

Walker 1601

Chapter 1601 Demonstrating Formation Skills

Lin Mu got to work on the formation array while the Saintess observed it all.

She could see everything that Lin Mu was doing, from the smallest of rune additions he made, all the way to the unraveling of different layers. Nothing escaped her eyes and the more she saw the more satisfied she was.

It took Lin Mu over three hours to completely unravel the formation array, but it felt like mere minutes to him. He was so engrossed in it that, he couldn't even tell when the time was passing.

To him, working on a formation array was like working on a puzzle.

Once one got into the flow, they would forget about everything else and fully focus on it. The Saintess had noticed this and knew that Lin Mu had an innate talent for formations, as not everyone could replicate this kind of natural focus.

~HUMM~

The formation array broke down and opened up the passage for Lin Mu to enter.

"And, it's done!" Lin Mu said, finishing his work.

"You did well." The Saintess couldn't help but praise.

"It was nothing." Lin Mu said. "The real prize is waiting inside." He gestured to the depths.

They continued onwards and finally saw the glimmering Immortal stone clusters.

"Whoa..." Lin Mu was stunned seeing it. "This one is even bigger than the first Immortal Stone mine!" he exclaimed.

The two of them had appeared from a cave exit that was located on top of the mine. It gave them a wide view of the mine, and unlike the first one this one was relatively flat. There were no extra outcroppings or mixed tunnels, allowing one to see everything at once.

'I guess this one formed differently than the previous one.' Lin Mu thought to himself.

The entire floor and walls of this mine were made out of Immortal Stones and the same could be said for the roof. In fact, the place they were peeking from was also made from Immortal stones, though someone seems to have reinforced it with more materials.

"They've certainly worked here for a while." Lin Mu said after noticing the mining marks.

"There's also more chambers here." The Saintess said.

"There are?" Lin Mu raised a brow.

He spread his immortal sense, and soon found the chambers that were located at the base of the mine. They seemed to be intended for storage and there were even a few mining tools kept there.

"Interesting... Looks like that's where the prince worked." Lin Mu said after discovering.

"Prince?" The Saintess raised a brow upon hearing that. "What prince?"

"Umm... it's the person from whom I obtained the map to the immortal stone mines." Lin Mu replied with slight hesitation. "It was the eleventh prince of the Holy Topaz Dynasty." He finally answered.

"You killed an imperial prince?" The Saintess was surprised once more.

"Yes I did." Lin Mu admitted but did not give any excuses for it.

Killing the prince of an empire while being within their territory was a gutsy move. She would have thought that Lin Mu had done that accidentally, but seeing the confidence he had, it seemed to be fully intentional.

'It doesn't seem like he's scared about the repercussions from the imperial family either.' The Saintess thought.

She wasn't particularly concerned about this either, as what Lin Mu did was still up to him. She would not interfere in it, unless it was threatening the Yin Yang Twin snakes. But seeing Lin Mu act like this was still intriguing for her.

"I see... At least the gains seem to be worth it." The Saintess said nonchalantly.

Seeing that the Saintess was not offended or anything, Lin Mu felt relieved.

'Though it isn't something that she would normally be concerned about either. After all, why would she be concerned about some prince from a world that isn't even hers?' Lin Mu justified to himself.

He realized that he had merely be over thinking.

"You should get to mining. Looks like it'll take a while seeing its size." The Saintess suggested.

"Ah yes! I'll start right away." Lin Mu said before assessing the area. "Little Shrubby, we'll do the same as before. You go around and gather the materials and resources here, while I go mine the Immortal Stones."

"Okay~" Little Shrubby was excited for it too.

He had already seen just how much the immortal Qi in the Sleepscape had increased. He could only imagine how much it will be, once the second source vein was added to it as well. With this in mind, Little Shrubby was highly motivated.

~SHUA~

Several prosthetic hands appeared around him, as Little Shrubby got to work. His immortal sense spread as well, and he started looking for various materials that might be mixed along with the Immortal Stones.

But Lin Mu was not done there. Next he withdrew two boxes.

~SHUA~ SHUA~

The boxes caught the Saintess's attention and she instantly recognized what they were.

"You made Sword nurturing Boxes?" The Saintess asked.

"Yes. I attempted to make these for my Immortal Swords." Lin Mu replied.

~CLACK~ CLACK~

The two sword boxes opened automatically as the swords responded to Lin Mu's call.

~SHING~ SHING~

It was clear that the two blades knew exactly why Lin Mu had called them.

"You two know what to do, let's get to work." Lin Mu spoke to the Immortal Swords.

~HUMM~

Afternoon Pine and Ocean Raker quickly flew around, slicking and cutting into the immortal stones. The Saintess watched the action that would be considered absurd by most cultivators.

'Getting his immortal swords to mine, and even making a Sword Nurturing box for them...' the Saintess thought before checking the boxes closely. 'Oh? He actually used Peak Grade Immortal Stone for its main body? Really opulent.' She couldn't help but think.

She checked the rest of the box, finding it to be of a decent quality.

"While it isn't up to the standard of its materials, it can easily be improved later on with no obstacles." The Saintess did her assessment.

Chapter 1602 A Bigger Immortal Stone Mine

While the Saintess checked out the Sword Nurturing Boxes, Lin Mu and the two immortal swords were busy gathering the Immortal Stones.

Lin Mu's immortal sense was also on the lookout for any other materials that might be mixed in with the Immortal stones. He didn't want them to get damaged during the extraction after all.

Plus Lin Mu now had an endless need for the Omnicore Ascendancy. While he had not started practicing it yet, once he did, his needs for resources would simply skyrocket. And when that time arrived, it was best he had the resources to use without any interruptions.

Though it was still unknown just how much Lin Mu would need in order to finish even a single elemental core. It was not like he had a reference for it either after all. He would have to figure it all out through trial and error in the future.

'Thankfully this mine is a lot wider and stable so there is no danger of it collapsing. The outer slate walls are also hard and won't break even if all the Immortal Stones are removed.' Lin Mu thought to himself.

This stability was the reason he was not going for the Source Vein directly. Though the fact that it was covered under hundreds of meters of Immortal stone also contributed to it. Thus if Lin Mu wanted to get it, he would still have to mine out the rest of the immortal stones.

He could now take his time mining it all out, and did so patiently.

Afternoon Pine and Ocean Raker did their jobs perfectly, while also getting to absorb the rich ambient Immortal Qi. Lin Mu simply followed after them while storing the chunks they were cutting up.

