

Virginity 20

Chapter 20

Around the corner, Serena's steps suddenly stopped as two people suddenly appeared before her.

Luca and Cristian, who was looking at her coldly.

If it had been just now, Serena probably would have left. But after learning that he was rejected by his grandfather and brother, she looked at him differently. However, she could not forget the fact that he made her have the abortion. Then she turned around and left.

"Stop!" Cristian said.

Serena stopped on the spot, turned and looked at him angrily, "What is it?"

"You are my assistant, but you have been absent from work for two days for no reason. Don't you want to be in the company anymore?"

Hearing this, Serena remembered the words Alessandro had said to her earlier in the study. Thinking that, instead of being the assistant, her job was to control him, she simply said, "I remember that you didn't need an assistant? I won't go and bother you anymore. "

"Do you think the firm is a place where you come and go as you please?"

Serena frowned, "Then what do you want?"

Luca who opened his eyes wide seeing her attitude, "But you are a woman who doesn't know who is benevolent. The gentleman let you keep the bastard, but you ... "

"Quiet!" Cristian scolded him coldly, and Luca stopped.

"What did you say?" Serena's eyes widened in disbelief and was unable to believe what Luca said. "How is that possible? You had..."

Serena stared at Cristian. Before she passed out that day, didn't he want to force her to have an abortion? By asking Luca to find a doctor? She fainted from anger and after she woke up in his room, she thought that everything was already done.

"Don't think too much. For a woman like you, I don't feel like worrying." Cristian finished speaking in a deep voice, letting Luca push him away.

Looking at the back of the two, Serena was confused.

Serena stopped disturbing him and turned to leave.

"Stop." Serena turned her head and stared at him curiously.

"Wait here." Cristian said again.

Serena's eyes widened. He did not allow her to come closer and let her go. Did he necessarily want her to wait here? Was he all right in the head?

However, Serena knew she blamed him, grabbed him by the collar saying he was a beast, cruel, and that an animal was more emotional than him. She felt guilty about what she did.

Therefore Serena did not move and stood.

Time passed and Serena could not remember how long she had been standing, but she learned that Cristian was very serious while working. Suddenly she thought that serious men at work seemed really attractive. Gradually, her legs became numb, but Cristian had no intention of finishing yet. Was he avenging her? Why did he say those words to her, and was he doing it on purpose?

Thinking about that, Serena could not help but frown, bending down to massage her calf. Finally, Cristian raised his eyes and looked at her.

Serena immediately straightened on her feet, like a child doing something wrong.

"It hasn't even been an hour. You can't take it anymore already?" Cristian raised his hand and looked at his watch, a cold smile on his thin lips.

Serena's lips moved, but she said nothing.

"What are you looking at me for?"

Serena did not answer, and Cristian emitted a cold snort, closing the computer to leave. Serena felt anxious and said nervously, "I'm sorry!"

Sharp eyes narrowed. Cristian looked at her sideways.