

Vile 841

Chapter 841 A Different Blend Of Evil

Lake Moonlight Death. A forest inside the city of New Beginnings.

The sun had just sunk below the horizon, painting the sky in shades of blue. The smell of wild forest and bird sounds created a serene atmosphere inside the region. It was as if an oasis had been summoned in the long stretch of marooned desert.

This was a rarely visited lake inside the city because of its innate blue radiance getting reflected from the lake's surface at night. The blue light would intensify as the night progressed. The chill in the air would be felt everywhere.

This blue radiance was known to induce a bone-freezing chill without the accumulation of ice. The dense vegetation in the surroundings was adapted to this natural phenomenon.

Plus, the cold was only fatal for mortals. Ace-ranked entities and higher would only feel slight discomfort.

The chill was beginning to set in as the sunset approached. For the couple who were wandering near the lake's bed, it was a pleasant atmosphere.

Eren and Kirin explored the city some more after their sumptuous meal. They talked about various topics at length throughout their exploration.

"Eren, why are you so determined to destroy House Slughorn? The answers you gave to Master Levine were quite ambiguous. I would like to know your motives if you are ready to share them with me."

Kirin asked Eren while walking beside him. He had put his right arm across her shoulders as they walked along the lake's bed, enjoying each other's company. Every time they spoke, their breaths would turn into smoke before dispersing into thin air.

The night was supposed to be pitch dark inside the lake. Yet the blue radiance of Lake Moonlight Death had made the idea of darkness alien to its viewers. The couple couldn't see or feel anyone in their vicinity.

Eren pursed his lips before replying honestly.

"Hmm. I'll be honest, Kirin. One of the reasons for me starting my potion manufacturing line was indeed to destroy House Slughorn. It started as some personal grudge that is not relevant anymore because I already settled my score.

But now I only want to destroy the clan and all that it holds dear so that I can finally move on. In my enemy's complete annihilation lies my ability to let go of my past. The destruction I cause is also my way of expressing my thirst for freedom."

Kirin listened intently to Eren's words. And it made sense to her.

She already knew that her husband was no poster child of benevolence. But she had found it odd nonetheless to see him rigid in his stance when it came to House Slughorn.

However, Eren's answer assured Kirin that he was not blindsided in his approach to dealing with his enemies. This was who he was as a person.

A ruthless ranker who didn't have any self-imposed boundaries. A hard-working potioner and inventor. A businessman with no moral restrictions. A vengeful demon who didn't entertain half-assery. A poet at heart who could write a book on romance, courtesy of the range of experiences he had gained.

An attentive student who knew how to make use of their teacher. A successful guild master who seems to have been doing everything by the book. A chronic planner who was also not afraid to take risks. And lastly, a giant iceberg floating in the deep waters kept a lot more hidden than it cared to show.

Eren had started developing myriad forms even before he created the Blood Seeds. He had his own blend of evil that was so much different from the rudimentary definition.

Even Agatha and Levine had come to realize that Eren's vengeance was never purely lethargic. He would integrate his benefits with his vengeful actions, allowing him to benefit from his enemies.

He could never be a selfless friend either. His favors often came with conditions.

Eren's destruction of House Slughorn was perfectly synchronized with the White Raven guild's prosperity. The butcher's machinations couldn't be solely labeled as virtuous or evil. His moves had various facets attached to them.

Kirin then asked Eren about various things. A lot were personal and some were about his plans for the future. The latter was as honest as he could be. He put forward his ideas and goals in a way that made sense, enabling Kirin to understand more about her husband.

Eren talked about his immediate plans in detail.

"Kirin, I want something from the Badlands for myself. The thing that Ror told me about. It will ensure the steady progress of my guild in my absence.

The successful completion of that mission will also serve as a way for us to initiate contact with the kingdom of Layos. Something I'm looking forward to.

However, I have many tasks lined up in front of me. And I don't have time to deal with them all at once. Thus, I will work on them through division of labor."

Kirin nodded at Eren's proposal immediately. She wanted to stay with him. Nevertheless, if her contribution could help the butcher in his work, she was ready to do so. She was a capable fighter herself and was not blinded by her emotions.

"You don't need to hesitate. What can I do to help?"

Eren welcomed Kirin's enthusiasm with a smile on his face. He spoke immediately.

"I will have to ask you to take care of that task of acquiring that thing from me from Badlands. Prepare for a few days. Then lead Kaal and a few trusted rankers under our control inside the Badlands.

Finding your way in the Badlands can be tricky. From the guild's officially submitted reports, it seems that Drin has already made contact with Bigua in his previous mission. So take him with you.

Locate Bigua's tribe and have Kaal take over it as its leader. Kill the chieftain and suppress the rebellion in any way you see fit."

Eren said casually as if he was talking about buying groceries. He had assigned a very significant task to Kirin. And she was very happy for him putting his trust in her. For a person who is control-crazy like him, this was a huge accomplishment.

"Do you have any more plans, Lord Husband? Plans for this evening, I mean."

Kirin asked coyly, stopping in her tracks. Eren stopped with her before turning to face her. His emerald green eyes shone with excitement as he replied to her question with a question of his own.

"I do. Are you curious?"

Chapter 842 A Walk In The Clouds*

An ethereal realm of white smoke.

A full moon that was somehow colored in shades of blue. The night's domain was just getting stronger as the clock was drawing close to midnight.

A platform made of clouds floating above the surface of Lake Moonlight Death. The white smoke also served as the staircase. It connected the lake bed to the platform in the air.

The smoke was the manifestation of Kirin's powers. It also had spatial properties, allowing Eren to stand on the cloud as if it was a tangible thing.

The surface of the smoke mingled with the innate moonlight radiance of the lake and created patches of bright blue shades. These blue spots would sometimes get diffused from one spot only to have their presence registered at another.

This cloud platform was floating over 200 meters from the surface of the lake. It provided a picturesque view of the lake as well as the forest region surrounding it.

The winds carried the scent of nocturnal freshness. A calm and serene freshness that was enough to relax anyone into a good night's sleep. However, for the couple, this night was bound to become a pleasantly restless one.

Eren found out that Kirin had disappeared from beside him when he tried to kiss her. And she was nowhere to be found even with his mana sense. He didn't use his soul sense because— that was not what this game was about.

