Chapter 931 It's A Lie

Clare's POV:

I was so shocked that I couldn't say a word for quite a while. I looked at the man in front of me in disbelief and choked out, "I'm sorry. Did you just say we should go get married right this afternoon?"

I suspected that I had misheard. Maybe his words didn't really register properly to me. I just told him that I didn't want to get married. Which part did he not understand?

I had gone on a lot of dates with many different young men at my mother's insistence. But this was the first time I had met someone who wanted to marry me right after meeting me for the first time.

Chapter 932 Meeting The Ex-boyfriend

Clare's POV:

With a gentle smile, Lennon pointed at the name on the marriage certificate and jokingly asked, "Why do you care about the name so much? What if I just change my name to Ronald? Will that make you less angry perhaps?"

"That's not the point here! What I care about is not the name but the person. Ronald Byrd was the man my mother has set up for me to have a blind date with, not you!"

"How about this? Let's just say you indeed met this Ronald Byrd guy in the restaurant today, so would you agree to marry him immediately if he asked?"

I frowned and shook my head without a second thought. "Not really."

Lennon chuckled. Satisfied with my answer, he ruffled my hair and said, "It doesn't matter whether my name is Ronald or Lennon then. You agreed to marry me because of me and not for any other reason, right?"

Chapter 933 The Relationship With Marcel

Clare's POV:

Never in a million years did I expect to meet Marcel here. He had slipped out of my life for a whole six years. I would never forget how broken I was when he cheated on me. I must say he did look more mature now than he did six years ago. He wore a suit that did not quite capture his temperament. His dressing made him appear indifferent but his eyes were sharper than ever.

I glared at him with unabated curiosity whilst nursing a blank mind. My heart felt like it had been seared with the Olympic flame. Old, deep seated wounds began to resurface. I was convinced that I had forgotten him and that he was no longer even a footnote in the journal of my life. I was wrong!

Chapter 934 The First Kiss

Clare's POV:

Talbot sighed with disappointment. He said, "My thoughts exactly. I also felt that Tilda was more suitable for the job. But Marcel specifically asked for you. If you don't agree, I'm afraid that we will not be able to work with them. Clare, irrespective of what type of conflict you have with Marcel in the past, please overlook it in the greater interest of our law firm. It was so difficult to get the chance to work with them in the first place. Other law firms will jump at the opportunity if we back out. It will be our loss. Please look at the bigger picture."

Chapter 935 Get Used To It

Clare's POV:

Lennon suddenly kissed me, which made my brain go blank. For a moment, I felt I had lost my ability to think. I could only look at him in complete disbelief.

He kissed me!

His warm and moist lips pressed against mine, and his movements were very gentle. Our bodies were so close that I could smell his fresh and pleasant scent. And at that moment, I felt my heart pounding in my chest.

Our kiss did not last long. When Lennon finally let go of me, he ruffled my hair with a chuckle and dotingly asked, "Sorry. Did I scare you?"

Chapter 936 Buying A Wedding Ring

Clare's POV:

I shook my head slightly, "You don't have to buy me a ring, you know!"

My decision to marry Lennon was a hasty one. We briefly introduced ourselves to each other and then tied the proverbial knot. It all happened so fast that we did not even have time to get the wedding ring. We had put the cart before the horse.

Honestly speaking, I didn't have much hope for this marriage. I agreed to the marriage on impulse. My quick assessment of the situation deemed him fit for me in all respects and the bonus was that he was handsome. Seriously, I did not know how long this marriage would last, so there was no need to purchase a diamond ring. Why should we splurge money unnecessarily anyway?

But Lennon was adamant. "Although we only got married a short while back, I take love and marriage seriously."

Chapter 937 Mocked For Being Poor

Clare's POV:

I summoned the strength to ignore Natalia's sarcastic remarks and hid my anger and resentment in my delicate heart. I did not want to confront her in Lennon's presence. I knew the nasty Natalia only too well. She chose her words carefully to provoke me. Unfortunately for her, I did not behave impulsively and offer her the joy of retaliation.

I took a long, meaningful look at the middle-aged man standing behind Natalia. Lennon was handsomer and younger than Natalia's companion. I realized sadly too late that Natalia and I were not made from the same cloth. She had set her sights on leeching off rich men, while I preferred to live a quiet, stable, peaceful life.

Chapter 938 Purchasing The Pink Diamond Ring

Clare's POV:

The sales assistant immediately went off and returned with the exquisite pink diamond ring. It was breathtakingly beautiful! The magnificent solitaire pink diamond was surrounded by a constellation of smaller shimmering diamonds that were chiseled to perfection. The stunning, radiant masterpiece dazzled in the light. I simply could not take my eyes off this brilliant work of art! Neither could Natalia.

Although I seldom wore jewelry, I believed that no one could resist the temptation of such pink diamonds. After all, diamonds were a girl's best friend! What sheer beauty!

Lennon held my hand and slipped the beautiful ring on my finger. My hand was very thin, and normally a regular sized diamond ring would be big for me. But this ring fitted me perfectly! It almost seemed as if it was tailor-made for me! It was amazing!

Chapter 939 Dad Met An Accident

Clare's POV:

Lennon took my hand and towed me out of the jewelry store. Before we made it all the way out, he deliberately stopped and flashed Alick and Natalia an unfathomable look. He didn't say a word. After a few moments, he walked away and took me along.

I saw the embarrassment on Alick's and Natalia's faces. Natalia turned bright red with rage and stared at me with resentment. I ignored her and left the jewelry store with Lennon.

Chapter 940 I'm Clare's Husband

Clare's POV:

As soon as I walked into the hospital, I took out my phone, called my father, and asked him where he was. When he said that he was waiting for the MRI scan, I quickened my pace.

When I found him, he was sitting in a wheelchair, his shin wrapped with gauze. I didn't know whether or not he had other injuries. When he saw me, he just turned his head, waved his hand, and smiled.

I couldn't smile back at him at all, especially when I saw his injured leg. As I worriedly walked up to him, I asked, "How did you get hit by a car? Does your leg hurt?"