From time to time, he would also pause and extract some materials that were mixed along with the Immortal Stones. These were either different ores, or crystal that could be used for many purpose.

And as Lin Mu went further, he found better materials too.

By the time he reached the layer where the High grade immortal stones were he ended up finding Immortal Jade!

"This is rather good quality immortal jade." Lin Mu carefully checked the small jade vein.

It was embedded between a cluster of Immortal Stones on one side, and Deep Bowel Slate on the other side. It had a pale green color that mixed with white, showing that it was of a medium quality.

Still, it was Immortal Jade in the end and could be used for Immortal tools very easily. Lin Mu could also use them to make Jade Slips for himself if needed.

'I do need a better quality one. The Spirit Jade slips are now not enough to store information.' Lin Mu thought to himself.

The more documents and books Lin Mu gathered, the more notes he took. And it wasn't just those either, as he would also copy down information from other jade slips. Even if the Jade Slips had a large capacity for such information, there was still a limit to it.

So far, Lin Mu had been using multiple jade slips to overcome this, but it was now becoming inconvenient. Rather than that, he reckoned he should simply refine a new jade slip that was specifically built just to store a large amount of information.

'If I remove the communication function and analytical functions, I should be able to improve the storage capacity by several times.' Lin Mu thought to himself.

The runes needed to make the communication jade slips took a lot of space after all, and consumed a lot of data capacity of a jade slip. This also depended on the range of communication too.

The longer the range, the bigger the formation that would be used for it.

But since Lin Mu simply wanted to make a jade slip for information storage, he wouldn't have to bother with the other formations. He thought about what improvements he could make to the jade slip while continuing to mine the Immortal Stones.

Extracting the Jade vein was very easy for him and had taken less than a minute for him. All he needed to do was capture the right dimensions of the vein and simply use meld to cut it out

It didn't matter if he also cut away a part of the Deep Bowel slate along with it either. He could remove it later on and had no need to do it right away.

Lin Mu repeated this with other materials too that were embedded in the rocks or encrusted with the immortal stones.

The only time he couldn't use that method was when the resource he encountered wasn't a material but rather an Immortal Herb.

When that happened he would have to first identify what kind of Immortal Herb it was before carefully extracting the Immortal Herb using the right method. After all, different immortal herbs had different requirements for harvesting as well as storage.

Some couldn't have their roots damaged, while some needed to be kept damp. There were countless different conditions that applied to different herbs, thus Lin Mu needed to be well aware about them.

Thankfully, the Immortal Herbs he encountered weren't any obscure ones and he easily identified them all before storing them away safely for later.

In all, Lin Mu gathered over a hundred Immortal herbs here.

'Seems like this place is more suitable for Immortal Herbs than the previous mine.' Lin Mu thought to himself.

So far he had come across more immortal herbs than other materials and ores showing that the conditions of this mine favored herbs.

It was still good for Lin Mu and he didn't complain about it. Gathering all he could, Lin Mu continued to mine the Immortal Stones and eventually reached the core area of the mine.

~huu~

Taking a deep breath, Lin Mu paused.

"This will take some precision work..." Lin Mu muttered as he gazed at the interlacing Immortal Stones.

In this part, The Peak Grade, High Grade, Mid Grade Immortal Stones were mixing up, making it hard to separate them directly.

Chapter 1603 The Approaching Tournament

Lin Mu couldn't let the two immortal swords work on their own from here.

"I'll need to do this manually." Lin Mu said as he held Afternoon Pine in his hand.

He carefully placed it at the seam where the different grade Immortal Stones met and pressed into it.

~CLINK~

The sound of the stone getting scratched was heard. Lin Mu exerted more force and pierced the immortal sword into it with ease. Little by little he cut into the Immortal stones and started separating them.

As much as he wished to use Meld for this, he knew the chances of a mistake arising were high with this level of complexity.

All this made Lin Mu wonder about the formation of the immortal stone mine. It was clear that it hadn't taken shape the same way as the previous one. It was a lot more open, but at the same time the demarcation between the different grades of Immortal stone was also obscure.

Lin Mu made a note to learn more about the immortal stone mine's formation later on in the future. This was just so in case, he had to clear out another mine and knew well enough what he would be coming across.

Prying away the different segments of the Immortal stones and storing them away took Lin Mu a few hours. Thankfully, only the edges of the Immortal stones were like this, with the middle segments being of one grade.

Lin Mu repeated the process again and again for each intersecting segment until finally an entire week passed by.

"I can finally see the source vein." Lin Mu said as he sat down to take a break.

The break wasn't because he was tired though. Rather it was to check if anything had been missed of if there were any issues.

Little Shrubby had also finished his task of gathering other materials a while ago and was now resting at the side. He rolled on top of an Immortal Stone Slab, while lazily absorbing the Qi from it.

Lin Mu let him be, as the beast had already done his part of the job.

The Saintess was also sitting nearby, having fashioned a set of Table and chairs from the same Immortal Stone. She had merely waved her hand and the winds from it had cut up the Immortal Stone into a perfectly shaped Table and chairs.

It was certainly a luxury product as the cut up table and chairs would be worth a few thousand Immortal Stones. The furniture was quite literally worth its weight in Immortal stones.

The Saintess had observed Lin Mu's relentless work over the past few days. Though she had mostly kept silent and let the young man work. No one knew what her thoughts were, other than the fact that her gaze barely left Lin Mu.

It didn't matter how far he was, or if he was behind something. Her gaze could see through all.

And her very gaze caught the gleaming pillar of Immortal Source Vein that was finally revealed after Lin Mu's hard work. Its glow fell on Lin Mu's face, illuminating his dark eyes and straight brows.

"Finally... Time to finish this." Lin Mu muttered and extended his hand.

~HUALA~

The saintess's eyes narrowed as she felt strong spatial fluctuations coming from Lin Mu.

'He's controlling the Spatial Fabric itself?!' The Saintess wondered.

She watched as Lin Mu's hand moved and skillfully plucked the Immortal Source Vein.

~WHOOSH~

With it being removed from the cave, the Immortal Qi concentration in the air started to rapidly fall such that wind started to blow in the closed off space. Lin Mu though didn't care for that and simply stored it in the ring.

~HUU~

Having finished what he had set out to do, Lin Mu felt a sense of accomplishment and let out a long breath.

"That's done... Now all that's left is to leave the Desolate Blood Battled and return to the Middle Fort city." Lin Mu said out loud.

"You still have a little over a month left till the Tournament." The Saintess reminded.