The half-elf summoned this realm of clouds and hid within it. The butcher could only smile mirthlessly at her playfulness.

Lightning arced through the clouds as Eren started looking for Kirin. He appeared at various places over the cloud platform at the same time, making it feel as if the white clouds were turning into thunderclouds. The blue radiance would reveal itself wherever Eren stepped his foot over the clouds. Thus, his steps were traceable for a few moments before they were covered by the regeneration of the white smoke.

"Come out, come out wherever you are."

Eren said playfully as he searched for his wife. He would try to follow the faint footsteps Kirin would leave behind. The blue radiance of her footsteps however would only stay visible for a few moments before it disappeared into thin air.

Eren eventually came to realize that the traces of blue light Kirin left behind were misleading. She would control the white smoke and cloud formation and reshape them into traces of footsteps. She would allow the blue radiance to show itself, making Eren feel as if she had walked on the clouds not long ago.

"Well played."

Eren said to nobody in particular and laughed. He stopped and closed his eyes. Taking a long breath, he suddenly turned around and tried to embrace something that wasn't there.

"You... you cheated."

Kirin appeared in Eren's embrace out of thin air. She looked at him and said this in a complaining tone. Her expression told the butcher that she wasn't expecting to get caught this early.

"No. I just guessed based on your personality."

Eren smirked before caressing Kirin's back with his hands. His embrace provided her comfort. It gave her the warmth she didn't know she needed.

Eren lifted Kirin's face with her chin and looked her in the eyes. The lightning mana around him surged as his excitement grew. Eren's lightning and other elemental manifestations dispersed the white smoke that was rising over the couple's bodies.

The butcher kissed Kirin on her lips and embraced her tighter. The half-elf did the same and wrapped her arms around him.

"Hmmm!"

Kirin welcomed Eren's tongue in her mouth. She sucked on it as her body felt it was turning into the same smoke she was manifesting around her.

Eren felt like he had either lost his footing or the space around him had changed its orientation. He was standing a moment ago. But now he was sleeping on his back over something that felt as plush as the word plush could describe.

Kirin had pinned Eren down with her body weight. She had created a bed out of clouds and smoke and bent the space for them to get into their current position.

The smoke around the bed caught fire as a pair of fire snakes manifested. They climbed over the bed in no time before coming to their master's rescue.

Kirin was drowning Eren in her kisses and affection when she noticed the two snakes climb over her body. They started destroying the pink dress she was wearing with their breaths.

Kirin had to break her lip lock when the snakes' forked tongues started licking her inner thighs. She was too stunned and turned on by that sought-after intrusion to continue kissing Eren.

"Haah! I feel like I'm being molested by my wife."

Eren began dramatically gasping for breath. He had his hands pinned to his side by Kirin just a second ago. And he let them stay that way even after she released them from her grips.

"Hmph! I have seen your training with Alephee. You can endure a lot more than this."

"Kirin said unabashedly, kissing Eren on the cheek. She bit the tip of his nose and nibbled on his earlobes. Next, she bit his lower lips and licked his chin.

She felt a slight tingle on her tongue when she did. That was because Eren's lightning attainment inadvertently made itself known whenever she did that.

Eren had a blank face when he heard Kirin's reply. He felt like maybe he shouldn't have let Kirin see the bloody training that he often conducted on himself under Alephee's guidance. He didn't know his diligent work would get used against him one day.

The pill of regret would always be too bitter to swallow easily.

Kirin's pink dress was destroyed by the two snakes slowly and surely. They left her in her undergarments that she had recently bought. A white brassiere with pink petals embroidered over it. Her now-wet undies followed the same pattern.

Kirin finally released Eren's hands from her grip as she focused on his neck. He was getting kisses and hickies on his neckline from her.

The half-elf had her legs folded on either side. She was sitting just above his groin, feeling the bulge Eren had developed in the middle of her buns.

Eren knew why Kirin had released his arms and decided to put them to good use.

Chapter 843 Taking Charge*

"Hmmm!"

A peculiar symphony played by the restless fingers.

The suppressed moans were the keynotes in that ecstatic symphony. The air around the couple started having hints of sultriness as both the participants kept on getting bolder with their actions.

As Kirin felt Eren's touch on her body, dense clouds of white smoke converged over her body. She kissed and licked his exposed chest while feeling his hands massaging her mushy buns.

Eren kneaded Kirin's ass with both his hands. It was as soft as the word soft could connote. His finger sunk into the flesh as he pressed the buns to his heart's content.

Kirin's hair hindered Eren's vision when she got up and started kissing his forehead. While doing so, she raised her pelvis allowing Eren's hands to access her intimidating parts more thoroughly.

Eren's fingers were sent on an expedition as he felt Kirin's tongue in his mouth. The sounds of smooches were the only thing the couple could hear between them. However, they were soon replaced by Kirin's moans when Eren touched her dripping pussy.

She felt the fire Eren had invoked at the tip of his fingers, which burned one of the last pieces of the article she had on her. Eren's finger soon touched her vertical lips without any obstruction between them.

Eren's middle fingers got to work. He parted her labia and felt the inner folds. Gently massaging the clitoris, he inserted one of his index fingers inside her wet cave.

"You... you are moving too fast. Take... take things a bit slow."

Kirin prevented herself from getting up from her position when she first felt Eren's finger intruding on her vaginal opening. She wanted him to play with her now-puffed clitoris first.

"Hmm. I would, dear. But my current position is restricting my actions."

Eren traced Kirin's inner lips with his fingers. Her pussy juices had started flowing at this point, coating his fingers in a slimy substance. Something the butcher found to be ironic.

"All you have to do... issssssss... take... take charge."

Kirin whispers in Eren's ears. She allowed Eren's fingers to roam wherever they wanted to and made herself open to his advances.

Eren smirked. All the hasty actions he had been taking till now seemed deliberate. This was what he wanted to hear from her.

Four puddles of water were manifested around the couple in four cardinal directions. Four plants grew rapidly from the water and extended their vines. The couple rolled over and Eren got on top. Before she knew it, Kirin's limbs were stretched apart by the vines extending from the wood-element spells.

"You are mine."

