410 – Upon hearing this, Catalina scoffed and remarked, "These aren't even cultivation techniques. And even if they were, I wouldn't be impressed. Don't assume you understand others just because of your own mindset!"

"You..." Judith was left somewhat speechless by Catalina's retort.

Jared could tell that Catalina didn't seem to be lying. Moreover, her identity was by no means simple, and not something a Ten Thousand Sword Sect disciple like Judith could match up to.

Considering the strength of the blind elders on either side, even if all the forces of Castenada Town were combined, they wouldn't stand a chance.

The strength of those brought by Catalina might not necessarily be inferior to that of Ten Thousand Sword Sect.

In a completely composed tone, Jared asked Catalina, "Ms. Lantz, could you possibly enlighten me on how you discerned the meaning of the words written here?"

With a slight smile, Catalina casually extended her right hand, which was adorned with numerous runes. It was these very runes that had effortlessly allowed Catalina to unlock the entrance to the Celestial Battlefield.

"These runes allow me to transform the words on the massive rocks."

After Catalina finished speaking, she gently caressed the surface of the massive rock.

As the runes on Catalina's palm began to emit light, the inscriptions on the boulder seemed to come alive, whirling around in the air.

Swiftly, the obscure words transformed into a series of intricate paintings before everyone's eyes.

Vivid scenes from the Celestial Battle unfolded before their eyes, from fierce warriors and steeds to rivers flowing with blood.

Everyone was stunned, as it was their first time learning about the Celestial Battle in such a manner.

Previously, Jared could only learn of it through stark white remains and the narratives of some people. He had never truly witnessed it like this before.

A wave of intense emotions surged within Jared, making him feel nauseous.

The immortals they once aspired to be and the cultivation levels they aimed to achieve now appeared as fragile as lambs. One by one, they fell like insignificant insects, utterly worthless.

Jared dared not imagine just how brutal the catastrophe of that Celestial Battle had been. He was even more clueless about how this disaster had transformed the world.

Ethereal Realm was merely a small battlefield in the Celestial Battle. Countless realms like this, small and insignificant, existed within the vast expanse of the cosmos.

Even though it was a small battlefield, the cruelty was palpable. One could only imagine the magnitude of devastation caused by the Celestial Battle, leading to the downfall of countless immortals and demons.

For a moment, Jared found himself in a daze. He was unsure if he was capable of understanding the reasons behind the Celestial Battle, let alone finding out the identity of his biological father.

He felt that those things were too far-fetched as if it were a child's pipe dream.

"These aren't cultivation techniques. They're records of the Celestial Battle."

Catalina withdrew her hand, and in an instant, the words returned to the massive rock, restoring its tranquility.

Everyone was still engrossed in the scene that had just unfolded, even Rightblind was visibly shocked. Only Catalina seemed to be unsurprised.

Finally, Jared regained his focus and turned to Catalina with a question. “Ms. Lantz, do other massive rocks contain records as well? Are they all chronicles of the Celestial Battle?”

“Not exactly. On other massive rocks, there should also be records of some cultivation techniques. Although these techniques are quite ancient, they are after all celestial techniques passed down from the celestial realm, or perhaps demonic techniques. In Ethereal Realm, they are considered top-tier techniques. If any of you want to learn, I can gather some resources to help you better understand it!” Catalina said.

Upon hearing Catalina’s words, Judith was immediately filled with embarrassment. Just moments ago, she had accused Catalina of deliberately deceiving them in order to secretly learn the techniques from the massive rocks. Now, it appeared that Catalina truly didn’t care about it at all.