"A over a month, Hmm... I'll have to be fast then I suppose." Lin Mu's thought deeply, trying to find the best series of actions.

'Firstly, I need to implant the Source Vein in the Sleepscape. The earlier I do the better. Once that's done, I can start my return. Covering the expanse of the Desolate Blood Battlefield will take around two to three weeks too considering I'm in the Grey Slate Ravines now.' Lin Mu plotted the route in his mind.

It was safe to say that there was a high chance he would be cutting very close to the tournament's date.

~Sigh~

"I should begin with a single step at a time first." Lin Mu said to himself before deciding to implant the Source Vein.

But before he could do that though, he needed to take care of something else.

"I'm going to sleep for a bit, Saintess." Lin Mu informed.

"Sleep? You're tired?" The Saintess was a bit doubtful.

According to what she could see, Lin Mu's body was full of energy and he didn't seem to be tired at all.

"Mentally a bit yes." Lin Mu nodded his head. "And I also need to talk to master." He added.

"Your master?!" The Saintess raised her brows under her veil. "He uses Dream Transmission with you?" she asked.

"Something like that yes." Lin Mu answered.

While it wasn't accurate, it was similar to what he did anyways. Lin Mu knew the Saintess seemed to know and respect his master for a reason, thus he chose to mention him.

"Alright then. You should sleep." The Saintess had no objections.

"It won't be long. Just a few hours." Lin Mu said before taking out his bolster and lying down on another slab of Immortal Stone.

While it was rather hard, it still gave one a comfortable feeling due to the sheer amount of Immortal Qi it would emit.

Even if one slept on it every day, they wouldn't find their body getting stiff!

Chapter 1604 Hidden Limits Of The Sleepscape

~RUSTLE~RUSTLE~RUSTLE~

Lin Mu arrived in the Sleepscape and heard the sound of leaves.

They gently swayed and created a harmonious melody that made one want to sleep to its tune. Even Lin Mu felt tempted but knew that he had important work at hand.

"Let's get to it quickly." Lin Mu walked to the location where he had buried the first Immortal Source Vein.

He then took out the freshly mined Immortal Source Vein and laid it on the ground. It was almost the same size as the first, but was a few percent bigger.

It was one of the discoveries Lin Mu had made at the very end. Even if the second Immortal Stone mine was bigger than the first, the Source Vein didn't differ that much. Which only proved how difficult it was for a source vein to grow and improve.

Despite the second Immortal Stone mine being twenty percent bigger than the first, the size of the Source Vein was just four to five percent bigger. The growth between the Immortal stones and the source vein didn't seem to be proportional.

Lin Mu knew there were many factors that determined the size of a mine, and the topography of the area might be why the difference was present in the current case.

The area where the first mine was mostly soil and loose rock, that was pressing upon the Immortal Stone mine. This created pressure on the mine as well as the Source Vein, preventing it from growing as freely.

In the second case, the Grey Slate Ravines were made out of tough and durable Deep Bowel Slate. This had allow the second Immortal Stone mine to form with fewer issues. Of course, the toughness of the Deep Bowel Slate would make it so that the mine couldn't expand fast, it still reduced the excess pressure from the weight of the ground.

Additionally, the naturally forming fissures and gaps between the Deep Bowel Slate made it so that the Immortal Stones still had plenty of area to grow. Lin Mu even wondered if the concave structure of the gourd shaped ravine might be due to the Immortal Stone mine.

It was likely that the shape had been influenced over time by the growing Immortal Stone crystal and it had turned the ravine into what it was today.

"Come on... merge into it." Lin Mu willed the Sleepscape to accept.

This time he felt like there was a little resistance as the Sleepscape wasn't accepting the Immortal Source vein right away.

'This doesn't seem to be 'unwillingness' on the Sleepscape's part though... it's more like it is full and I'm still asking it to eat.' Lin Mu guessed.

He had not known that there would be a limit to what he could implant in the Sleepscape before this. But now he had a rough idea of it.

'Looks like even after the growth of the Sleepscape, there will be a limit to how many things I can implant in it.' Lin Mu understood.

He had implanted not only the Violet Mystic Life Tree, but was now planting the second Immortal Source vein. While all of these were ultimately beneficial to the Sleepscape and its inhabitants, there were still limits on the place.

More specifically, the limit seemed to be linked with Lin Mu's own cultivation base.

After all, the main method of growing the size of the Sleepscape was for Lin Mu to increase his own cultivation base.

The addition of the Violet Mystic Life tree along with the immortal essence crystal mine might have given a boost to the size of the Sleepscape due to their unique properties, but it had still not lifted its original limit.

'Come on... you can take it. Just a bit more...' Lin Mu urged the Sleepscape to absorb the Immortal Source Vein.

A few minutes later, Lin Mu's attempt seemed to have succeeded as the Sleepscape finally responded.

~RUMBLE~

The ground shook, before the Source Vein Crystal started being absorbed. Lin Mu watched as the crystal disappeared into the ground five minutes later.

"This was certainly slower than the first one." Lin Mu muttered. "But for the effects..." he waited for the changes to happen.

~SHUA~

And just as he had expected, Immortal Qi started to rise in the Sleepscape while its density increased as well.

The plants in the Sleepscape started to greedily absorb the Immortal Qi too, with the Immortal Apple Tree directly ripening several of the Immortal apples and the Wood Spirit Tulip, directly growing another flower head.

The Purple Sickle Amaranth didn't show any new growth though, and only increased its production of Wood Immortal Qi instead.

As for the Violet Mystic Life Tree, there was no change in it either.

The tree was as silent as before, with a vitality that could rival entire kingdoms.

The Yin Yang twin snakes were also enjoying it all and gently breathed the immortal Qi. Lin Mu walked around the Sleepscape, making sure that all the changes were noted by him. There was no saying what kind of new effects would take place after all.

He didn't wish to be caught off guard, thus took the extra effort of checking all things. Lin Mu even went to the Formation Pavilion and ensured that the arrays were running properly and not in a havoc.

Having done his little tour of the Sleepscape, Lin Mu returned to standing in front of the Immortal Apple tree. Though this time, the tree was covered with several Immortal Apples.

"You certainly grew fast." Lin Mu couldn't help but say.

~rustle~ rustle~

The tree seemed to respond to Lin Mu's words too, shaking its branches.

"Oh? You want me to pluck all the apples?" Lin Mu understood the sentient tree's intentions.

~RUSTLE~

The tree shook one of its tender branches and lowered the main ones with fruits.

