Chapter 2061 Did I Forget Something?

The school had resumed shortly after the vampires had paid their respects to those that had lost their lives, and on the first day they had decided to go through some drills, at least for the first half of the school day.

After what had happened last time, they realised that at any moment the settlement could be under attack again, so they had the students go through several different routines. On top of that, there were permanent guards placed outside of school, not just the roaming type that dealt with small disputes like Quinn and Ronkin.

The head teacher Mr. Cripe thought for once the leaders were thinking about the future of the vampires and it was a nice change. Unknown to him, this was a push that had been asked from only two of the leaders, Grenlet and Edvard.

The other leaders were confident that, just like the time before, that they could help protect the settlement if need be. There were minimal deaths and putting guards to protect a few here or there, wasn't as important as protecting other places.

Due to them not caring more or less, Edvard and Grenlet got thier way, as they insisted it was important.

The others found this a little strange for them to be caring about the young vampires so suddenly, and of course unbeknownst to the others there was an ulterior motive to it all, to protect Quinn's family at all costs.

School had soon enough returned to normal for Minny and she was doing her usual swinging her legs on the wooden log, with her friend Abby arm in arm with her and drinking her juice. Soon she had gotten to the bottom of the cartoon and started to slurp away.

"Here you go." Another carton was shoved right in front of her face.

Minny's face had lit up for a second, but seeing the detail of the hand, she knew who was the one offering it.

"Why is there a disgusting thing on my juice box carton?" Minny asked. "You can leave the carton, but you go away, Tobi."

Tobi looked defeated and placed the carton on the wooden log next to her.

"I'm sorry Minny, I'm sorry for what I did, but I'm going through a hard time myself as well... still, I will carry on doing everything I can to look after you. I will deliver all my juice boxes every day to you until I starve!" Tobi shouted.

His voice was so loud that those around them started to turn their heads for a few seconds, which was embarrassing Minny.

Minny, rightly so, was still annoyed at what Tobi had done, it was because of him and his family that her father had gotten so mad. Although everything had worked out in the end, there was a good chance that it wouldn't have.

Another thing that she had to remind herself was that Tobi's memories had been returned to when they had just arrived at the castle. To Tobi, everything that Quinn did hadn't occurred, and he and his family just had a special meeting with the leader on their own after arriving there.

In the meeting, Tobi's family were given three choices, and they had chosen for Sonia to be banished. She was no longer living in the settlement. It was hard on Tobi and his father tried to make it as easy as possible for him, but for a child his age it was hard to understand.

In a way, Tobi wanted forgiveness from Minny, because he felt like he had already lost an important person in his life, and he was going to lose Minny as well. freewebnovel.com

"Let's not be so hard on him." Abby whispered into her ear. "You know what happened right, and you remember that he told us to run. Think, if you were in his shoes, if your parents asked you to do something for them, what would you have done?"

Thinking about it, when Minny did try to put herself in Tobi's shoes she couldn't imagine it. Would she have gone against her parent's orders if she felt it was the right thing to do?

Folding her arms, she hated the fact that Abby actually made it so she could see some sense into Tobi's action, and was now finding it hard to be angry at him. She then picked up the juice box, taking a big slurp and placed it back down.

"Half." Minny said. "You only have to give me half of your juice boxes, I don't want you to starve."

The biggest smile appeared on Tobi's face as he grabbed the juice box and started to drink away.

'Haha, Minny also put her lips on this drink and now so did I, so technically the two of us are kissing!'

The stupid smile on Tobi's face had caused Minny to raise a fist but Abby quickly held it back down.

"Those three seem awfully relaxed today." Hebe said, watching far off in the distance up against a wall. The area was tense for most of the students.

"They don't have to worry as much like us older students do." Jared replied. "The younger ones can worry about this stuff when they get older."

"But didn't you say Minny was a big competition for you?" Hebe asked. "I mean, is there even a contest after we saw her do what she did."

Jared just smiled as he looked at his fist.

"Your right, but you heard what her mother said right. There proably hiding her powers for a reason, so I don't think she's in the contest. Besides all of that, most vampires at her age still won't have an ability, even if we were to go up against each other, I'm sure I could find some way to beat her."

Just like in the past, the abilities of the original families were highly sought after. So many of the children had yet to learn one, even if their family had a good ability because today was a big day for them all.

When the break had ended, all of the students returned to their classrooms, but they would quickly be leaving them all as well.

"It's a big day today, so I hope you are all ready?" Miss Bedford asked.

Tilting her head to the side and placing a finger on her lips, Minny was confused as she wondered what could be happening today that she had forgotten about.

Several large carriages were heading towards the school. The pathway had been blocked by guards as they made their way, because those that were inside were important figures, they were the leaders and the originals of the families.

A crowd had already started to gather outside of the school, and more guards than usual had been placed there, because they knew there would be vampires wanting to witness what was going on today.

In a carriage, four could fit inside, and in one of them there was Grenlet, Edvard, Hikel, and also another leader.

It was a big day for the school, because today was the day where the leaders would watch sparring matches between the students. They did this with the aim to select talented students to train under them

Whether it was for show or not, or just a tradition they wanted to set up for a bit of fun it was hard to say, but one thing it did do was motivate the students into training, and becoming the best they could.

Any parent would be over the moon to have their student picked and placed under the wing of one of the originals. At least most of them would.

Grenlet and Edvard shared a look at each other. Today was an incredibly important day for them, because they knew no matter what, they had to either get Quinn's family under their wing, or make sure no other leader was interested in her.

'The daughter of the Punisher.' Edvard thought. 'Maybe... she won't stand out, that would be easy for us, but for some reason I don't think this will be easy at all.'

Nodding at Grenlet they both knew what they needed to do as the carriage had stopped just outside of the school.

Meanwhile.... As the normal school day was coming to an end.

"What!!! Ronkin, I have to leave now, it's an emergency! It's my wife, she's having our baby!"

The students had been told about the big day, the day where all the leaders would arrive and see if there were any talented students a while ago. The thing was, it was before the attack, and while many of the students were counting down the days to the big event, Minny was more worried about a number of things.

For one, she was busy wondering if her new sibling would be a boy or a girl. She was hoping maybe a girl, as she thought the two of them could then go and talk about interesting things together.

She then wanted to be the big older sister who would show her how to do things and protect her. Excitement wasn't the only feeling she was feeling though, at times she was worried.

Concerned that her parents might start to forget about her more when the new baby arrived. In the first place, this would be a real child of Quinn and Layla. Not like her, who was adopted, so it only made sense for them to treat the new child better.

It was because of all of these thoughts, that she had completely forgotten, nor was she interested in the big day. Regardless, as a member of the school, she needed to take part.

Once again, the students of the entire school were all gathered in a single place. It was the school field where the practical lessons would take place, but it looked different compared to before.

There were three large platforms, square-shaped on the ground around a metre high off the floor. Each of the platforms also had stairs leading to them. On top of that, the stadium had been pushed slightly forward, so the students could get a good look at what was going on.

Not that it mattered too much, as a vampire's eyesight was great anyway, and even from far away they would be able to see plenty of details. There had been another adjustment to the outside seating area, and that was the fact that no one was allowed in the first three rows, and there appeared to be amended seats.

They were larger than the others, spread apart and had side tables for drinks and more to be put out. It was clear who the seats were designed for.