Eren licked his lips devilishly before tugging at her brassiere. He yanked the underwear off of her and freed her ample breasts from their restrictions. From his point of view, this was also a form of self-expression.

He could now be called as a liberator of them heavies. A breaker of brassiere chains.

Kirin chuckled when she saw Eren looking at her boobs hungrily. She opened her arms and welcomed him. The micro hair follicles on her pink areola were excited as they felt a strange thing touch them and lick them.

Eren pressed and kneaded Kirin's right breast with his left hand. He sucked on her left nipple which had been swollen because of all the stimulation it had received. He licked and nibbled on the bud playfully before sucking it intermittently.

He stimulated her pink button downtown with his right hand. He rubbed his fingers over her inner folds and felt her pussy leaking some more juices. The half-elf would close her legs abruptly before spreading them wide apart in response to his intrusive and wildly stimulating touch.

Although she was restricted in her movements by the vines that wrapped around her wrists and ankles, she was able to express her ecstasy with her movements to some degree. She would have driven mad otherwise.

And yet, Kirin didn't want to free herself from the bounds she was subjected to. She let her husband have his freedom over her body, giving him full authority to do what he wanted.

Kirin was feeling a sense of pleasure and ecstasy she had never felt before. Every nook and cranny of her body was now hungry for his touch and welcomed it with enthusiasm. Her pleasure senses were overloaded when the butcher launched a multi-front offensive on her.

"Aaaah. Yesss."

Eren received the acknowledgement he had been looking forward to for his diligent work. These acknowledgments started piling up when he increased the intensity of his offense.

Eren took the other nipple in his mouth and sucked on it. He sent a fire snake to suck and nibble on the other nipple, which had gotten wet because of his saliva.

Eren felt the insides of Kirin's wet pussy with his two fingers as the pink walls wrapped around them. He increased his fingering speed slowly and consistently while stimulating her clitoris, keeping her on a constant high.

Kirin closed her eyes tight as she processed the wave of pleasure that reached new heights. She turned her head to her left with closed eyes and spread her legs. She lifted her pelvis using the folded legs and welcomed Eren's two fingers as they ran in and out of her dripping cunt.

"Oooooo!"

It was as if a dam had been broken. Kirin's pussy ejaculated an ample amount of love juices over Eren's fingers as they contracted before relaxing in the next moment. Kirin lowered her pelvis back on the bed when the first wave of her orgasm subsided.

Eren knew Kirin's private pink garden would need some time to recover from her first orgasm. Thus, he got his fingers out of her wet hole and rubbed her labia before kissing her on her lips.

The butcher then led beside her, indicating it was time for her to take charge once again.

"That... that was really good, Er... haah... Eren."

Kirin managed to blurt out a few words while catching her breath. However, her voice was coated in joy and excitement, indicating that the play was just beginning.

Chapter 844 "Could You Get Any Meaner?"*

A plush bed that was made of clouds and smoke.

A couple was having a staredown while lying on it.

Eren and Kirin both looked each other in the eyes. The two had turned to their sides, their heads resting on their folded arms. Verbal communication was not necessary. They talked with their gazes. They communicated by touching each other's bodies with their free hands.

Kirin had gotten rid of Eren's clothes with a touch of her hands. After staring at the little guy for a while, she looked at him with eager eyes. It was apparent that she was ready for the next stage.

Eren decided to make his move after allowing Kirin to get over her first orgasm. The lightning struck and the couple changed their positions. He got on top of her before continuing his advances.

He kissed Kirin and extended his tongue much more than usual. He grabbed her tits and firmly kneaded them while rubbing his manhood over her lady mound.

"Ummmm. Yesss."

Kirin mumbled in delight when Eren let go of her lips and focused on her neckline. He felt that she had a flavor of her own and smelled like sandalwood.

"Why are you so pretty, Kirin darling?"

Eren whispered in Kirin's ears, giving her compliments while devouring her. As he touched her body with his exploratory hands, he began whispering his sweet nothing in her ears.

Kirin couldn't respond to Eren's compliments in any way because of the waves of pleasure overwhelming her. As she began wrapping her arms around her husband or locking him into place with her legs, her body became restless.

"Eren... Eren..."

The half-elf started taking the name of her husband with her eyes closed. She felt his touch and let her body respond to it in its own way. She stopped caring about or commanding her actions and enjoyed the process with no distracting thoughts.

Eren moved downwards. He nibbled on her erect nipples once again before marching down south. He licked her belly and kissed her tummy before stopping at a volcano-like region on her bodily landscape.

Eren adjusted himself and tried to spread Kirin's legs. The bold half-elf suddenly opened her eyes. She looked down and hesitated for a bit before making up her mind.

"Lo... Lord husband, you need to remember the fact that I am 'uninitiated'. Don't... don't do anything too fancy for tonight. Okay?"

Kirin temporarily snapped out of her zone and turned to her partner. She made it clear that she wanted to keep things simple in this session. The butcher chuckled and nodded at her. He then spread her legs and sat down on her.

"Aaaah!"

Kirin's hesitation was blasted away into smithereens when she felt Eren's tongue on her clit. She arched her back and let her head fall back. With both her hands, she grabbed the back of the butcher's head and tried to separate it from its task. She thought that she would be overwhelmed by the feelings of lust. So much so that she worried about her well-being after tonight.

It was made clear to Kirin that receiving a nod from Eren was not enough. She felt like she should have signed a binding contract with her wretched husband. That's because he was doing exactly the opposite of giving her the vanilla experience that she had demanded from him.

The butcher had extended his tongue and licked the pink button with precision and speed. He would very lightly nibble on it before making a sucking motion, exciting it to new heights.

He also used his fingers in the play. With his flexible fingers, he stimulated her labia and inner folds. He inserted two fingers inside her wet cave while guiding his little finger up her rear entrance.

"You... aaaah... stop that... get it out from there!"

Kirin pleaded with her husband in a voice coated in ecstasy and a bit of distress. She didn't want her anal opening breached. However, he chuckled before responding playfully.

"Kekeke. I don't think I will."

The butcher began his tongue storm right away. Kirin's pussy started churning love juices with newfound vigor, exciting her to new heights.

Kirin rolled her eyes back as she crashed on the bed. The blue radiance was emitted from the surface of the bed when the clouds parted, allowing her body to sink deeper into the clouds than usual.