Lin Mu quickly plucked all the ripe Immortal Apples and stored them away for later.

"I wonder if the Saintess has ever tried immortal apples before..." Lin Mu wondered.

Chapter 1605 Meeting An Acquaintance In The Ravines

Having finished his work in the Sleepscape, Lin Mu decided to simply wake up.

The improvements to the Immortal Qi were already starting to show and wouldn't need Lin Mu's interference anymore.

~huu~

Lin Mu opened his eyes in the real world and saw the dark empty ceiling above him. With all the immortal stones having been stripped, the cave didn't look pretty like before. The only light that was still present in the cave was coming from the Table and chairs that the Saintess had fashioned out of solid Immortal Stones.

"You're up." The Saintess's voice drifted over.

She had been sitting at the same place and had not really moved.

"I hope I didn't sleep too long." Lin Mu asked.

"Not at all." The Saintess lightly shook her head.

"Ah, that's good. I guess we can head out now." Lin Mu replied before glancing at Little Shrubby who was also on the table.

He had evidently stored away the chunk of Immortal stone and was now in his kitten form. The Saintess seemed to be stroking his fur while the beast lazily slept on the table in front, fully enjoying it all.

Lin Mu walked up to the table, his footsteps waking up Little Shrubby.

~Meow~

The beast let out a little cry before opening its eyes and stretching.

"Is it time to leave?" Little Shrubby asked.

"You got that right." Lin Mu nodded his head.

"Okay~" Little Shrubby jumped down from the table and grew bigger.

The Saintess was a bit disappointed, but didn't really show it. She too stood up, the set of furniture disappearing automatically. Lin Mu hadn't felt any spatial fluctuations from it, and wondered how the Saintess had done it.

'That wasn't a spatial storage tool for sure...' Lin Mu thought.

Pushing the thought to the back of his mind, Lin Mu got onto Little Shrubby's back and they flew out of the cave. Exiting into the ravine, Little Shrubby jumped off the rugged walls and reached the surface.

~WHOOSH~

A few seconds later they turned into a red blur as Lin Mu guided Little Shrubby where to go. The Saintess had long since disappeared, though Lin Mu knew she was probably following after them.

They left the area without any interruptions, and no beast dared to come near them. Though it was also due to the fact that Little Shrubby's speed was quite high. They continued like this for a while until finally they reached the edge of the Grey Slate Ravines.

It was here that Little Shrubby sensed another presence.

"There's someone nearby, Master." Little Shrubby informed.

'Who?' Lin Mu asked, sensing the beast's tone.

"It's that Giant horned man." Little Shrubby replied.

"Giant horned man? You mean the General Niu Juo?" Lin Mu guessed.

"Yes! Him." Little Shrubby confirmed.

"What's he doing here?" Lin Mu wondered and kept his immortal sense spread.

Knowing that Little Shrubby had sensed the man, he was likely to be a few tens of kilometer away. The beast had smelled his scent after all.

Little Shrubby's sense of smell had a wider range than the Immortal sense, allowing him to discover things early on. It was quite useful since the other party wouldn't be able to detect them either which would not be the case with Immortal sense.

With immortal sense, another person could still catch them with their own immortal sense.

Thus it was a rather good thing to have.

"Return to the Sleepscape Little Shrubby." Lin Mu said, deciding to be cautious.

"Okay." Little Shrubby immediately disappeared, leaving Lin Mu to fly alone.

Lin Mu wanted to know why the man was here and knew that their meeting was bound to happen. It wasn't like he couldn't avoid it, Lin Mu simply wanted to know a little more information from the man.

After all, Lin Mu had no idea what else had happened in the Desolate Blood Battlefield after leaving the location of the Violet Mystic Life Tree. He certainly knew that his actions had probably caused a lot of havoc and trouble for the others.

At the very least, the Grand Sky Pavilion would be clenching their fists in anger if not more.

Just a minute later, Lin Mu saw the giant of a man flying towards him. It was clear that the man had sensed his presence too by this point and seemed to be rather surprised.

"Mu Lin?" General Niu Juo called out.

"General!" Lin Mu decided to greet the man.

"I didn't expect to meet you here..." General Niu Juo said with genuine surprise.

After all, with how wide the Desolate Blood Battlefield really was, it was highly unlikely for two people to meet each other by accident. Even if someone wanted to search for others, it was still a difficult task, unless one had the means to directly track their position.

"Me neither." Lin Mu replied while taking a deeper look at the man.

Niu Juo seemed mostly the same to Lin Mu, but there was a hidden sense of nervousness on the man that wasn't there before.

'He seems concerned for something.' Lin Mu thought to himself before speaking. "Would you like to sit and talk for a bit?" he asked.

"Sure. I do have some things I want to ask you too." General Niu Juo replied.

The two of them landed on the ground, and Lin Mu took out a set of furniture for them to sit.

"I'll let you ask me first, General Niu Juo." Lin Mu said with courtesy.

"Very well... I'd like to first ask you if you've seen a certain man." General Niu Juo questioned.

"Which man?" Lin Mu raised his brows. "I've come across several so far here."

"It is no normal man. It is the Eleventh Prince of Holy Topaz Dynasty... Huangyu Shiyi." General Niu Juo said before taking out a jade slip and tapping it.

~SHUA~

In the next second, the air above the Jade slip flickered and a formation screen appeared. And on this the image of the eleventh prince appeared.

Chapter 1606 Unknowingly Behind It All

Lin Mu looked at the image calmly, but he was surprised in his heart.

'So they've started to look for him, huh...' Lin Mu understood.

General Niu Juo saw Lin Mu observe the image but showed no reaction on his face.

"So this is the infamous eleventh prince..." Lin Mu said after a bit. "I heard about him several times before but this is the first time I'm seeing it."

"Oh? You heard about him?" General Niu Juo questioned.

"Yes. And not just in the middle fort city, but also here." Lin Mu answered. "Or more accurately I heard about the slaughter he was doing. There were quite a lot of Immortals that seemed to be running away from the Grey Slate Ravines." He added.

"You came across it too... I see." The general had not expected this.

While he had seen the actions of the eleventh prince first hand, he didn't know that they were already well known in the Desolate Blood Battlefield. Niu Juo didn't know what this would mean for his search, but he was somewhat pleased that it was Lin Mu he had come across.

Rather than meeting someone unknown and asking them it was better to meet an acquaintance.

The level of trust was higher.

"I did indeed... though I haven't seen the man personally." Lin Mu spoke again.