"Alright everyone, here are our seats." Miss Bedford explained, as she sat at the end of the row and the rest of the students sat down as well. Of course, Minny was sitting next to Abby, who had also allowed Tobi to sit next to her as well.

Originally, Tobi had attempted to sit next to Minny, but she had forced Abby to get in between the two of them.

"When everyone has arrived, they will soon explain the rules to you all." Miss Bedford said.

All the classes from different grades had gathered, and Minny had even caught eyes with Hebe and Jared. Hebe gave a nice little wave and smile, whereas Jared seemed to more or less give Minny a stare.

'What's his problem?' Minny thought, but she politely waved back to Hebe.

Mr. Cripe stood on the centre stage, and looked to be a little nervous but now that he could see everyone was sitting down, it was his cue to start.

"Ladies and gentlemen of Roland V. I welcome you to our first grand event!" Mr. Cripe said, whose voice was being projected through some strange crystal powered speakers that were placed everywhere in the stands.

"Today is your day to shine! It is your day to show off your talents and be selected to be taught under the wing of our great leaders! It's a path straight to the top!" Mr. Cripe excitedly said. "Today I want you to show off your talents, your skills, your perseverance and your smart minds. There is more than just physical strength in a battle and I hope many of you today will be able to see that.

"So before I go ahead, and explain the rules, let's give a loud welcome to our leaders!"

The whole crowd started to clap, but there were no cheers. These weren't celebrities, although at times they were treated like so by the public, but respected people. Which was why the vampires only clapped, and didn't say a word to each other as they came out.

Hikel, the fourth family leader, Grenlet the third, Edvard the 9th, and Magnus Muscat, the 6th family leader as well. Of course, there were the others but they didn't seem to have as much of a presence surrounding them.

On top of that, it looked like these leaders were the only ones that had acknowledged the students as they waved to the crowd, whereas the others had ignored them, sitting down in their seats.

It felt like this was more of a chore for them than anything else.

"I'm sure there is no need for an introduction of our wonderful leaders!" Mr. Cripe said. "Everyone should know them well, and it is your job today to impress them. Now to go onto the rules. There are three stages set up, allowing for three consecutive fights to occur at the same time.

"Anyone can volunteer to step onto one of the platforms, after that they are to select someone in the crowd to fight with, and they are free to choose anyone they wish. If they have a name in mind they may call that name and they are to come to the stage.freewebnovel.com

"If they have no one in mind they may select someone from the crowd that has their hand up. Please be aware though, that if you are to select an opponent that you believe will be easy for you, that will also be a judge of your character.

"It is encouraged to select opponents that you believe are around the same level as you. If you are brave, maybe someone stronger than you. At the end of the day, the leaders are looking for potential. Now do we have any volunteers?" Mr. Cripe asked.

A lot of vampires had put their hands up, which wasn't a surprise at all. Nearly all of the vampires still only cared about who was strongest. It was almost as if it was in their DNA to compete with each other in this way.

Where the leaders were seated, both Edvard and Grenlet had an inward smile.

'This is good, if Quinn's daughter, who is called Minny if I remember correctly, was to take part there is a high chance that all of the leaders would be interested in her, but then either myself or Grenlet would have to try and take her under our wing before the others.

'There would be a battle amongst the leaders as to who would teach Quinn's daughter, but the best outcome would be for no one to find out about her. I'm sure she is smart enough to know not to take part in this.' Edvard thought.

"Will you be taking part, Minny?" Abby asked.

"As I said before there is no point." Minny crossed her arms. "There is no better teacher than my father, so why would I want to be taught by any of these?"

Although Abby had seen her father's strength a little when stopping Sonia, Abby still couldn't help but giggle, because it seemed so crazy. A vampire that was not too far from Minny had overheard what Abby said and it saddened him a little.

'Minny doesn't want to take part?' Tobi thought. 'But she's so strong. She's probably one of the strongest vampires in the whole school. If she doesn't take part, then the leaders and others will never know her true skill.

'I know Minny is saying that she doesn't care, but she has to care. Every vampire cares, and if she does get selected, her father and mother that she really cares about will be so proud of her.

'That's it, if Minny takes part, and gets scouted, her parents will praise her. Which will make her happy, and then I'm the one that's made Minny happy, so she will be happy with me again! No matter what, I need to get Minny to take part in this event!' Tobi thought.

The teachers that were in the stand, selected those that they thought were not the best choices. This was done on purpose, as they felt like if they showed some of the worst, it would then make the more talented vampires look better.

After all, this event was as much for them as it was everyone else. They wanted to show that they had talented students, and were doing well in guiding them as well. Maybe, even they would get noticed for their talents.

What also seemed to be done on purpose, was students near a similar grade, if not the same grade, were selected for the first fights. This allowed for a nice spread of students on the three platforms to be shown.

It also gave the children a good chance to see where they were at, compared to others that were the same age as them.

In the first stage, there were children who were incredibly young, younger than Minny and Abby, but not by much. They used next to no blood powers as they chased each other. They showed impressive speed and strength, but the first match was practically over as soon as one caught the other.freewebnovel.com

There was no sign of technique or fighting skills between the children of this age, and it was more like watching a game of tag. In the centre stage, this was where the older children were fighting.

Those that were closer to Jared and Hebe's age. Teenage vampires who knew how to use blood aura. The thing was, as vampires got older at this age, this was where there was an increasing difference in terms of level and skill that could be seen.

One of the fights had ended as one person threw out a blood slash. The other tried to gather blood aura to throw out a slash of his own, but when he did, it vanished after travelling less than half a metre.

The blood slash from the other participant had ended up hitting the vampire, blood was spilt and it was clear who would win the match.

Finally, there was the third stage, which was a mix of students, those who were around Minny's age and weaker older students. These vampires didn't know how to utilise blood aura, however, they were quite skilled when it came to combat.

While watching, there was something that the students noticed, and that was the fact that the winner of the fights had to remain on. There were less volunteers as they noticed this, and felt like it was better to raise their hand when an opponent was near the end of their strength. At least, if they felt like they were unable to beat them.

"Oh, well this is certainly a waste of time." Bianca Kent said with a yawn. She was the original of the fifth family, and had a strange creature around her neck that looked almost like that of a snake. Although its scales were constantly changing colour and the next second it had vanished as if it wasn't even there.

"They do say that the vampires do get weaker every generation." Magnus commented. When he spoke, his words lingered on towards the end. Out of all the originals that were there, Magnus was the most pale. Some guessed because he must have already been as white as a ghost before being turned.

Another trait that made him stick out was his hair. His hairline was receding quite a bit on the side of his head, making his long black hair in more of a V like shape. Lastly, there was the clothes he would wear.

While it was normal for vampires to have an attraction to the colour black as they were creatures who travelled in the night, in this case, Magnus preferred a dark green.

"This is expected... Peaceful times, no enemies to push them further."

"Peaceful times?" Hikel repeated. "From what we have heard, the vampires have had anything but peaceful times."

Mr. Cripe, who was close to the teachers, could hear the leaders talking, and because of this, he gave a signal to the others. The next opponent was quickly selected for the centre stage and it was none other than Jared.

When the teacher called his name, some of the students that were close by gave him a little cheer, including Hebe.

"Don't get too big headed and trip before you reach the stage!" She shouted.

Jared didn't reply, but just smiled as he made his way down. It was time... time for the teachers to show some of the more talented students and what a way to do so than by showing their very top student?

When Jared entered the stage, his opponent looked to be slightly tired, and it looked like his opponent also knew who he was.

