

Chapter 166

Sharon's reputation had sunk to rock bottom. From the moment she stepped into the doors of the corporation, everyone knew that she, the 'shameless' woman, was here. It was no wonder the manager asked to see her immediately.

Sharon came to the manager of the designing department's office. The manager, Lisa, was a successful single career woman in her early 30s. Before this, Lisa was always neutral with Sharon, but Sharon could now see that Lisa's attitude toward her had changed.

Lisa stared at her coldly, and her words were laced with thorns. "Sharon, it hasn't been too long since you joined the company. How could you seduce President Zachary like those unambitious wh*res? Do you know what will happen to subordinates who try to seduce the president of Central Corporation?"

Sharon curled her lips mockingly. "Lisa, are you trying to fire me?"

Lisa's pupils constricted as she snorted coldly. "You did such a thing and you still have the cheek to stay in the corporation? If I don't fire you now, I'll be the one who's going to get fired."

Sharon looked down. Did everyone think that she had offended Simon just because she kissed him? Did they think that he would not tolerate her very presence because of his swift and decisive personality?

However, it was unsurprising that they would have such thoughts. No one knew that they were husband and wife, after all. She was just a small-time designer who recently joined the company before blatantly provoking the high and mighty president. Even if the president was generous enough to let her stay, the others would not tolerate it. 1

It seemed that she had no choice but to leave now.

In fact, from the day she joined Central Corporation, she had felt that she was being watched. Otherwise, there would not be so many things happening to her.

Maybe leaving would be a good thing for her.

She nodded slightly and said, "I know what to do. I'll hand in my resignation letter soon. I won't embarrass you."

"You're pretty tactful. Go now." Lisa did not give her another glance.

Sharon left the manager's office and went straight to her workstation. Under the weird gazes of her colleagues, she turned on the computer and began to write her resignation letter.

Only Polly took the initiative to come over and talk to her. "Sharon, are you going to resign?"

Sharon nodded. "Yeah."

Polly was a little reluctant, but she could not say anything. After all, Sharon had provoked all the women in the corporation and would surely suffer if she continued to stay here.

Sharon did not expect that she would have to leave under such difficult circumstances after joining Central Corporation so confidently at the beginning.

She quickly wrote her resignation letter and gave it to Lisa. Then, she packed her belongings and left.

Inside the fast-moving black car, Simon was sitting in the backseat with a laptop on his lap. He was staring at the computer screen with a dark and heavy gaze. The screen displayed photos of Sharon from five years ago.

Penelope was sitting next to him as they had gone to discuss today's project together.

This article that was posted anonymously had gone viral in the corporation, so everyone already knew about it. Naturally, as the president, Simon had also found out about it.

It was just that he only had time to see it now.

Penelope had also read the article and saw the photos. Her face was cold as she said, "I told you to divorce her. How could you marry such an eyesore of a woman like her?" She could not even bring herself to look at those photos.

Simon stared at the photos intently as if he had not heard the words of his eldest sister. After a while, he said to Franky who was sitting in the passenger seat. "Save all these photos and get someone to see if they've been photoshopped."

It turned out that the reason he stared at those photos for a long time without making a sound was that he was suspicious of the authenticity of the photos.