"You really haven't?" General Niu Juo asked again.

"No... though I did wish to meet the man." Lin Mu replied much to the general's surprise.

"Oh?" General Niu Juo did not expect this since the people were supposed to be running away from the prince rather than the opposite.

"Yes. I wanted to see just how strong he was. Perhaps even battle him." Lin Mu said as a hint of battle intent flickered in his eyes.

Even his aura flared up for a moment, that General Niu Juo detected clearly.

'He really intended to fight the prince... there's no fear in his eyes either.' General Niu Juo could tell this very well.

After all, he himself was a battle enthusiast and knew people like him. He could tell that Lin Mu truly wished to fight the prince, even if it might have not ended up very well. As much as the general liked this, he knew he had to ask more.

"You wished to fight the man despite him being a prince? You don't fear the repercussions from the Holy Topaz Dynasty?" General Niu Juo countered.

"From what I've heard so far, the Holy Topaz Dynasty hasn't interfered in the prince's actions so far. And before that, they completely disregarded." Lin Mu first said. "Besides, knowing the prince's actions so far, I guessed that he'd be the first one to start the fight. If he's the one to initiate it, I can always claim self-defense right?" he continued.

Hearing this, General Niu Juo knew that what Lin Mu said was correct.

It was a well known fact that the Eleventh Prince had actually gone around challenging other immortals. And from his killing in the Desolate Blood Battlefield, it wouldn't be unusual for him to attack Lin Mu right away.

If that happened and Lin Mu just so happened to defeat the prince, there wouldn't be anything the Holy Topaz Dynasty would be able to say.

And if they went after Lin Mu, it would simply be against their honor.

"I understand... that does make sense." General Niu Juo admitted. "Though, your wishes were not fulfilled I see."

"No they were not. I've scoured the Grey Slate Ravines for a few days now, but I didn't find the Eleventh Prince here." Lin Mu shook his head. "So I just gathered some of the resources and materials that were here. I did come to this area on your advice after all. I thank you for that."

"So you found the things you needed?" General Niu Juo replied.

"I sure did. More than enough." Lin Mu nodded his head. "And what about you, General Niu Juo. You were here to obtain resources too right? Why are you looking for the prince of a foreign power?" he asked with interest.

~Sigh~

In response to this, General Niu Juo let out a long sigh.

Just from this, Lin Mu could tell that there was a lot behind this.

"It's a long and messy story." General Niu Juo said in a tired tone.

"Feel free to tell me. Perhaps I might be able to assist you. We do have some time now." Lin Mu said before taking out a teapot and two cups. "I'll make us some tea while you can talk about it." He offered.

"Alright." General Niu Juo did like the idea of having some tea.

Lin Mu began to make some high quality tea, while the half Orc man spoke about all that had happened.

He told Lin Mu about the Demon, the disappearance of the Violet Mystic Life tree, then the tribulation as well as the links between it all. Lin Mu showed kept a calm expression during it all, and prepared the tea.

~sip~

"Ahh~ good tea." General Niu Juo nodded his head.

While he preferred to drink wine more, some tea wasn't bad from time to time.

"So what I felt back then was a Transcendent Tribulation... it was certainly terrifying." Lin Mu finally responded.

"Indeed. It seems like the entire Desolate Blood Battlefield felt it." General Niu Juo replied while taking another sip.

Lin Mu was having a hard time believing all that General Niu Juo had said.

'All the things that he seems to be investigating are related to me! How did they even link the Transcendent Immortal Tribulation to the Demon?' Lin Mu thought to himself.

He realized that he might have set off a chain of events that might snowball into something massive soon enough.

'I really need to leave this place...' Lin Mu now knew but before he could do that, he needed to deal with the general.

"Looks like you have your work cut out for you, General Niu Juo. I wish you success on your mission." Lin Mu said with a little enthusiasm.

Chapter 1607 A Reference Of Strength

General Niu Juo stood up from the table and cupped his hands.

"Thank you for your information, Daoist Mu Lin. I'll have to continue my search now." General Niu Juo spoke.

"It was a simple thing. Besides, I also got to learn some things from you." Lin Mu replied.

"Though I hope you had gained what you wanted from the Desolate Blood Battlefield." General Niu Juo said.

"Of course. I obtained plenty of things and your advice to visit the Blood Strewn Plains was good too." Lin Mu said before releasing a bit of his aura.

General Niu Juo felt it and instantly understood that Lin Mu had broken through.

"Looks like you really did have quite a bit of progress." General Niu Juo was pleased.

After all, to him, it was the same as having a stronger opponent to fight in the future.

"I should have more later once I can utilize the resources I've obtained." Lin Mu replied.

"That's good." General Niu Juo said before taking a pause. "How about you give me a reference for that?" he suddenly said.

"Reference? For what?" Lin Mu questioned.

"A reference for your strength. I want to compare you from today and the future. It is much better when I know just how strong you grew." General Niu Juo answered.

"Oh?" Lin Mu was surprised by this, but didn't know how the man wanted a reference. "How would I give you that?" he asked.

"It's simple... attack me with your body cultivation. With as much power as you can muster." General Niu Juo stated.

"You want me to attack you?" Lin Mu raised his brow.

"Yes... Just you attack me. I won't attack and simply defend." General Niu Juo clarified. "Don't worry, I will be fine."

Lin Mu thought over it for a bit before making a decision.

"Fine... We can do that." Lin Mu said before storing the table and chairs away. "So I just attack with the full power of my body cultivation, right?" he asked again.

"Yes." General Niu Juo said while getting ready.

"Very well..." Lin Mu was also a bit interested to see just how he compared against Niu Juo who not only had the bloodline of a Steel Horned Barbaric Ogre but also was a body cultivator.

Then there was the fact that he still didn't know what was Niu Juo's cultivation base. It was said that he was at the Sixth Tribulation Stage of the Immortal realm, but that was just the Qi cultivation.

His actual body cultivation was still unknown. Plus, it was even said that the man was actually close to a breakthrough.

If anything, Lin Mu would be clashing against one of the strongest immortals so far.

~Huu~

Lin Mu took a deep breath, and activated the Three Apertures Invoking Technique. The immortal essence wisps within his Apertures became active and he quickly drew them out into his arm.

He amplified the strength of his arm and pulled it back, preparing for the attack.

"Here I come!" Lin Mu said before he lunged forward.

His fist move like a blur before it punched towards General Niu Juo.

The giant of a man also responded with similar speed, his arm moving to block the punch.