"Don't worry. I need to impress the others, so I will fight this match, without using any blood aura." Jared stated.

"You cocky b*stard, I never did like you!" the student said, as he rushed forward, and swung his arm out, releasing a blood swipe across the ground.

It was an aggressive and strong swipe, but calmly Jared went off to the side, he then stared straight toward Jared and the aura in his hand looked to be preparing another blood swipe, but before the vampire could release it, Jared quickly knocked it to the side.

He then kicked the back leg of the vampire causing him to fall off balance, and at the same time with an elbow and a knee, Jared swung his elbow down and lifted his knee hitting the vampire in the stomach and back at the same time.

"It looks like there is an interesting one that is here after all." Magnus smiled, and so did the other students as well.

"It's a little too early to say, but he is the most impressive so far. We will need to see his blood aura skills and if he has an ability." Hikel commented.

All eyes were naturally now glued to Jared, and they couldn't wait to see his next fight. Which made them fail to realise something.

"Ah, Tobi, you want to take part sure, head over to the third stage." Miss Bedford said with a smile.

Hearing the name, Minny, Abby and some of Tobi's old friends had turned their heads.

"Tobi, you're taking part!" Abby asked.

"Of course, I am a strong vampire!" Tobi said, pounding his chest as he made his way.

Tobi wasn't completely wrong. Due to his position he had access to private teachers and so on who had taught him how to fight. Tobi perhaps was one of the better ones in his grade. With someone they knew now down on the stage though, Minny didn't know whether she should cheer for Tobi or not.

A few moments later, Tobi gave a respectful bow to his opponent before the fight was to begin, but Tobi was confident for a few reasons. For one, his opponent had already fought twice, even if he hadn't, from what he saw he was confident he could win.

On top of that, he had something that was driving him to win, he had to win this match.

When his opponent charged in, with a punch, Tobi almost screamed at the top of his lungs as he threw out a punch of his own. When the two hit, the other child fell to the ground, before he could get up, Tobi had his foot placed right above his throat.

"Hey, Tobi is actually really strong." Abby said surprised.

"Strong, you call that strong? If I was fighting him then he would be shaking in his boots!" Minny claimed.

Now that Tobi had one his fight, it was his turn to pick someone, he could select one from the crowd, or state the name of anyone he wished.

'This is for you.'

"I choose Minny Balen as my next opponent!" Tobi called out.

Hearing that name, the students from their class turned in their seats. They knew of the history between the two so thought this was crazy, and at the same time, Grenlet and Edvard almost jumped out of theirs.

For a while now, Tobi had been cooking up his plan, a way for Minny to show off her skills. In his mind she was just a little shy and needed a little push to get out there, and thanks to him he had done just that.

'I am the best friend in the whole world.' Tobi thought, smiling to himself.

Meanwhile, Minny was tensing her fist, imagining the things she would do to him when the two of them were alone. What she had in mind and what Tobi probably had in mind were very different things.

According to the rules, what Tobi had done was absolutely fine. Even if Minny hadn't volunteered herself, Tobi could select her as an opponent and she was able to participate.

'What do I do? I'm not even sure if you're allowed to just forfeit these matches?' Minny thought, as she sat there. Even though her name was being called out by Miss Bedford, she had yet to leave her seat.

'I could lose the fight on purpose, but then won't people find it strange. Everyone in the class, no, everyone in the school, knows about that incident. If I lost to Tobi, they would know it was on purpose, why did he have to put me in such a tricky situation.'

The children from Minny's class were all whispering to each other as they heard Minny's name, and soon something unexpected had occurred.

"Minny, go on show them your skills!"

"Show them how strong you are!"

More and more people, those that she hadn't even talked to before, were cheering her on, to take part in the event.

"You look suprised." Abby said with a smile. "I guess you really didn't know. After you sacrificed yourself for everyone in the class back then, you are kinda everyone's idol. Including mine!"

"Idol?" Minny's face went red. Someone her age, of course she would enjoy the praise, but the thing was, due to the kids shouting out her name quite loudly in her class, more attention from other classes and grades was appearing.

"Minny, that's the girl who broke that kid's legs in the playground that time right!"

"Yeah, and the one with the really handsome dad!"

"I guess she's quite strong and her classmates seem to think so as well."

The gossip about this particular vampire had travelled so far, that the leaders had even heard of all of the rumours.

"It looks like there is quite a popular vampire among them." Hikel commented.

"It seems like they just can't stay away from the limelight." Edvard mumbled, quiet enough so the other vampires wouldn't understand what was being said.

"It's quite nice to have a female taking the lead, and quite the young one at that. I will be excited to see her talents. Even if she is unskilled, it seems, she is a hit with the vampires which could have its own uses." Bianca said.

These words from the 5th family leader were worrying Edvard quite a bit. Even if Minny didn't display a strong set of skills, one was already interested in her regardless.

In the end, Minny had to stand up, and as she did there was an even louder rumble and cheer from her classmates, as she walked down the stairs towards the stage she was conflicted and flip flopping all over the place as to what she should do.

'Forfeit, how could I forfeit when everyone is watching me and expecting big things from me, and besides if I show a bit of my strength it won't be a big deal right?' Minny thought. 'No, we can't take any more risks, the best thing to do is to win the match against Tobi, but make it look a little hard. After that I'll lose the next fight bringing all the attention to the next student. I can't let this get to my head.'

When the two entered the stage, they both looked at each other fiercely. One looking at one with anger, while another set of eyes had another emotion all together. Even though there were other matches going on, all eyes were on Minny.

"I guess you're letting me have the first move, ' Tobi shouted, as he ran forward.

He was running at top speed, and for his age it was impressive for a vampire, but he had seen the speed Minny was capable of, no matter what he knew he had lost this fight, so the only way he could make her look impressive was by showing everything he could do.

When Tobi was within striking range, unlike the other students who would have attacked straight away, he had suddenly stopped and changed direction, coming in from the side and leaping off the ground, cracking the floor slightly.

He came up in the air and went to strike Minny, who managed to dodge to blow by sweeping her two feet.

"The boy is fast and agile!" Hikel said with excitement. "He is talented for his age."

"Yes, and did you see, that girl still managed to avoid it." Bianca commented.

Tobi continued to throw punches and Minny was avoiding each blow as if it was on instinct, she moved out of the way of them all, but then when a hit was coming straight for her face, she thought it was best not to avoid this one. She gritted her teeth and bared the hit, moving her head to the side.

It was a move that looked like Tobi's perseverance had won out, to those in the crowd, but to the leaders, they found the movement odd and none of them had commented on it, because it was clear to them all that she got hit on purpose.

'NO! Why are you getting hit on purpose!' Edvard was screaming in his head. 'That only makes you look more suspicious and even stronger! Just win the fight, just win the fight!'

"I guess my little practising has worked out." Tobi said to Minny. "But, I still haven't shown you something, something that you taught me."

From around 3 metres apart, Tobi's hand was glowing red and when he swung it next, a blood swipe came out aiming straight toward Minny.

"A blood swipe at that age and so early on in the year!" Magnus was clearly pleased. "He is one that has good control over his emotions or a large amount of blood aura."

Avoiding the blood swipe was easily done, but in this sense, Minny thought of what the best thing to do was, and decided to use blood aura as well. The teachers already knew what she could do.

If both of their attacks hit and she lost out, but she won through her fighting, then she would look equal or less than in potential, so she threw out a blood swipe of her own, but when it left her hand it had done so at an incredible speed.