Eren enjoyed giving Kirin a lap-up. He drove his fingers in and out of her two openings, increasing their speeds gradually. The half-elf forgot Edinburgh's language and started mumbling in the Oni tongue. Her eyes shined bright and two horns threatened to appear on her forehead.

Eren paid close attention to Kirin's mumblings and understood some of them. She was basically cursing and praising him at the same time. She also wanted him to give her more than she could handle in the next moment.

The butcher chuckled in his head while continuing his task at hand. His tongue stretched more than usual and he inserted it right inside her cave hole. He tickled her clit with his other fingers while they were coated in the microcurrent of lightning mana.

"Aaaaaaaah!"

Kirin clutched her head using both her hands and closed her legs on Eren when the waves of pleasure hit a melting point. Her entire body shuddered as she came hard, with even more intensity than before.

An intense vaginal aroma entered Eren's nostrils as he enjoyed his face getting drenched in the love juices. He retracted his tongue as soon as she stopped shuddering.

Eren lifted his head and looked at Kirin playfully. He scrunched his nose when he didn't get the appreciation he deserved.

"Hey! Don't sleep on me. Look at this badge of honor for a job well done."

Eren pointed at his face that was shining under the moonlight. He slapped Kirin's thighs before pinching her skin a bit.

"Ouch."

Kirin was snapped out of her delirious state when Eren pinched her inner thighs. She rubbed the affected spot immediately before looking at the butcher with an unhappy expression.

"I... haah... I had told you to go slow, lord husband. Could... could you get any meaner than this?"

Chapter 845 Defloration*

"I... haah... I had told you to go slow, lord husband. Could... could you get any meaner than this?"

Kirin spoke in a dissatisfied tone. But there was also a hint of satisfaction and excitement hidden in it. Eren waved his hands before speaking up.

"Slow and fast are relative terms, my dear. And I know better than to listen to some of the suggestions that I know aren't the right ones. And yes, I can always be meaner than before. Kekeke."

Kirin pouted at Eren's response before disappearing from her position. The next thing Eren knew, he had his spatial awareness changed once again. He was lying on his back on the bed. Kirin had gotten on top of him.

Kirin kissed Eren fiercely this time. Her body wanted more from him. She traced his exposed chest and his deceptively muscular arms with her touch. She put her entire body weight on him, finding pleasure in putting pressure on him this way.

The half-elf bit Eren's lips. For some reason, two horns made of cloud and fire-element mana had jutted out from her forehead. Her body was trying to express its real racial identity through her elemental manifestation.

Eren smiled when he looked at the horns. He kept his appearance the same but allowed his two red Oni horns to grow from his forehead as well.

Kirin stopped kissing Eren when she felt something change about him. She lifted her face and looked at his two horns. The appearance of two horns put a smile on her face and she felt even more connected to him than before.

"You... you really know when to play a character, don't you?"

Kirin whispered in Eren's ear as she resumed her advances. The latter could detect her elevated mood in her voice and her actions. After exploring her exposed back, he grabbed her derriere.

He explored her butt crack and traced the rim of her rear entrance with his finger. By putting his hand between them, he accessed her lady part from the front. Kirin spread her legs a bit further and allowed him to penetrate both of her entrances.

"I... I want it."

Kirin looked Eren in the eye and said as clearly as she could. The butcher smirked before adjusting himself. He grabbed her waist from either side before guiding her pelvis downwards.

Kirin felt Eren's rod poking right at her wet hole. Her body shivered and her pussy walls contracted before expanding a bit. Her juices started dripping on Eren's dick even before it pierced the opening.

"It seems you are as ready as you could be."

Eren said in a deep voice and narrowed his eyes. He then allowed Kirin to lower her ass slowly. In the next moment, he smirked and lifted his pelvis. He sent his dick straight inside her wet hole, piercing it in one swift move. For some reason, he liked doing this to the uninitiated.

"Aaaaaah."

Kirin crashed on Eren's chest as she felt herself getting deflowered. Her eyes were watering a bit as she processed the maiden pain of her life.

Eren caressed the back of Kirin's head and did not move for a while. He lifted her face with both his hands and wiped the tears that were threatening to spill out of her eyes.

The butcher cupped her face and kissed Kirin's forehead. After a moment of silence, he smiled at her. Kirin wanted to criticize his actions. But then decided otherwise. She was also relieved that it was over so quickly.

Eren didn't wait for Kirin to speak. He felt her pussy's response around his dick and knew that the time was right. The pink petal box had been slowly adjusting to his dick's length and girth.

When the butcher started moving, blood began dripping from the vaginal walls. It ran along the dick's length and coated his balls before falling over the bed made of white clouds, painting it red.

Eren slowly started driving his dick in and out. Kirin gripped his shoulders and dug her nails into his skin as she felt his rod defiling her. Even when he deployed his mana defense layer, it didn't help. His blood also dripped out from his fresh wound and painted the clouds red. Blood for blood.

Eren smirked when he saw Kirin's condition. She had closed her eyes tight, not aware of what she was doing.

Eren ignored his recent light injuries and focused on fucking his wife well. He started increasing his pace while tickling her clit with his fingers.

Tap! Tap! Tap!

Kirin started feeling small quakes as Eren's strokes slammed against her ass. It jiggled and vibrated. The butcher also started slapping her buns from time to time as he excited her in various ways.

"Aaaaaah! Yesss..."

The half-elf started recovering from her state and opened her eyes. Eren's comprehensive actions brought waves of pleasure back into her consciousness.

"Yessss... yesss... oooh... yesss!"

Kirin straightened her back and started riding Eren's dick vigorously. She also started responding to Eren's strokes with her responsive actions. Her ass jiggled and the sound of flesh meeting flesh intensified.

Eren grabbed Kirin's titties as they started bouncing in front of his eyes with even more vigor. Her nipples were pinched as he pinched her boobies firmly while pounding her downtown.

Slowly but surely, he started increasing his dick's girth and length. However, Kirin only found his actions welcoming as she returned his strokes by ramming her ass over his dick.

Eren smirked and decided to tweak the position. The lightning struck and Kirin found herself facing the other way. The butcher started slapping and squashing the jiggling ass as soon as it came into his view.

Kirin experienced a higher state of pleasure just when she thought it couldn't get higher. She ran her fingers through her hair with one hand and pressed her boobs with the other as she felt Eren's rod redefining her pussy's inner sanctum.

"Aaaaaah!"

Kirin and Eren reached their orgasms at the same time after a while. The butcher emptied his balls deep inside her wet hole and felt his mind clear up. He also felt that Kirin's spatial attainments had been copied by him in the process.

Eren's hypothesis was right on the mark. His Sin Series Ability had advanced.

Chapter 846 Taken Over Cloud Nine*

"Aaaah!"

Kirin moaned when she felt Eren's dick inside her once more. She had gotten on her fours and he was hitting her from behind. The sessions had already lasted for more than four hours, allowing Kirin to get comfortable with the plays.

Eren slapped her buns with both his hands as he rammed his rod inside her. He received another moan in response, which made him repeat the process over and over.

He started teasing her puckered rear entrance with his fingers. Dipping the finger in her pussy juices, he sent it inside the anal opening and listened to Kirin's moans change in volume and intensity.

Eren pulled Kirin and made her stick her back to his chest. The latter was made to stand on her knees while getting railed by her husband from behind. She spread her legs some more to accommodate the dick that changed size and shape more than a chameleon changes its colors.

Kirin welcomed Eren's kisses and bites on her neck. She became even more ecstatic when she felt his hands cupping her boobs from behind and pressing them firmly. Soon, she felt fire snakes covering her body and biting and licking her in different places. Her clit, inner folds of her pussy, and inner thighs weren't spared either.

Eren decided to spice things up some more after he was sure that the right environment had been created. He pulled his dick out and started rubbing it against Kirin's butt crack. The latter was taken aback by his move at first and stopped moaning.

"What... what's the matter?"

Kirin asked in the Oni tongue. The latter smiled gently before placing the tip of his cock right at her backdoor entrance. Kirin was about to open her mouth to register her hesitation. But her lips were sealed when Eren kissed them. He kept on pressing her tits with one hand while his other hand started playing with the light pubes she had. He then rubbed his fingers inside the inner folds of her pussy, making it drip some more pussy juices.

Eren slowly started pushing his dick inside Kirin. He made her sleep on her tummy and slept flat on her before driving his dick inside her.

"Ooooooh!"

Kirin felt a mixture of feelings at this point. But the feelings of pleasure were the most dominant among them. The butcher also made use of his Ability to generate Mist of Lust. He did not intend to brand her. He just wanted her to experience her elevated levels of lust and pleasure.

As a result, Kirin felt like she had been taken over cloud nine, which was as literal as it was metaphorical. She propped her ass and welcomed Eren's thrusts actively. She assumed a comfortable position that allowed her to also kiss him.

Eren also felt like his dick had been wrapped tightly by flesh walls made of lava. Kirin's ass cushioned his thrusts and made it even more pleasant for him.

Tap! Tap! Tap!

Eren continued his pounding for a considerable time before releasing his load deep into Kirin's anal passage. Kirin was made to come at the same time, thanks to his hands and fire snakes staying hard at their work.

Eren crashed on the bed beside her. Kirin was too out of her normal senses to say anything to him. She just looked at him and smiled, placing her hand over his chest. She soon drew near to him and placed her head over his chest. She listened to his elevated heartbeats before speaking up.

"Lord Husband, I think I'll never be able to get enough of this."

Eren smiled sardonically and caressed the back of Kirin's head. He played with her golden hair and tickled her ears before responding.

"The feeling is mutual, my dear. Just... just give me some time."

It was not an easy task keeping up with someone of Expert Ranker's caliber. Eren felt like he should use potions to speed up his recovery. But then he decided against it, treating exhaustion as a part of the process and not a negative outcome.

Plus, he didn't like to get addicted to the potions he created for mass addiction. The mortals who sell sugar would not consume it in their diets.

The couple continued their sessions for hours on end after that. Eventually, they stopped when the first light of the day was about to break on the horizon.

The couple got changed into new sets of clothes. They were about to leave the city of New Beginnings. Kirin had decided to follow Eren's plan of conquering Bigua's tribe. Eren was en route to visit the army base he was assigned to after leaving the city. He planned to sign up for the exit mission and be done with it.

All so that he could move on to doing his work, without the potential army responsibilities holding him down. He was especially not interested in being part of the army now that the war was drawing close.

He had already contacted Arjun, Lyon, and Dianna before coming to the city. They had decided to meet him at the army base as well.

"Hm? What is that?"

Eren was about to descend from the cloud platform in one swift jump. But he noticed there was a blue-scaled fish in the lake that gave off a distinct presence. It looked like a salmon except for the fact that it had a horn over its head and was much larger.

This fish was about a meter long and had a very petite frame. It appeared very attractive when it stood still. And it looked graceful when it swam around in the water. It looked like it was waiting for the first ray of the daybreak to hit the lake water before submerging into the lake bed once again.

The fish seemed to have a mana body yet it felt like it had the mana signatures of a real organism. It was the first time Eren had seen anything like this. So he looked at Kirin. She felt like she was trying to remember something about this kind of organism from her memories related to the continent of Echidna. But for now, she was clueless.

"It's what they call nature's blessing, Eren. A conscious fragment of water elemental attainment."

Chapter 847 A Conscious Fragment Of Elemental Attainment

"It's what they call nature's blessing, Eren. A conscious fragment of water elemental attainment."

Alephee appeared beside Eren and spoke. She looked at the swimming fish with keen eyes. It was obvious she wanted to catch it.

This fish had fins that shined with various colors. The blue eyes it had were like diamonds with a brilliance of their own.

Eren was shocked by the fish's presence because it felt extremely strong and weak to him at the same time.

"Aaaah!"

Kirin was taken aback when Alephee appeared on Eren's other side. She was more surprised by the realization that Alephee was a witness to her intimate moments with Eren.

Eren and Alephee both looked at each other and laughed when they realized what Kirin was thinking about through their soul senses. The homunculus cleared her throat before speaking up in a playful tone.

"Don't worry, Kirin. I don't try to peek or disturb him when he is busy with his... let's say personal matters. I know where to draw the line even while being inside his personal space."