~THUD~

Surprisingly, the impact was rather muffled. General Niu Juo had stopped the attack with his bare palm!

"This..." Lin Mu was not expecting such a response.

"Are you holding back?" General Niu Juo could tell that this was not Lin Mu's full strength.

"Partially yes." Lin Mu had not used his full weight behind the attack technically.

"Don't hold back. Do it again." General Niu Juo urged.

"Alright." Lin Mu stepped back and gathered the Immortal Essence within his arm again before punching forth.

~HONG~

But this time, he released the weight control on his body, leveraging it all in the punch by twisting.

~DENG~

The increased weight multiplied the force of the punch by several times, actually making a louder sound. General Niu Juo also had to clasp Lin Mu's fist this time, while his elbow bent a little bit.

"That was better... several times stronger too." General Niu Juo was surprised, as he knew something like this could not be done easily. "Did you use some skill to increase your weight?" he guessed.

"No... the opposite." Lin Mu replied.

"Opposite?" General Niu Juo furrowed his brows, but then saw Lin Mu do something.

~CRACK~

The ground underneath him directly cracked as his body sank into it.

"I didn't increase my weight. I simply stopped reducing it." Lin Mu answered.

Hearing this, General Niu Juo was surprised. But several things started to make sense to him.

'If he has such great body weight, then moving around will be an inconvenience. Is he constantly counteracting it by using the flying technique?' it didn't take long for General Niu Juo to grasp Lin Mu's method.

After all, the man had a high cultivation base and thousands of years of experience. Though it was also the fact that the method Lin Mu using wasn't anything special.

"The high weight is a side effect of your body cultivation technique?" General Niu Juo questioned.

"Yes. You can say that." Lin Mu replied, not telling him that he could actually multiply his weight further.

But then it didn't come under the scope of his body cultivation, but rather immortal cultivation. The Aspect of Heaviness was a Dao Skill after all. Then there was the fact that General Niu Juo had only asked him to use his body cultivation.

Lin Mu also didn't wish to use any of his other skills like the Boulder Collapsing fist, as exposing them was not a wise option.

"Your weight should be hundreds of times more than mine... Hmm... I've heard of something like this before." General Niu Juo said, gaining Lin Mu's intrigue.

"What do you mean?" Lin Mu questioned.

"I've seen other practitioners who have high body weight too." Niu Juo revealed. "They also have normal bodies, but their weight is simply exponentially high."

Chapter 1608 Potential To Grow A Technique

Hearing the information from General Niu Juo, Lin Mu was rather surprised.

The increase in his body weight was due to the True Gold Body Forging Arts. And as far as he knew the technique's origins were unknown and he had found them in the ruins back in the Xiaofan world.

From what he and Xukong had discussed, the technique was quite likely to be the primitive form of a higher leveled technique. Its effects were also quite good, as it had become the default defense of Lin Mu now.

Even in the immortal realm it was still quite useful, not to mention its weight could be utilized in multiple ways. It was the weight from his body that had allowed him to kill the Eleventh Prince after all by trapping him.

It was frankly a really good technique and if Lin Mu could find the rest of it, he could improve even more.

So even if it was unlikely that what General Niu Juo was talking about was practitioners of the same technique, Lin Mu might at least be able to find a way to progress it later on.

"Can you tell me more about them?" Lin Mu questioned.

"Sure." General Niu Juo nodded. "A long time ago back when I was not the General of the Huiqing Empire, I had gone out to many worlds. This was to expand my own horizons as well as learn new things.

It was during this time when I visited a small immortal world by the name of Silent Lotus World. On it there were several sects as well as kingdoms. I roamed the world for a couple of years before I came across a monastery.

It was in this monastery that I encountered the practitioners like you. They had high weight too." He explained.

"A monastery? And not a sect?" Lin Mu furrowed his brows.

"Yes, it was a Buddhist Monastery." General Niu Juo replied. "All their members were body cultivators, thus I felt interested. I went to train with them, but didn't get to learn much other than some basics. They couldn't pass on their techniques to me since I wasn't suitable for them." He answered.

"I see..." Lin Mu was now greatly interested in finding more about this. "What else can you tell me about them?"

"I don't have anything more actually. I couldn't stay at the monastery for long and was driven out. Not long after that, I left the Silent Lotus World as well." General Niu Juo replied. "I just recalled it right now seeing you."

Hearing this, Lin Mu was a bit disappointed, but he at least had a link to go next.

"Thank you for the information." Lin Mu stated.

"You wish to go there too? Hmm... they might just take you in." General Niu Juo said. "The Silent Lotus World isn't that far from the Rust Sky world, but to go there you need to use several World Teleportation arrays. There's a chance they might have changed the route, so you will have to look into that yourself." He added.

"Just this is enough." Lin Mu replied. "I thank you for this, once more."

"It was nothing." General Niu Juo shook his head. "If your strength is at this level already, then I look forward to your growth." He said with a smile.

With that, the two bid each other their farewells and flew in the opposite directions.

Only after Lin Mu was a few hundred kilometers did he bring out Little Shrubby again.

~WHOOSH~

The two turned into a blur and flew towards the exit of the Desolate Blood Battlefield.

During the journey though, Lin Mu's thoughts were on the information he had learned from Niu Juo. It was certainly a lot and then there was also the fact that he actually had the potential to further the True Gold Body Forging arts.

'Since the Silent Lotus World is an immortal world and the monks there still had heavy bodies, it is likely they know of the higher version of it.' Lin Mu thought to himself.

He traveled nonstop for several days before he finally reached the exit point of the Battlefield. This time though, he found it to be rather crowded.

"That's a lot of people... they even set up a camp here." Lin Mu was not expecting this.

When he had arrived here, there was nothing. There was not even a board telling one where to go. And yet now there was a whole camp of the Holy Topaz Dynasty set up, if the banners flying over the camp told anything.

"Looks like this might be what Niu Juo meant earlier. The Holy Topaz Dynasty is actively looking into the 'Demon' now." Xukong spoke up at this point.

"Indeed... it does make sense to keep watch over the exit." Lin Mu nodded his head.

While there were people watching on the other side too, setting up a watch camp in the Desolate Blood Battlefield would provide better coverage.

~huh~

"Let's get this over with." Lin Mu first sent Little Shrubby into the Sleepscape before approaching the area.

He appeared as normal as every and calmly landed in front of the camp. The immortals stationed there watched him carefully as he walked into the camp and towards the exit.

"Halt!" The guards standing at the exit said.

"You need to declare your identity before leaving now. Failure to do so will result in an arrest as decreed by the words of the Emperor!" The guard said staunchly.

"I don't mind." Lin Mu showed no offense to them and cooperated in validating his identity.

Seeing that he had the letter from Alchemist Ruoxian helped greatly as there were several people who had come into the Desolate Blood Battlefield for missions assigned by the Grand Sky Pavilion.

"All seems good. You can go ahead then." The guard finally permitted.

Lin Mu gave a simple nod before walking into the array and being teleported away.

Soon, he stood in the Rust Sky World again.

Chapter 1609 Return To The Middle Fort City

The difference in atmosphere between the Rust Sky World and the Desolate Blood Battlefield was surreal to Lin Mu.

Now that he had returned, he realized just how refreshing it felt to be back. Even if the Rust Sky world was a bit gloomy due to its unique sky, the absence of the bloody aura was still quite good.

~HUU~

Lin Mu took a deep breath and felt the difference in the Immortal Qi.

"This does feel rather good." Lin Mu now had an urge to take a walk around.

He had not realized that staying the Desolate Blood Battlefield would have an aftereffect like this.

'I'll get to do some tasks on the way...' Lin Mu thought to himself.

He had several tasks to do on his list, anyway.

Lin Mu first walked to the checkpoint of the Desolate Blood Battlefields and recorded his exit there too. He faced no issues there either and the people let him go rather quickly. Once that was done, Lin Mu flew towards the Middle Fort City and brought out Little Shrubby as well.

They quickly sped towards the city and arrived there after a few hours. Sending Little Shrubby back and gaining entry into the Middle Fort City, Lin Mu made a checklist in his mind.

The first task was none other than to head to the Grand Sky Pavilion. He not only wanted to check up on his request for the Tyrant Bull marrow, but also to meet with Alchemist Ruoxian.

'I wonder if Shu Shaoxing is here or not.' Lin Mu recalled the man who was rather enthusiastic about Grass Herbs.

Lin Mu also had another reason to meet him, which was to learn more about Sentient plants that could be later planted into the Sleepscape. It was one of his long term goals, and he now intended to look for such plants wherever he went.

It didn't matter if they could generate Qi or not, as long as they were sentient he would take them as Lin Mu knew the Sleepscape would eventually have some beneficial effect on them and lead them to improve.

With that in mind, Lin Mu continued towards the Grand Sky Pavilion.

Lin Mu also tried to contact Alchemist Ruoxian on the way, but found there to be no response.

'Perhaps he's busy working. I'll just have to meet him directly at the pavilion then.' Lin Mu thought.

Little Shrubby also wished to come out, thus Lin Mu let him do so in his kitten form. The master and beast walked through the streets of the Middle Fort City, gaining a few looks from the people.

Some were interested in Lin Mu's appearance, while some were interested in the kitten that seemed to be sitting on his shoulders.

Lin Mu and Little Shrubby were used to it though and it didn't seem like anyone was going to stop them to talk either. Soon, the two reached the Grand Sky Pavilion and Lin Mu walked up to the nearest clerk.

"I'm here to meet with Alchemist Ruoxian." Lin Mu informed.

"Alchemist Ruoxian? Do you have an appointment with him?" The clerk questioned.

"I've been told I can meet him any time." Lin Mu said before showing him the documentation that the alchemist had given him early on.

The Clerk read through it and found it to be authentic. His expression became a bit flustered as he realized that Lin Mu was actually an important customer of the Grand Sky Pavilion.

"Ah! I'm sorry for the delay, sir customer. Please come this way, I'll inform Alchemist Ruoxian." The clerk hurriedly said.

He quickly brought Lin Mu to a waiting room and went away for a minute. And when the clerk returned, he had an embarrassed expression on his face.

"I'm sorry sir, but Alchemist Ruoxian is not present at the Grand Sky Pavilion." The Clerk reported.

"He's not?" Lin Mu furrowed his brows.

"No, he's currently out on a visit somewhere but I can send him a missive to call him." The clerk replied.

Hearing this Lin Mu was surprised. He had thought that the man was busy at work in the Grand Sky Pavilion and had thus not responded to his call. But now it was evident that he was occupied with something else.

"Hmmm... very well. Send it." Lin Mu decided to permit it.

"I'll do it right away, sir." The Clerk hurriedly said. "In the mean time you can rest here or take a look around our establishment. If you wish to have some refreshments, I can also send a few servant with them." He offered.

"I'll take a look around then." Lin Mu didn't mind waiting a bit as he could do some other tasks in this time.

"Very well, sir." The clerk cupped his hand. "We'll inform you when Alchemist Ruoxian is here."

"Mhmm." With that, Lin Mu left the waiting area and went to the Vitality Hall.

He had given his request for the Tyrant Bull Marrow here and needed to inquire about any updates.

"Ah! It's sir Mu Lin!" The clerk at the desk quickly recognized Lin Mu.

After all, the things he had bought last time had given the clerk quite a lot of commission. This had made the clerk remember him deeply. In fact, the clerk had wished that Lin Mu would come around again and buy more stuff, so that his pockets would deepen.

"So you remember me." Lin Mu raised a brow.

"Of course! How can I forget, sir?" The clerk said with a smile. "Please take a seat." He offered.

Lin Mu sat down in front, while Little Shrubby jumped down onto his lap.

"So, what do I owe the pleasure of meeting Sir Mu Lin today?" the clerk asked.

"About my earlier request. The Tyrant Bull Marrow." Lin Mu replied. "I want to know if there are any updates on it."

"Ah yes! I remember." The clerk nodded his head. "I'll check the most recent reports. Please give me a moment." The man said before tapping the desk in front of him.

~SHUA~

The formation on the desk lit up and a formation screen appeared.

It was only readable on one side though, so only the clerk could see what was being displayed on it. The clerk inputted some information and started to look through the information that had been added to their documents.

Lin Mu waited for a minute and watched the clerk work. During it all, he found the clerk's expression change several times. From a smile, it soon turned into a stiff expression.

"Hmm... it seems like there is an issue, sir." The clerk said after a bit.

"What is it?" Lin Mu asked.

"While there is indeed an update about the Tyrant Bull Marrow, it is not from your request." The Clerk replied.

"Not from mine?" Lin Mu furrowed his brows, but then thought of something. "Do you mean there is actually some Tyrant Bull Marrow available?" he asked again.

"Indeed... there is records of Tyrant Bull Marrow arriving in the Rust Sky World." The Clerk answered. "But it did not come from sir's request but was brought by an independent party." He added.

"An independent party? Are they a merchant?" Lin Mu questioned next. "If so, can the Grand Sky Pavilion facilitate me to buy it from them?" if there was Tyrant Bull Marrow already present in the Rust Sky world, Lin Mu didn't see any reason to wait.

After all, there was no telling how long it would take for the Grand Sky pavilion to obtain it on their own.

"That's the issue, sir. The person with the Tyrant Bull marrow isn't a merchant. They seem to be an independent cultivator." The Clerk stated.

"You should still be able to contact them though, right?" Lin Mu didn't see how something like this would be difficult for the Grand Sky Pavilion.

"We can certainly contact them, but the issue is that the Tyrant Bull marrow isn't for sale." The Clerk revealed.

"Huh? Then why is it in your records?" Lin Mu was perplexed.

"According to our records, the information about the Tyrant Bull Marrow is here not because of a direct sale. But rather, it came through our external channels as a request." The clerk explained.

"What kind of request?" Lin Mu wondered.

"The owner of the Tyrant Bull Marrow has put it up as a reward for some information." The Clerk answered. "The owner is seeking information about a certain object they have and doesn't seem to have any clues about what it is. Thus they are offering it as a reward to anyone who can provide accurate information." He added.

"What is the object?" Lin Mu asked for more details.

"I'm afraid, we don't know that, sir. This came from a third party, thus you will have to go there personally to check." The clerk replied.

~Sigh~

"Very well... where are they?" Lin Mu questioned.

"The owner of it is in the Dao Wind Empire." The Clerk stated.

Chapter 1610 Two Goals One Destination

Hearing that the owner of the Tyrant Bull marrow was in the Dao Wind Empire, Lin Mu furrowed his brows.

"That'll be far..." Lin Mu muttered, then suddenly recalled something. "Wait... The Tournament of the Four Guardian beasts... It's in the Dao Wind Empire, right?" he asked.

"Yes sir, it is indeed in the Dao Wind Empire. Or more accurately, in the Capital Territory of the Dao Wind Empire." The Clerk answered.

"That's good... I can get both things done." Lin Mu was pleased with this.

He was intending to go for the tournament anyway and now he had another task he would be able to finish along with it.

'It'll save me a lot of time and travel too.' Lin Mu thought to himself.

"If you wish to go there yourself, I can provide you with the contact for the local channel there. You need to talk to them if you wish to meet the person with the Tyrant Bull Marrow." The clerk explained.

"Very well. I'm fine with that. Give me their contact then." Lin Mu agreed.

"Please give me your communication jade slip." The clerk asked.

Lin Mu gave it to the man, who then tapped it on the pyramid shaped tool. A second later, a stream of energy entered the jade slip and the clerk returned it to Lin Mu.

"You will be able to use the contact once you are in the Dao Wind Empire." The Clerk spoke.

"Alright." Lin Mu nodded his head.

The clerk wasn't satisfied by just this though. After all, he had not made any sale yet.

"Is there anything else you would like to get, Sir?" The Clerk questioned. "We have several more resources and materials that have recently arrived due to the Tournament."

"Due to the tournament? What do you mean?" Lin Mu questioned.

"Since the tournament is being held, there are a lot of people coming from different worlds to watch it. And along with them, merchants are also coming since it is a good opportunity to sell and promote their goods." The Clerk answered.

'That does make sense. The merchants would not only get to advertise but also get a variety of people looking for things.' Lin Mu thought to himself.

"Hmm... what are the items that have arrived?" Lin Mu decided to take a look first.

"Here you go, sir." The clerk was already prepared for it and showed the list in the formation screen.

Lin Mu browsed through the list and took his time reading about the items. There were indeed some that seemed to be useful to Lin Mu.

'Hmm... I should get some of the elemental materials so I can test out Omnicore Ascendancy later.' Lin Mu thought to himself.

He picked out tens of materials and showed them to the clerk.

"I want all these." Lin Mu stated.

The clerk's eyes widened upon seeing it, but then a wide smile appeared on his face.

"Perfect! I'll get them brought here right away!" The clerk was incredibly excited.

He did a rough tally in his mind, and realized that Lin Mu had bought enough materials that the commission from it will be worth a year's worth of salary for him.

'HAHAHA! This man is really my golden goose!' The clerk shouted in his mind.

With the recent increase in fortune that Lin Mu had, spending this much was basically nothing. It was barely a fraction of a percent of the immortal stones that he had gained from cleaning out two entire Immortal Stone mines.

Lin Mu waited as the Clerk soon got the workers to bring him all the materials that he had requested. These materials were all elemental ones and were either different energy crystals, immortal herbs, or pills.

He checked all of them and verified that they were fine before storing them away.

"Here you go sir." The clerk handed back the Crystal card back to Lin Mu, after taking the payment.

"Please come again soon!" he didn't forget to wish either.

Lin Mu gave a slight nod before leaving the counter and roaming around the Grand Sky Pavilion. He visited different shops and bought things that interested him, or he felt like he needed.

He also got the spatial materials that were needed to expand Little Shrubby's storage belt. Lin Mu wanted to make a belt that could automatically expand to fit his neck, even if he grew many times bigger.

And for that, he found the perfect material too.

It was the fibers from an Immortal plant called as the Whip Snare Vine. It was a carnivorous plant that would spread its thin vines everywhere on the ground, such that they would be distinguishable from the grass and other detritus.

Then when a person or a beast walked over it, the vines would contract rapidly and form a net, pulling them up. This would keep them trapped while the vine would then swallow it into its mouth that was often hidden underground.

Due to this rapid expansive ability of this plant, its fibers were often used to make ropes and stretchable robes.

Lin Mu bought enough of it before discovering another thing that he liked.

It was none other than a set of robes that could actually repair themselves!

Lin Mu knew just how many robes he had turned into rags just by fighting or doing other tasks. While he kept thousands of extra robes to cover for that problem, having a robe that could repair itself was still quite convenient.

Though at the same time, the robe didn't have any significant defensive abilities. It couldn't really take an attack from an immortal without getting torn, but could still withstand some elemental effects.

Lin Mu didn't think much after that and bought a few sets for himself.

'I may as well study them too and make improved versions for myself. After all, I can't use the Dao insights to weave clothes for myself yet.' Lin Mu thought to himself.

Just as Lin Mu finished shopping for this, he received a message on his Jade Slip.