They both collided, cancelling each other out and bursting into particles. Once again, Minny's plan had worked on the general people in the crowd. They assumed these were just two talented students using blood swipe at a young age controlling their blood aura, but the leaders saw something else.

'I'm afraid it might be too late now to hide your talent. You not only produced a blood swipe, but did so effortlessly, in a time so quick that it allowed you to counter your opponent's. Without knowing it, you just showed how much control you have over your aura and at such a young age as well. Quinn, I know you don't want to hear this but your daughter is extremely talented.' Edvard thought.

The match had come to a conclusion, after the blood swipe, Minny had rushed in, grabbing Tobi by the head, she then threw him onto the ground before stepping on his back. It seemed cruel, but compared to the last time the two fought, coming out with no broken bones, the outcome was a much greater one.

"I would say this generation isn't as weak as you first thought." Grenlet stated, looking over at Magnus. So far, there were three extremely talented students they all had their eyes on, but a leader could only select one, and the day was quite short.

Over at the other stage, Jared had just finished his match as well, with relative ease, and he was looking at the leaders to see if they were watching him, but instead their eyes were on another. freewebnovel.com

'I thought this might happen, I guess I have no choice.'

Jared raised his hand at that moment, as he had a request to make.

"I would like to fight Minny Balen, next." Jared declared.

MY VAMPIRE SYSTEM

Chapter 2065 Impress Me (Part 4)

The fight between Minny and Tobi was over, and as the boy got up off the ground and could see all the eyes on her, he had the largest smile on his face. When looking at Minny though, her eyebrows and facial expression were telling a completely different story.

'I didn't do anything wrong did I?' Tobi thought, as he walked past her, limping and holding his arm. He wasn't that hurt, but felt like faking an injury would do him well in this situation if he didn't want to be hit again. freewebnovel.com

'Yeah, I'm sure of it. I'm sure when her parents find out she's one of the students scouted by the leaders, that she will thank me for it.' Tobi continued to smile.

Making his way back to his seat, that's when he heard that Jared had asked for a match, but not with just anybody, but a match with Minny.

The crowd's reaction to this was interesting, as there wasn't cheers, or excitement and instead a little bit of confusion as they talked amongst each other.

"Why would Jared ask to fight someone who's like four grades below him!"

"Yeah, isn't Jared like the most talented student? Is he just jealous that someone else is getting all of the attention?"

Hebe hearing these words wanted to correct them all, but it was hard to do in this situation because if no one knew the truth, then it would certainly seem like it was a petty action.

With the challenge set up, the match was underway, but before it began Hikel had suggested something.

"Let's have them on one stage." He said.

Jared was already fighting on one stage, and Minny on the other. With two talented students, he honestly doubted if anyone would be paying attention to the others. So the two had walked over to the centre stage.

"I wonder... that was the strong kid from before, do we know more about him?" Magnus asked.

"Jared, I do know a bit about him." Edvard stated. "He was on the list provided to us by Xander. Although a teenager, he is already a vampire noble, and on top of that he was a core member of the Red vampires.

"According to his file, he took part in missions and more since he was so skilled, so this Jared has a lot of experience."

It explained a lot to the other vampires why he seemed different to the others, and there were only a few classmates that were aware of this fact. In the first place, most of the Red vampires would wear masks when taking on assignments, so even between other members, they didn't know what he looked like.

"That is interesting, but I'm still more interested in the little girl." Bianca claimed. "The good thing is, now that she is fighting a good opponent, maybe she will show her full potential rather than hiding it."

Edvard wasn't so sure about that, he had guessed that the reason why Minny was faking the hits she had taken from before, was due to an order from her father and mother. Most likely she would do the same in the fight.

Although the leaders had already seen enough to take an interest in her, it was best to stop here before they saw too much.

On the stage, the two were now standing opposite each other and Edvard's guess was right. Minny was planning to do just that, to be slightly slower than Jared, to take all of his hits, then be defeated completely.

She could even slow down slightly saying she was a little tired from the fight before, she felt like her plan was perfect until she looked directly at Jared who looked as if he wanted to speak.

"You plan to hold back don't you?" Jared smiled. "Or do you plan to lose the fight on purpose, but I'm afraid I can't let you do that. For the first time, someone younger than me, who shows true talent, is in front of me."

"People have always asked, what makes me different from them, and this time I want to know, what is so different between me and you."

Minny really didn't care about Jared's reason for wanting to fight her, she had already made her decision regardless.

"I hate to use this, but I think it's the only way." Jared sighed. "The school attack, a couple of days ago, in this very place. There were a lot of things I saw that day. When I am disappointed by my expectations of someone, my mouth tends to get a little loose. Do you understand what I'm saying?"

Immediately, Minny's eyes glowed red, and the aura around her body nearly exploded, but she had kept it down at the last second, before anyone had noticed.

'Mother trusted you, Minny trusted you. I thought you were a good person, and now you do this... you are a bad person.' Minny thought she wanted to say the words out loud, but didn't.

Her chest was hurting, as she felt like she had been betrayed again, too many times, had she felt like she had been hurt by those she was starting to trust.

"I won't let you!" Minny said, as she rushed from her position, and unlike in the fight before, Minny was the first to attack.

She was incredibly fast, and seeing this, Bianca stood up from her seat in excitement.

Still, Minny was doing as her father said and kept her power at ten percent.

"You're fast!" Jared said with a smile. "But I've stopped your hit before."

His hands, both were covered in red aura, and in that moment, Jared had stopped Minny's punch with one hand, and went to throw the other. When he did though, it had hit nothing but the air.

Soon, he could see that Minny had jumped off from the floor below, and now was directly in his face, her eyes glowing. Throwing punch after punch, Jared was blocking them one after another, and as he blocked them all, he noticed his arms were starting to get numb.

'I can't just keep blocking, I have to do something!' Jared threw a fist back, and once again he had hit nothing but the air, Minny had also completely disappeared from his sight.

A pain on the back of his leg, caused him to jolt slightly, and he soon realised that she was behind him. Lifting his arm he could sense that another kick was going toward his head, and he was right, but it was stronger than the punches and sent his body skidding across the floor.

"This little vampire, she really was holding back!" Binaca said. "Why is she showing us her strength now!"

Edvard wasn't so sure either. Did the two in front of them have a history that they didn't know about? It certainly looked that way.

At the same time, Minny wanted to end the fight as soon as possible, in order to shut up the other so he never said anything. She dashed from her position after Jared, but several blood swipes were seen coming out towards her.

They were coming out in sets of five rather than a single long line, because Jared was using his aura and splitting it with every single one of his fingers. It made it almost impossible to avoid, so Minny had no choice as she covered her hand in red aura, and slashed right through them, breaking all of Jared's blood aura attacks.

"Seems like she was hiding her blood aura strength as well." Hikel commented.

This was just making Edvard scream in his head who was sitting by his side.

"This isn't what I saw back then." Jared said. "Does this mean, you still are holding back even after what I said."

Minny threw out her fist, this time covered in a red aura strike. She knew Jared could block a normal hit for her, which was why she was adding extra power.

Something was strange though, Jared stood confident, his eyes glowing red, and when Minny looked at her fist as it got close, she could see her red aura was being sliced apart, but it was by a force she couldn't see.

When her red aura broke down, it was then her skin that was being ripped apart, hurt as if being attacked by hundreds of slashed by a very sharp blade.

For the first time, Minny pulled back, and when she did her hand was a bloody mess.

"What was that?' Minny thought.

For the vampires watching, they were thinking the same thing, but for the leaders they knew this well.

"That boy." Magnus commented. "He has the ability of the first family, does he not?"

Chapter 2066 Impress Me (Part 5)

Seeing Jared use the first family's ability, a lot of the leaders were conflicted. The first family vampire original was one of the strongest originals that the group had, but a long time ago, he had been executed by Arthur himself.

The originals still did not know the truth about how the whole thing had originally been a trap set up by Richard Eno. Although it was true that the Cain family opposed the idea of the Punishers, they never went as far as to attack Arthur's people in return to oppose the idea.

As for why the leaders were conflicted seeing Jared, it was for a different reason altogether.

"It is a bit of a shame." Magnus stated, as he leant on one arm pressing his hand against his face.

"I know what you mean." Hikel added. "The boy has another power. It would be great if he was... what is the right word, fresh. That way we could teach them our own powers, he has a lot of talent."

"Yeah, and it would be strange, don't you think? Teaching someone that has another family's power." Bianca added.

The originals were proud of their family powers, it was why they had originally set up the vampire settlement like they had done in the first place. Where only those they closely trusted, that were talented, or shared the more of a pure blood line close to theirs to learn their ability.

It was safe to say that the leaders were also all quite arrogant in thinking that their powers were better compared to the other leaders. It was the first time the school was holding such an event since the settlement had been rebuilt and the leaders were expecting to find someone they could bring in from the ground up.

'This isn't good, this isn't good at all!' Edvard thought. 'Now that Jared has revealed his ability, their interest in Minny will rise even more. With one so young, I doubt they would think she would have an ability right? If you do, girl, it would be best if you use it now so they can also be disinterested.'

While looking at Minny in the fighting arena, after getting hurt she hadn't approached Jared, and he too was just standing there, as if he was waiting for her to attack. She looked at her hand for a second in a certain way, and that was when a thought had crossed Edvard's mind.

'Wait a second.... her father's ability is the shadow... don't tell me that he taught that to his daughter as well. If that's the case, and she shows her power here...'

"Don't you think you are all being too rash!" Edvard said out loud, as he started to chuckle. "This is great! The first ability is a strong ability, and due to the loss of the first family there are not many that practise it anymore, even though it is incredibly powerful.

"You leaders are living in the past. The families are not like they were, our families that we have now are a mixture of vampires with all sorts of different abilities. What matters most is having someone who shows a lot of talent, and without a doubt this person does that!"

Grenlet had quickly caught on to what the other was doing and decided to join in.

"You are right!" Grenlet enthusiastically said. "Think about it as well. If one had that child, one would cultivate the power of the first family. It would be like combining two families' greatness into one. Without a doubt I will be thinking of taking him on."

The other leaders couldn't deny these facts and they had made good points, but in the end, they could only pick one student, and perhaps the outcome of the match would dictate who they would pick.

'Is that an ability?' Minny thought. 'I can see why he wasn't worried when I hit him. He has a strong body as well, since he got up after I kicked him. I want to use my powers, I want to use everything I have but...'

Judging from the look on Jared's face and from what he said earlier, he still wasn't happy at all. If Minny didn't start upping the tempo and such in her fight, then he would reveal her secret.

Both of Minny's hands were glowing red, and just like Jared had done, Minny used her blood aura in the same way, producing blood swipes, but with each individual finger making it look more like a red claw mark going through the air.

When it got close to Jared, the red slashes started to get cut, and before they could even reach Jared they had become nothing.

'There has to be somewhere I can attack!' Minny started to move around Jared while throwing her hands and each time she would produce a blood slash heading straight for Jared.

Due to her speed the entire stage was filled with blood slashes, that were all heading toward Jared in different directions. The vampires in the stadium couldn't believe what they were seeing.

"Tobi... I think Minny was going easy on you." Abby couldn't help but say.

"Yeah... I think, even when she broke my legs that time she was going easy on me." Tobi replied.

Even for the students that were in the higher grades, they had never seen anything like this, they weren't even sure if Jared could do something like this. If it wasn't for his ability, then they were sure this match would have already been over.

'There is no crack in his ability, wherever I attack, he keeps destroying my blood slashes!' Minny thought angrily.

"What are you doing, are you just going to stand there!" Minny shouted angrily as she stopped her attacks.

There was one way to get through his ability, and that would be to use a stronger attack. She was also sure that if she covered her body in a strong enough blood aura she could get through it as well, but that would be going against her fathers orders, so the best way was to get Jared to do something.

"If you just stand there and use your ability, eventually you're going to run out of MC cells!" Minny shouted.

"Your right, but won't you soon run out of blood aura, you have already used a lot." Jared replied, although he was sure she could go on for a long time, he thought it was best to change things up a bit.

The red aura covered his hand once again. There was a reason why Jared focused so much on using red aura, and why his control was quite good. As his entire arm was covered from his shoulder down to his fingers, it started to condense and form something in his hand.

Finally, it had finished forming and now they could see it, it was a sword made out of blood aura. Now it's my time to attack, Jared said as he ran forward.

Minny could see his movements clearly, she would be able to avoid him easily, and that's what she did as she dodged to the right, and was ready to attack his side, but even though the sword had missed, a cut had appeared directly on her cheek.freewebnovel.com

"If you don't use your full strength this match isn't going to be easy for you at all." Jared commented.

MY VAMPIRE SYSTEM

Chapter 2067 Impress Me (Part 6)

The first ability was always something that was best used with a sword, and it was why Bryce Cain always had one on hand, and was one of the most skilled users of the ability. Minny avoided the strike once again, but another cut had appeared on her face.

She tried to jump back, to figure out why she kept getting hurt, but the sword slashes continued and small cuts were still appearing on her body all over the place.

"I know you can move much faster than this!" Jared said. "Do you really not care!"

A large strike downward that produced a blood strike along with the sword had hit the ground, breaking it and chucking pieces of rock up in the air. Once again Minny had managed to make distance between the two.

'This is okay...I'm getting hurt, but it's not a lot.' Minny thought. 'I just have to stay calm. If the fight continues then I can win this when he runs out of blood aura, stamina or MC cells. I will definitely win this fight and keep the secret.'

Looking towards Minny, Jared felt like he could almost read her mind, he could tell what she was thinking and feeling, which made him let out a big sigh once and for all.

"Fine, listen up, everybody!" Jared let out a big sigh. "There is something you all need to know about Minny!"

'What... what are you doing!' Minny thought, her heart was beating, both her hands were shaking as her entire body was being overcome with adrenaline.

'No, I can't I can't let him say those words!'

Pushing off from her legs, Minny had powered herself with Qi. A power that was hard to detect by vampires. She had been practising it ever since that day, and with her current 10 percent power it made her move faster than before.

Naturally, Minny, wanting to stop Jared from speaking those words, had made a fist powered with Qi and blood aura. Something that Quinn had to learn over time, in this tense situation, Minny was doing it naturally.

Even though she could feel Jared's ability cutting her body all over, with the Qi running through her body, it was hardly doing any damage. Throwing out her fist, Jared turned and raised his sword, but it had smashed through the pure blood sword breaking it into nothing but energy particles, then her fist had hit his face.

The punch had shattered his teeth, and Jared was sent flying through the air at such a speed that the other vampires found it hard to keep track of him, but soon he had crashed into the bottom of the stadium and smoke and dust was seen everywhere.

