In Love with a Wealthy Stunner by Callie Chapter 28

Chapter 28

“Mr. Cohen, why did you say that? I taped down your conversation by accident.” Harvey teased, waving his phone.

“Just wait! We’re not done.” Barry decided that he should quit at that moment. His reputation was at stake, so he didn’t want it to get big.

He fled the scene rapidly.

Roslyn let out a long breath after Barry left.

She glanced at Harvey’s nametag and thought, “His name is Harvey Turner?”

Roslyn said sincerely, “Harvey, thank you... If you didn’t step in, I would’ve been fired.”

“If he tries to harass you again, you should threaten him with the recording.” Harvey reminded Roslyn with a smile.

“Did you really record our conversation?” Roslyn was surprised.

Harvey grinned. “No. I was bluffing. He fell for my lie because he was scared.”

Roslyn laughed too.

“You’re mean, Harvey.”

Roslyn paused and snickered.

“I’m not mean. I’m just calculating. To deal with scum like him, you have to use some dirty tricks. You have to be worse than the bad guys to win, doll,” Harvey joked.

“You’re funny.” Roslyn smiled. She found another good quality of Harvey besides being brave and righteous. “Stop calling me doll. It sounds tacky. My name is Roslyn Morton. Call me Roslyn.”

Harvey smirked and teased, “That’s tacky too. I want to call you Rosie.”

“Harvey...stop teasing me.” Roslyn blushed and lowered her head shyly.

Roslyn believed only her boyfriend could call her Rosie.

Harvey felt Roslyn looked like a girl next door.

He thought, “Do all young girls get shy so easily nowadays?”

Harvey smiled. He remembered that Roslyn mentioned she needed money and wanted to help.

He took out a stash of cash from his pocket and shoved it in Roslyn’s hand. “Roslyn, this is about 200 dollars. Use it to pay for your mom's hospital bills."

"No... I can't accept it. You've already helped me a lot. I'm more than grateful. I can't take your money."

Although Roslyn was touched by Harvey's generosity...

"Silly girl, this isn't much. But I want to help you... Just take it. I'll think you don't want to be friends with me if you refuse to take the money..."

Harvey understood that Roslyn was an independent and strong woman. She couldn't accept people's help easily.

So, he pretended to be mad to trick her into accepting the money.

Roslyn fell for it.

"Well... Consider it a loan... I'll pay you back when I receive my paycheck this month..."

Harvey, you're so nice... You're the nicest person to me in the company..."

Roslyn broke down and started sobbing.

She was just an intern and a nobody in the office. Besides the bullying from other senior staff, she had to put up with Barry's harassment too.

Harvey was the only person who showed so much care for her.

The more she thought about it, the harder she cried.

Roslyn had been under great pressure between her mom's illness and Barry's harassment

She had been bearing the burden for a long time. Harvey's kind act was like a balm to her broken heart.

"Roslyn, are you... alright? Why did you cry? Do you have other problems? Talk to me."

Harvey was never good at dealing with women's tears. Yet, Roslyn cried hard over his caring and comfort.

In her grief, Roslyn threw herself at Harvey and sobbed against his firm chest. Her petite body shook in his arms.

Harvey patted Roslyn's back like a loving brother and said softly, "Cry. You'll feel better once you let it all out."

Suddenly, Harvey heard a scowl behind him. "Harvey, you per v e r t. Get your hands off you."

What?

Harvey and Roslyn froze briefly before breaking apart quickly. Harvey turned around and saw the person who yelled at him. It was... Candice.

“Ms. Ferrell, actually...” Roslyn wanted to explain the situation. But Candice had cut her off by dragging her behind her back.

“Roslyn, you don’t have to say anything. Was Harvey harassing you? Don’t be afraid. I’ll defend you and make this per v e r t pay.”

Candice was raging, though she jumped to conclusions.

She just got back to the company. As soon as she got out of her car, Candice heard a woman sobbing. She tracked the sound and found Harvey hugging Roslyn tightly.

Candice immediately decided that Harvey was harassing Roslyn.

“No... Ms. Ferrell, you’re mistaken... Harvey wasn’t harassing me,” Roslyn said hastily.

“Are you afraid of Harvey because you’re just an intern? Is that why you lie? Don’t worry. There’s no need to fear him. I’ll find justice for you and teach him a lesson.”

Candice shook her head, thinking that Roslyn was worried about being retaliated.

“Hey, Candice, you have such a livid imagination. Roslyn told you that you were mistaken. Why did you still accuse me of something I didn’t do? Do you want to take the chance to retaliate?” Harvey couldn’t help but point out the flaw in Candice’s logic.

“How dare you call me by my name in the office? This is a disrespect to your supervisor! You just violated another rule.”

Candice was biased against Harvey. She remembered how Harvey hugged her forcefully at their first meeting because he thought she was a thief. