

Chapter 185

"The offer is great, it's just that... I don't want to leave this place."

After she said that, Eugene understood. He curled his lips into a smile. "I never planned on asking you to leave."

She looked at him in confusion. He continued, "We have a branch here. You don't have to go anywhere. You can work here."

He looked at her deeply with a smile in his eyes. "What do you think? Are you still going to reject me?" 3

The three of them spent almost half a day in the amusement park. If Sharon had not said that it was time to leave, the little guy would still have continued playing.

Eugene was responsible for sending them back to their apartment.

This time, Sharon was holding her son's hand while they bade farewell to Eugene by the side of the car.

"Thank you for taking time to have fun with my son and me. I'll treat you to a meal next time if I have the chance."

Sharon smiled and spoke to the man in front of her.

Eugene placed his hands into his pockets. His suit jacket was hanging on his arm as he stood there looking elegant and refined. "We don't have to choose another day. Why don't you treat me to a meal now?"

Sharon had never met someone like him who would straight up request her to treat him to a meal. It was not that she did not want to, but these two days were her mother-and-son time. Tomorrow, she would need to send her son back to the Zachary household.

"I'm so sorry. I'll have to owe you a meal for now. Don't worry, I'll definitely treat you to one soon."

Eugene was just joking with her. "You don't have to apologize. As long as you promise to work with me, then it won't be a problem even if I'm the one treating you to a meal."

They had already talked about this in the amusement park earlier. He told her very clearly that she did not need to move to S City, and that she could just work in their local branch.

Sharon lowered her eyes to think about this. "I'll think about it. I'll give you an answer once I have it."

After she said that, a black car suddenly sped over. In the next second, it stopped right next to them.

Sharon looked at the car and she recognized the car plate. It was Simon's car. Was he back?

For some reason, she already felt a pair of cold and sharp eyes staring at her from the back window. She felt her heartstrings tightening.

Oh no, he saw her together with Eugene...

Why did she have a feeling that he had caught her in the act? Was she stupid? Nothing happened between her and Eugene, so why should she be scared of Simon?

She hid the panic in her eyes. Then, she saw the cold and handsome man getting out of the car. His sharp and piercing eyes were staring straight at them as he strode over with cold aura radiating from his body.

Sharon's grip on her son's hand tightened unconsciously.

"Mommy, Dad is back." Sebastian could not help but voice out when he saw his father.

Eugene turned his eyes insipidly as he smiled superficially at the man who was walking toward them. There were no changes in the expression on his face.

Sharon was still a little nervous. She said to Eugene, "Thank you for sending us home. You should go back first."

"Why? Does he need to leave the moment I get here?"

Simon's clear and distinct voice, thick with dominance, was suddenly heard.

Sharon looked at him after hearing his voice. Their gazes met mid-air and the coldness and sharpness in his eyes caused her scalp to go numb. It was as if she had done something behind his back that let him down.

She took a deep breath. Weird. Why was she scared of him?

Even if she had met up with Eugene, they were just friends, so why should she be scared?

Moreover, he had slept with Rebecca the night before, so who did he think he was to control her friend group? 1