Only Minny could be seen on the stage, standing in a punching position.

'Did I break the rules... Minny only used 10 percent of her vampire powers still... this should be okay right?'

Soon though, a great pain was felt in Minny's body. Qi was in some ways the natural enemy of vampires, and there was a particular way one had to use it, and it had to be focused at all times, otherwise there was a large pay back. All of her muscles were starting to twitch. A shooting pain all over was felt, and it was so painful that Minny had passed out, falling onto the floor.

"What... just happened?" Grenlet asked, surprised himself. The power at the end... there was no rise in blood aura energy, and yet, suddenly she had moved faster, and delivered a powerful punch that had broken through Jared's attack.

The other leaders also were amazed about this, and for sure, they without a doubt felt like Minny was a 1 in a million talent.freewebnovel.com

'Your family is going to cause me more headaches than ever.' Edvard shook his head.

Both Jared and Minny were taken to the nurse's office, which was a tent set up on the field not too far away from the rest of the vampires. At the same time, the event continued on. Eventually, Minny had woken up and it was the same for Jared. After they had been given some blood, most of their wounds were healing well, although Jared's were healing a little slower than usual.

The two of them were in hospital beds next to each other, and it was safe to say that Minny wasn't pleased with Jared. When the two made eye contact, she immediately looked away.

"You are really strong, you sure showed me." Jared said, still finding it hard to speak as his jaw was still a little messed up. "I know why you're upset, and I'm sorry, I would never tell anyone about your secret. I already promised you and your mum."

Minny quickly turned her head.

"Liar, why would you say that now!"

"I just wanted to fight you, properly if I could, but now I know my place. You can believe me or not, but I promise I won't say a thing. Minny, you are a special person, one that is even more special than me, and I hope you continue to grow, in strength and as a great person. Maybe one day, I'll be serving you, and if that's the case, I really don't think it will be all bad." Jared smiled.

From his words, Jared seemed to be sincere but she still wasn't happy. What was with all these boys that were making it hard for Minny to live normally.

Eventually, the event had ended, and the teachers were in charge of taking the students back to the class. Meanwhile the leaders would decide who they would want as their pupils and an announcement would soon be made in an hour or so.

The field was now empty, and the leaders were all standing on the main centre stage where Minny and the other had fought.

"Well, let's make things clear!" Bianca said, with her hands on her hips. "I want the little girl, and I'm sure you know which one I'm talking about. Since I was the first to say this, I think I should get her."

"I don't think that's fair." Hikel commented. "I'm sure every single one of us has claimed interest in her when we were watching the fight. Is there anyone else interested?"

Immediately, all of the leaders there raised their hands, including Grenlet and Edvard.

"This is going to be difficult, if we all want her." Edvard said.

"I agree." Hikel replied. "There should be a fair way for us to decide between us all."

"I have a suggestion." Grenlet spoke up. "In this case, if we all wish to train her, wouldn't it be right to ask her guardians, to ask their parents who they think is best to train their daughter?"

Edvard was inwardly smiling, he thought this was a great suggestion, if they agreed to this, of course Quinn would pick him or Grenlet.

"Hmm... I don't think that's too bad. I can be quite convincing, does anyone know who her parents are, or which family they are in?" Bianca asked.

"They belong to my family." Edvard answered, and the other leaders noticed that he had answered a tad bit fast. "I can check now to see where they are so we can get this matter resolved."

Edvard walked off, as he went to communicate with his family while the rest of the leaders were thinking of ways they could convince the girl's father to pick them. Depending on the position and type of person they were, there were many important factors.

Eventually though, Edvard had returned.

"There might be a slight problem. The girl's parents are currently at the hospital, and they might be there a while."

"Hospital?" Hikel replied. When thinking about it, the leaders thought there weren't many reasons for a vampire to be at the hospital, or both parents for a long time. In their mind it was quite obvious the reason, they had to be having another child.

This only spurred them to get on the family's good side even sooner. If they had created one miracle child, perhaps there was a chance another one was on the way.

Chapter 2068 Pick A Name (Part 1)

The situation was one of the most tense that Quinn had ever suffered in his entire lifetime, and that was a lot when someone of his calibre was saying this. Saving the world, fighting an 8 spiked Dalki, for some reason none of those were giving him the same feelings as he had now.

Currently, Quinn was in the hospital waiting just outside of the delivery suite. Here he could see that he wasn't the only one that was nervous, there were a lot of soon to be fathers that were restless.

Biting their nails, shaking their knees up and down, some even looked to be asleep. Which for a vampire meant they had to be completely exhausted, and Quinn was one of the many nervous fathers.

For him, he was pacing back and forth. He was doing so at such a fast speed that some of the vampires watching him were thinking he was running. It wouldn't have seemed so odd as they had seen others do this, but for Quinn, he was doing it at such a speed they would believe he would tire sooner or later but he still was going at the same pace as before.

'What if something goes wrong? That happens to humans right, so it means it can happen to vampires. Just because vampires are stronger, doesn't mean they can give birth easier!' Quinn was panicking in his mind. 'This is the first time for Layla as well, I bet she's worried sick that I'm not with her. Why can't I be in the delivery room as well?

'I mean, I have absolute blood control, maybe I could use my powers to help deliver the baby or something?'

It was a strange thought with a strange imagery appearing in his head, but right now his mind was a mess.

'I shouldn't think like this, if I think bad things, then bad things will happen. Everything will be okay, everything will be okay, so why is it taking so long!' Quinn thought.

Just then, the sound of the double doors were heard opening, many of them expected a midwife, a nurse or maybe a doctor to come walking in, but when they saw that it was neither, they quickly continued doing whatever it was that calmed them down, this was the same for Quinn, until he did a second take and raised his head again.

"Minny!" Quinn said.

"Daddy!" Minny came running over, and jumped up into Quinn's arms. "Is it Mummy, is she having a baby? Is she finally having the baby? Does this mean I have a new brother and sister, where are they, where is she?"

"Mummy is currently in the hospital, we just have to wait here for now." Quinn answered. "Soon we can see her, and our new family member."

Looking up, Quinn was looking at the person who had entered with her, because Minny hadn't entered on her own. Honestly, he hated to admit it, but he had somewhat forgotten about Minny.

Originally, the plan was that Layla was going to pick her up, but he had rushed to the hospital as soon as he heard the news. He didn't even know what the time was, but now she was here and she had come along with Edvard.

"It was a good guess." Edvard said. "Ronkin reported you were out, so I assumed you were here for this reason."

Edvard didn't go further into explaining. The truth was they were trying to get in contact with Quinn which was why they had contacted Ronkin in the first place. There was a lot to tell him about Minny, but on a big day like this, and already with a lot of worry on one's mind, Edvard didn't want to upset him.

"I'll let you be a family man for the day." Edvard said. "This is not my place to be here."

With that Edvard left. Minny and Quinn stayed together and with her now with him, he decided to sit down. It was good for his legs and everyone else in the room who were sick of looking at him. When one was really nervous, it just made the rest even more nervous.

Because Quinn sweating was something that Minny hardly ever saw, she saw it as a sign she should be quiet. Her wounds were already healed up and just like Edvard, she didn't want to worry her father, especially since there was nothing for him to worry about... yet.

The doors had opened a few times, with midwives coming out, and calling out family names, but Quinn hadn't heard his. This was making him more anxious than ever... until finally.