Alephee then looked at Eren before telling him.

"I'll tell you about this later on. First, we need to catch the fragment, lest it gets away. Kirin is not compatible with it. But it would help you a lot."

Alephee said before jumping down from the cloud platform. She landed safely over water without creating ripples. She raised her hand in the fish's direction before casting her time-element spell.

The water around the fish stopped moving. Alephee raised her hand and separated a rectangular mass of still water from the lake that contained the fish inside. It looked like the job was done. But she knew this was not enough to catch the fragment.

"Eren!"

Alephee yelled at Eren as she felt there was an anomaly getting created in her spell. She watched with a stressed expression as the mass of water she had separated from the lake started disintegrating.

The rectangular mass of still water started developing ice-like cracks. When the water from the rectangular mass was separated and rejoined the lake, it turned into a shapeless form of ice.

"Coming."

Eren saw the phenomenon with his own eyes and decided to respond. Two Wind-Fire Wings sprouted from his back as he jumped down the cloud platform. Kirin dispelled the platform and created a miniature white nimbus beneath her feet. She followed Eren using the dense mass of flying clouds she created for herself.

The fish managed to break free from Alephee's spell. It didn't cast any spell. But the water beneath Alephee's feet suddenly changed shape. A bunch of Aqua Chains sprouted from the lake surface and shackled the homunculus in no time.

Alephee suddenly turned weak when the Water Chains wrapped around her body. The Chains didn't try to hurt her. But they managed to incapacitate her without the fish seemingly taking any effort.

The fish seemed to be non-violent. But that didn't mean it would be easily captured. Now it was just Eren and Alephee chasing after it as it swam in the waters with such ease.

"Don't hold back. You can't hurt it. Try to capture it using your spells. Or use your water attainments to lure it towards you."

Alephee yelled as she watched Eren and Kirin charging after her. It was clear that she was unable to get out of her restrictions anytime soon.

Kirin charged ahead. She altered the space around the fish. She tried to create a spatial wall around the fish. But she too couldn't keep the fish contained for too long. It would either use its unique powers to disintegrate the spell or go around the walls so fast that Kirin wouldn't be able to keep up.

Igni Chains

Wind-Fire Shards

Eren took over Kirin and bombarded the fish with his attacks. This fire-element spell created chains made of fire-element mana, enabling him to bind his opponents and subject them to DoT while being restricted.

The Igni Chains sprouted from thin air. He held one Igni Chain in each hand and extended them toward the escaping blue fish. However, he soon found out that his fire-element attacks were not effective at all even though the fish was supposed to have a water element attainment and magic.

The Igni Chains disappeared as soon as they touched the fish. They lost all the heat they had and dispersed the fire-element mana they had in them.

'What the...'

Eren was surprised by the fish's nimbleness and its unique powers. The fact that it could incapacitate Alephee spoke volumes about how extraordinary it was.

Eren and Kirin tried their best to capture the fish using various means. Alephee freed herself after some time and attempted to do the same. Despite their efforts, none of them were able to stop the fragment in any way.

Dawn broke over the lake, and the first light of the day began to illuminate the water. The blue fish's horn started growing when that happened as if being recharged by the sun's rays.

"Eren, the fragment is going to disappear soon. And we won't be able to catch it after today."

Alephee warned Eren about the possibility of this unique existence escaping from their clutches. He narrowed his eyes before deciding to fight water with water.

Aqua Wall

Aqua Whips

Aqua Blades

Eren cast his water-element spells to see how the blue fish dealt with his spells. He first created a giant water wall made of the lake's water. He then used the Aqua Whips which was a vine-like rope made of water-element mana. It was thick and as thick as a boa snake.

Lastly, he used Aqua Blades that were about 5 meters in length and sharp. They had a crescent-moon shape and reflected the light of the daybreak on their surfaces. Since Alephee had said that he didn't need to hold back dealing with the fish, that's exactly what he did.

Eren had digested a lot of water-element attainments from various rankers. He also developed an affinity for the element ice, courtesy of mating with Lensa. As a result, the spells that contained his water-element mana and his attainments had various facets attached to them.

The blue-horned fish was finally tempted to have something for itself and stopped in its tracks.

Chapter 848 Spirit Beast Birthed By World's Will

The blue-scaled fish was attracted to the manifestation of Eren's water-element spells. It started swimming toward them without any fear for its well-being.

The fish aligned its horn to face the blades of water approaching it at a critical speed. In the next moment, however, the blades crumbled and an abstract concept was separated from them. The blue-scaled fish's horn shone in bright blue as it opened its mouth and absorbed the concept.

The same thing happened with Eren's Aqua Whips. They lost their shape and turned into normal water when they approached the fish. The water returned to the lake while Eren's elemental essence was absorbed by the fish.

Eren and Kirin both looked at each other when the phenomenon took place in front of their eyes. Since the fish had the power to shake the very building block of the spell, they weren't sure what they could do to catch it.

"Use your water-element spells, Eren."

Alephee appeared beside Eren and commanded. The latter pursed his lips before nodding. He started casting random water-element spells that he had learned recently.

The blue-scaled fish started absorbing the concepts hidden in Eren's spells. Kirin had also tried casting some water-element spells she knew. However, her elemental attainment in the water was not as profound and divergent as Eren's. As a result, the blue-scaled fish ignored the spells cast by Kirin.

Under Alephee's guidance, Eren managed to reach the fish while it was busy consuming the concepts in his spells. The butcher was finally able to catch the fish in both his hands after a few minutes of waiting.

Eren lifted the fish in both his hands and it started levitating in the air. It had stopped its attempt to escape from him. It did not try to dive back into the depths of the lake either. It just stayed floating in the air, its eyes looking at Eren with curiosity.

"You had already touched it and your mana signature had seeped into it. It won't run anymore."

Alephee stood in front of Eren and spoke while looking at the blue-scaled fish with keen eyes. Kirin also appeared beside Eren and asked the homunculus.

"What kind of creature is this, Alephee?"

Alephee looked at the couple and smiled. She pointed at the lake bed and gestured to them to leave the place. She was looking for a safe place.

Eren didn't have to carry the fish with him. It followed behind him as if it was swimming in the air. He also found out that the air around the fish rippled like water when it was following him. It meant that the creature was changing the normal behavior of wind with its unique powers.