"Layla Balen?" A midwife called out, looking at her tablet, when she looked up she jumped back as there was someone right in front of her.

"I'm here!" Quinn answered.

"Your wife, and your new child are ready to see you now, everything went well."

Those words were relief to his ears, and looking at Minny as he held her hand, he smiled. The three walked down the hallway until they reached the right room. The midwife pushed the door open, allowing Quinn to walk in first and there they could see it.

Layla was lying there on a hospital bed, she looked tired, and slightly paler than usual. Her horns weren't covered up this time, it looked like her hat had been ripped to shreds for some reason.

"Quinn, Minny come here, come quick!" Layla said as she saw them.

Rushing over, Quinn hopped Minny onto the corner of the bed, while they both looked at the baby that had been cleaned and was wrapped up in a blanket.

"Say hello to your brother, Minny!" Layla said.

Minny went close to the baby, and she held out her hand, before she knew it, the baby started to reach out and grab onto it.

"He's so cute!!!" Minny almost squealed, she felt like she was about to faint from cuteness overload. "And he's so small, why is he so small?"

"He is really small. I never knew baby's were this small." Quinn commented. "Is he okay, there's nothing wrong with him right? Like more toes, wings or anything like that?"

When looking at him, he had small amounts of curly black hair, his eyes, as they opened, were a red colour.

"Your boy is a special one." The midwife said. "From what we can tell, he's just a vampire. I know Mrs. Balen was a subclass, but none of the traits seemed to have passed on. However, when a newborn baby vampire is born, usually their eyes don't glow red like that straight away.

"They are faint, and only get their colour after a week or so."

Looking closer, Quinn could see it, the baby, no... his own son, was looking directly at him, with such beautiful glowing red eyes. Not only that, rather than an odd blank look, they were quite clear, almost as if the baby really could see him.

"I guess, even vampire baby's can't walk." Quinn smiled and chuckled, and for the first time in a long time, Quinn felt a well of emotions come out, and tears were rolling down his face.

"Dad... why are you sad?" Minny asked. "Did you want a girl instead of a boy?"

"No, it's not that." Quinn replied. "I'm just so happy. With the war going on, the troubles that we have had as a family, I just never thought a normal life was possible. Until I met you two beautiful girls.

"Thank you so much for giving me this life. I now really understand why you didn't want to mess it up."

For a while, all three of them just continued to stare at the baby, as they attempted to talk and make hand gestures. It was the most peaceful the family ever felt.

At the same time, in the celestial space, Mundus had been given word of something.

"That's certainly strange? But didn't we have a promise?"

...

"I understand, but if we break our word with one, then it will mean our words will mean nothing with the others. It could very well destroy the relations between us and all of the other celestials." Mundus stated.

"....."

"Thank you." Mundus replied. "But, I will look into the matter."

"Have you thought about it?" Layla asked, as the baby was finally peacefully sleeping away.

"You mean a name?" Quinn replied. "Yeah... I have."

MY VAMPIRE SYSTEM

Chapter 2069 Pick A Name (Part 2)

For a long time, Quinn had been thinking of a name. It was important, it was what he would call his own flesh and blood that he and Layla had come together to create, and would be an addition to the Talen family.

When thinking of names, he didn't want something too common, he didn't want something too old either. He wanted something that wasn't commonly used a lot, but that also had some type of meaning.

"Quinn, it's okay." Layla said. "If it was a girl, I honestly wanted to name her after my mother. I never got to connect with her, and I thought maybe it would be a way for me to connect with her, but since it's a boy, I will give all the power to you."

"Really!" Minny shouted out. "Even if he picks something stupid like Buinn?"

Layla didn't say anything, but she was praying to anyone out there that he wouldn't be as ridiculous as Buinn. Due to the worry that was placed in her mind by Minny, she decided to make a few suggestions of her own.

"What if you picked someone who meant a lot to you. Someone that's no longer around?" Layla suggested. "There was Arthur. I know there was a strange period between you two, but in the end, he gave you everything that he could to help you, that helped you in all of this."

"Arthur?" Quinn repeated.

It was a name that was strong and had been given to many great people in the past. On top of that, it wasn't a name that was used too often, but something just didn't sit right with Quinn.

"I did think about that, Arthur, Leo, or Nate. To honour them, and not forget them, I thought about naming our child like that, but in some way, I feel like giving their names to our child is slightly wrong.

"They were great people, all of them did great things and are names that I will remember forever. I don't want their names to be lessened or remembered differently in any way. And, how could I pick one person over the other? I promise to all those that did help me, that one day I will do something to honour them all."

The struggle continued in Quinn's mind, as for some reason his head kept going to names beginning with the letter B.

"I have a suggestion!" Minny said with a smile. Since Quinn couldn't really think of anything, he was happy to hear it.

"Okay, well it was a word that we learned today in school. Galen!" Minny suggested. "It's meant to mean Calm, peaceful or healer, and I think Galen matches our family name as well."

"Galen Talen?" Layla repeated. "It certainly has a ring to it. I think it's a good suggestion. What do you think?"

When thinking of the name, Quinn started to think of the system. There was a quest on there, one that had been on there for a while now that still hadn't been completed. Find out the truth about the Talen family?

After discovering his great ancestor Ray, he thought it would be over, yet it still continued.

'I remember what that woman, Bliss said as well. There is something special about the Talen family. Maybe there is a reason why strange things happen around us.'

"I think it's a good name, Galen." Quinn said, rubbing his son's cheek. "I hope this name means that during your time it will be peaceful, and I wish that you live a peaceful life, and bring peace to us as well."

"Well, now that you've gone and said that, it means you've just jinxed us all." Layla said and the whole family began to laugh together.

After a few hours, and a few final checks were made on both Layla as well as the newborn, at the same time the official name was registered into the settlement's database.

Seeing Balen instead of Talen, did upset Quin a little, but it would have to do for now. What had come to a surprise for Quinn, was the fact that the hospital stated that they were free to go.

According to them, the vampire baby was fine, and it would continue to do fine. There was no need for the hospital to take care of the baby for a while longer.

'I guess vampire babies are stronger than human babies.' Quinn said, as he was holding onto Galen at the moment. He lifted him in the air slightly to take another look at him.

"And you're definitely just a normal vampire, right?" Quinn asked, as if the baby could reply, but it said nothing.

In the end, after the school event had been completed, the students were originally meant to hear the results of who had been scouted, and by what family. However, due to them not being able to get in touch with a certain someone, they had decided to leave it for now until all matters were resolved.

Which was why Edvard had ended up taking Minny to the hospital, which also meant that all of the leaders were on their way home.

In the 6th family castle, Magnus had finally arrived back. The door closed behind him as he stood on a piece of the ground that lit up, slamming the door shut.

Now alone to himself, he couldn't help but smile.

'That small vampire was certainly an impressive one. It would be nice if she was to join my side, but it matters not if she doesn't. The other two boys were equally as good for what I need them for anyway.' Magnus thought

His staff, as usual, greeted him as he was on his way, but he wasn't heading to the throne, or to the top floor where his sleeping chamber resided, instead he was heading to another location.freewebnovel.com

An area that he had built himself, something that he had finished just recently. Eventually, Magnus came to a large double arched door. It was around 4 metres in height and had a circular lock.

He spun the combination until it clicked and the door began to open on its own. As he walked through the door, several circles lit up, but they did nothing, because they were made by his own ability.