The trio soon found a safe space beneath the base of a small cliff. They were at the edge of the forest surrounding Lake Moonlight Death. A safe place to carry out the discussion.

Alephee ensured that there was no higher-ranked entity in the vicinity before speaking up.

"As I said, this is the conscious fragment of elemental attainment. The fraction of the element that was naturally infused with life by the world's will.

Either consciously or subconsciously, it is created by the world's will. This is a rare find, Eren. Not something you can find even after spending all the wealth you have accumulated.

Frankly, I'm surprised the continent of Anfang could nurture creatures like this."

Eren and Kirin were both taken aback a bit by the preciousness of the creature. They knew that the blue-scaled fish was a rare find. They just didn't think that it would be so expensive if Eren's current wealth was not enough to claim it.

"Damn. What are we supposed to do with it?"

Eren asked casually. He wasn't interested in pretty things, no matter how valuable the fish was. In fact, he was interested in the powers it had over water-element spells. He wondered if he could absorb them using his Abilities.

Alephee didn't take long to answer.

"This blue-scaled fish represents the way of the water. Especially the chilling Aspect of the element. I guess the reason the region surrounding Lake Moonlight Death was so inexplicably cold and surrounded by blue luminance was because of this fragment."

Eren raised his eyebrows when he heard Alephee speak. He soon came to realize that his first night with Kirin had produced some unexpected results.

"That is indeed interesting. So this little fellow was causing so much trouble for the mortals and Novice rankers and claiming some of their lives."

Alephee nodded at him. She also wanted to correct his point of view about the fragment a bit.

"This fragment would never intentionally harm any living being. You saw its disposition. The Aspect of water it represents was manifested in the surrounding region and created the atmosphere around Lake Moonlight Death.

Eren, you guessed it right. When you sync with the fragment, your elemental attainment in that element increases quickly. You will instantly gain an Aspect in the water element when you do that. You would also strengthen your Way of the Water.

So long as you are on the continent of Anfang, your water-element attainment will rise at an alarming rate. A passive gain that doesn't need any effort from your end.

Absorbing the creature and making it a part of you won't increase your ranking status. But your water-element attainment would catch up with your wind, fire, and lightning attainments. Or perhaps even exceed them."

Eren wore a bright smile on his face as he discussed the benefits of absorbing the conscious fragment of the elemental attainment. He was even more eager to be done with the whole process now. But there were a few more questions in his head regarding the creature.

"How was this creature made, Alephee? What are the origins behind this being? Because I never heard something like this."

Alephee looked at Eren and smirked before responding.

"Remember the Spirit Beast program Arjun was telling you about? Those are the fake spirit beasts created from splitting one's soul and consciousness.

This... This right here is the real deal. A bonafide spirit beast that is created by the world's will itself."

Chapter 849 Demons Beast Origins And Demon Continent

"This... this right here is the real deal. A bonafide spirit beast that is created by the world's will itself."

Folding her arms under her chest, Alephee spoke. Various thoughts popped into Eren's head when he heard her explanation. All of them started cluttering his brain. He couldn't help asking her the most pertinent thing he could think of at the time.

"A naturally occurring spirit beast? I thought that the concept of Spirit Beast was an alchemic invention. Something that was invented to serve as a replacement for the demon beasts.

Do you mean there are spirit beast users on the continent of Anfang as well?

Frankly, what are the differences between a normal mana beast, a demon beast, and a spirit beast?"

Kirin's eyes narrowed when she heard the term Spirit beast from Alephee. She recalled some memories from her inherited memories of the continent of Echidna.

Kirin recalled that the Spirit beast existed on the continent of Echidna. And they were relatively in abundance compared to the continent of Anfang.

The continent of Echidna did not have any demon beasts at all. The demon beasts were exclusive to Anfang and did not exist in her world.

Alephee pondered a bit over Eren's questions. She could also understand what Kirin was thinking. She looked around and decided to clear the air.

A stressed expression was on the homunculus's face as she created her unique time-element barrier. The time inside the domain almost slowed down to a halt. Even Eren and Alephee could only keep their consciousness working for them inside the barrier. They lost their ability to move even an inch of their bodies.

It was clear that Alephee was having a hard time maintaining the spell. However, she ignored the stress she was feeling and spoke up.

"This vessel allows me some liberty to use my powers. But I won't be able to use this anytime soon. So listen carefully.

The distinction between the beasts is simple. It just looks complicated because nobody on Anfang knows much about these things.

The mana beasts were once mortal beasts that learned to harness the mana over time. We'll refer to them as normally evolved beasts that had their origins rooted in the existence of the world. They have genetic ancestry and are produced normally.

The naturally occurring spirit beasts are just some vague elemental concepts getting paired with a fraction of the world's consciousness and occupying mana bodies as vessels. They are being birthed by the world's will and hence can be called nature's progeny.

They don't have any genetic roots. They also do not have organic bodies.

One can't really kill the spirit beasts. They can't die unless the world that births them dies first."

Eren and Kirin could not reply verbally or through actions. But Alephee understood they were telling her to continue her explanation, so taking a deep breath, she did just that.

"Now for the demon beasts. Eren, I know you wanted to know about their origins the most and used this opportunity to ask me just that."

Alephee managed to crack a smile with creases on her head before continuing.

"Never mind. I guess this is a good time to do it.

Demon beasts are what you might call creatures of otherworldly origin. The establishments of Anfang are wary of them because of such origins."

Eren realized that he could now blink his eyelids. The effects of Alephee's barrier were fading. The butcher realized that this was a rare opportunity to learn more about some of the darkest secrets of Anfang. So he blinked his eyes vigorously, knowing full well Alephee would know what he was about to ask.

Alephee nodded at Eren and continued.

"How do they come into existence, you might ask?

You must be aware that mana beasts are most vulnerable mentally when they are being born or are evolving. Foreign consciousnesses use this vulnerability as an opportunity to send the fragment of their souls into the world of Anfang.

The demon beasts are called demon beasts because they are possessed by demons. Or to be precise, the denizens of another world that is referred to as the demon continent. Of course, it is different from the continent of Echidna."