They were traps that he had set up for anyone that would attempt to come into the place. His ability was strong, and when a trap was set up, it was placed there permanently.

It was one of the things that made Magnus so dangerous when it came to war. With plenty of preparation, he was a hard person to get a hold of.

After going through the special door and his traps, Magnus started to head down a staircase. In the past, the tombs of the old vampire leaders were placed under each castle, but now they were all kept with Jim Eno.

Still, Magnus wanted to use the space for something else anyway.

'Who would have thought... After being put into Eternal slumber, I thought I would never get woken up. Yet here I am once again.' Magnus smiled.

Eventually reaching the bottom, the place was pitch black until Magnus snapped his fingers and crystals started to light up. It lit up the dark large empty space which was a carefully crafted walkway, which eventually led to what could only be described as a statue.

Magnus stood right in front of the statue as he looked up.

"You have guided me in the past, so I will ask you to guide me once more."

The large statue that Magnus was talking to, it was made out of completely black substance. It was large in size, in the centre was a carefully crafted eye that had red centred around the iris, then on top of it, there were two large wings.

"Immortui, tell me what you need me to do!" Magnus knelt down on his knees, and continued to pray, and soon, the statue started to light up slightly, and a connection was made with the other plane.

Chapter 2070 Leaders Or Beggars

It was still their first day with Galen, and many things had been set up at home already. For a while now, they had been preparing a space in their room for him to sleep in. Minny actually also slept in the same room as well but was promised that she would soon get her own room.

However, it didn't even seem like she was actually bothered about her own room, and preferred being in the same place as everyone else, to the point where she had even requested that the whole family would sleep together.

'I wonder if Minny is worried that we will start forgetting about her, now that we have Galen. Either way, me and Layla need to make sure that we don't neglect and forget about her. I'm sure looking after a child is hard, but when you're a superhuman who can do things ten times faster, then it shouldn't be a problem, besides I'm a quick learner.'

In some ways, Quinn was excited to experience life as a father. He couldn't remember much of what his own father and mother had done for him growing up. At the age where he could remember few memories, he just remembered them leaving to go and join the war.

In some ways, Quinn just wanted his father or mother to be there. He had done all of this, for those around him, including his friends. Yet, there was no one quite there to say he had done a good job, to guide him, or to tell him what he was doing was right or wrong.

With Galen, Quinn wanted to be the one there for him, and stay by his side.

"Yay, we're finally Ho- " Minny had paused midway through her sentence and slowed down. When Quinn and Layla caught up, they soon understood why, and the wrinkles on Quinn's forehead soon appeared, as he was ready to go into fight mode.

'What is this...why....are the family leaders? Why are the original leaders waiting right outside my doorstep!' Quinn thought.

It wasn't just Edvard and Grenlet, who were also present, but it was every family leader that existed, including Magnus, who Quinn had recently learnt to look out for.

'Did they find out my secret? Did they find out about Layla or Minny? Are they all here, to try and take me out? Right, when our child is born?'

Seeing the look on Quinn's face, Edvard was quickly shaking his head. Making it clear that it wasn't the case here at all.

"Congratulations on a new child!" Grenlet said. "Today certainly is a joyous occasion, don't you think? Today we discovered the talents of Minny Balen and I'm sure that this new child will grow up to be just as talented as her."

Grenlet was trying his best to give hints about the situation, but the problem was Quinn, nor Layla had any context of what was going on, and the first one to figure this out, wasn't Edvard or Greenlet, but Hikel.

"It appears that Minny has yet to tell you the good news?" Hikel asked.

"Good news?" Layla repeated as she looked down, but instead of being happy or proud, Minny was grabbing onto Quinn's leg and attempting to hide behind it.

In the end, Hikel went on to explain what had occurred at the school today. The big event and what Minny had managed to accomplish. He went into quite the detail as to how well she had done, and explanation of her powers.

In a way, both Quinn and Layla found it hard to be upset with her, and they were just thankful that Minny didn't transform into her celestial form, or use her shadow powers.

After the tale had ended, Bianca then went on to clear her throat and step forward.

"As explained, the event was to allow the students and honorary position of becoming our direct disciple. They wouldn't have to join our family, but will be taught everything that we know, and form a disciple and master like bond."

Seeing Bianca being one of the first leaders to express their interest, soon the others had moved in as well doing the same.

"I believe our family's ability will suit her best, and she will become one of the strongest vampires there is."

"Your home, it's too small now that you have a new child. If you agree to allow Minny to join us, we will provide you with a manor inside the family quarters and increase your wage by double."

All of the leaders were using their positions and powers to try and convince Quinn. They were speaking so fast that Edvard and Grenlet didn't even have a chance to make their offers.

At first Quinn was worried that the leaders were here to attack him, and yet here they were begging him, and almost grovling at his feet. What did they see in Minny that had attracted them so much?

"Wait!" Quinn said. "All of you are talking at once that I can't even understand what's going on. If I am to understand correctly, each one of you wants Minny to be your disciple, correct, and I guess you are saying that I have to decide?"

Quinn looked back at Layla who somewhat shrugged her shoulders. She didn't know what was the best thing to do in this situation. Picking Edvard would perhaps be the simplest way to resolve the matter, but for some reason she felt like Quinn didn't want to do that either.

"Minny, has her own life to lead." Quinn said, rubbing her hair. "At the end of the day, the decision is up to her."

Minny looked at all the leaders, the way they were acting was scaring her a little, and then looked up at Quinn before asking her a question.

"If I become their disciple, does that mean that I will spend less time with the family, and less time with dad?" Minny asked.

"Most likely." Quinn replied.

"Then I don't want to. I don't want to become any of their disciples!" Minny shouted.

The leaders almost let out an audible gasp as they heard this.

"Little girl!" Bianca said. "Don't you understand? There are vampires that would do anything to be taught by one of us, this is a great privilege."

"For you more so than her it seems like," Quinn replied. "You heard my daughter, she doesn't wish to, and my decision is the same as hers."

The initial shock that the original vampire leaders were experiencing was starting to turn into anger. They were rejected, and not a single one of them was picked.

They could understand the child not understanding the situation, but what about the father.

"Are you really not going to comply?" Magnus asked, stepping forward, and he wasn't being shy about the anger that was fueling him.

"I believe we let things slide a little because of our wish, but you have been treating us with a bit too much disrespect." Magnus stated.

A situation that somewhat Edvard was expecting, and he needed to calm things down, but the question was how? Sticking up for Quinn a bit too much in this situation would make things obvious.

At the same time, there was a reason why none of the other leaders had said anything because they agreed as well. Whether it was their greed for wanting the child on their side, or truly them believing they were above every vampire in the settlement, he wasn't quite so sure.

At that moment, both Grenlet and Edvard were thinking the same thing, they wondered if they didn't know Quinn's power, his situation, would they be acting the same way? If that was the case, it would have been a quick way for them all to get splattered.

"We can still solve this situation peacefully," Edvard said. "We are asking to take a family member away from him for a significant amount of time. No matter who we are, he has a right to be annoyed after refusing."

Edvard decided to speak out, either way, it was the best thing to do.

"Your right," Magnus said. "There is another way to solve this situation. As the Original vampires, and leaders of the settlement. You are to choose one of us to be your disciple or leave the settlement."

At the time, Quinn was still holding onto baby Galen, and he soon passed it on to Layla turning his back..

"Is that...a threat?" Quinn asked, his back facing away from the others.