A metaphorical bomb detonated inside Eren's head. He thought that the world of Echidna contained the mystery he needed to plan his future. He could never have imagined that there was another world that was also interested in getting inside the world of Anfang.

Alephee knew that Eren was drawing comparisons between the continent of Echidna and the continent of demons. So she made things a bit clearer for him on those lines.

"The continent of Echidna has its way of sending its soldiers inside Anfang that has been isolated from the rest of the world. It uses a loophole in the continent-encompassing isolation array to send the children of Echidna inside Anfang, which are called monsters by the denizens of Anfang.

The demon continent does things a bit differently. It doesn't send corporal bodies of their denizens. Instead, some powerful demons utilize their own means to send their soul fragments to the continent of Anfang.

The demons act as veteran fishermen to ensure their presence in Anfang. They send bait into the river called Anfang and hope for the best.

If the demons' soul fragments manage to occupy a mana beasts' bodies while they are evolving or being birthed, demon beasts are born as a result. That's why the demon beasts start exuding psychic waves every time they evolve after the demon possession has successfully occurred.

That's the demons' way of overriding the beast's feeble consciousness. This is also the reason the demon beasts could control the mana beasts around them. That power belongs to the demons.

What Kirin remembers about the inherited memories from the continent of Echidna is correct. The demon beasts are unique to the world of Anfang. That's because the demons don't have to send fragments of their consciousness into other worlds."

Demons and demon beasts!

The more he listened to Alephee's explanations, the more questions kept popping into Eren's head. Alephee was pressed for time, so she tried to wrap things up quickly and spoke more.

Chapter 850 [Bonus] Demons' Way Of Exploring Otherworlds

Alephee was pressed for time, so she tried to wrap things up quickly.

As the demons attempt to acquire a corporeal vessel, they know they are prone to their soul fragments being assimilated by the denizens of Anfang. But they also know that some risks are needed to reap substantial rewards. That's how complicated things are when it comes to the soul and there's no way around it.

The demons either don't care or they are too optimistic. They are betting too much on the fact that the denizens of Anfang are not well-versed in these things."

Eren nodded slightly at Alephee. He didn't know anything about the demons or the demon continent. He was also shocked that they were trying to invade the continent of Anfang like monsters.

One had to say as far as invasions were concerned, the monsters were way ahead of the demons. The monsters were limited to Badlands, yes. At least they were using their real bodies inside Anfang.

The demons were forced to send the fragments of their souls inside Anfang. They hope to find a mana beast that is at its weakest so that they can take over its consciousness.

It meant that the soul fragments that get sent inside Anfang could not be targeted for a specific time and place. Or it was just that the demons couldn't pinpoint the location on Anfang where the soul fragments would appear. Alternatively, they couldn't coordinate with their kind present here to come up with an ideal spawning location.

Either way, taking over a mana beast's body was only the start of their otherworldly adventure. They needed to survive in this world and become strong enough to make an impact here. Something they wouldn't be able to do if they got exposed to the denizens of Anfang.

And since the demons had obtained the vessels of the mana beasts, they were subjected to the same fate as them. Being hunted by the rankers of Anfang. At the time of evolution, they were particularly prone to losing a sense of being.

The soul fragment was akin to a chipped part of a large blackboard. When the ranker succeeds in establishing a connection with the demon beast and taming it with the blood ritual, everything written on the chipped blackboard will be erased.

If everything turned out their way, the demons had strategic advantages over the monsters even when they didn't have their original bodies in Anfang. That's because they would have most of their memories intact. They knew who they were. And they didn't need "Clarity" to access the inherited memories.

However, everything would change for the demons if the ranker managed to establish the connection with the beast using the blood ritual. The soul fragments they had sent inside the beasts would act as the conduit for the rankers to tame the beast and imprint it with their soul marks.

As a result, the demon beasts would become extremely loyal to their tamers. The demons would lose the sense of themselves when this happens, subjecting the soul fragments to eternal servitude.

Eren didn't know much about the soul, soul mark, or soul fragment. But he was sure that losing a piece of one's soul would not be a positive thing for the one who has lost it. There would be some repercussions to pay if things turned south for the demon beasts, which was usually the case. The establishments of Anfang were very strict with the demon beasts.

Altashia had explained to Eren a few things about the demon beasts and the blood ritual. She had hinted to him at that time that there was something within the demon beast that was not native to the world of Anfang.

Altashia was also the one who had told Eren that the establishments on Anfang didn't fear the demon beasts because of their crowd-control abilities. They feared them because of their otherworldly roots.

They didn't want the demon beasts to get strong without the native ranker overriding the soul fragment's consciousness using the blood ritual.

The blood ritual completely neutralized the threat demon beasts and the soul fragments within them possessed. And by that extension, it also neutralized the threat of demons having their way with Anfang.

Altashia had explained to Eren that the blood ritual validated the existence of demon beasts, making them part of Anfang finally. But she didn't explain to him that what actually got validated was not demon beasts' bodies but the soul fragments within them.

Even with the little hints given to him by Altashia, Eren had managed to draw a logical conclusion. This was because the demon beasts were the product of mana beasts getting possessed by something foreign to the world. He just couldn't confirm his hypothesis at the time. But Alephee confirmed his theory with her recent explanation.

'So there were parts of Reen and Argo that belonged to the demon continent before my consciousness changed their existences forever. Hmm. This soul-related stuff is very interesting.

Sending one's soul fragment to another world, huh? What would I gain if I managed to do something like this? I need to research it a bit when I get a chance. Maybe I'll be able to pull off something like these demons one day.'

Eren had a random thought. Meanwhile, he processed the information Alephee provided him and filled in the blanks Altashia had left behind.

Alephee was very amused by Eren's thought process. She chuckled a bit before bursting a bubble for him.

'Hehe. Have you already thought about exploring different worlds the demons' way? Sorry to say, Eren. But it is way too early for you. You can't create a soul fragment of yourself before becoming a Sage or beyond.

In my opinion, demons' ways of exploring the Anfang are in fact relatively safe and convenient. I can see why you liked it the first time you heard about it.

However, there is also a big risk of losing control over the soul fragment. Sometimes, the soul fragments develop egos of their own. They might or might not cooperate with their owners in those cases. And the risk of losing control through blood ritual is also very big.'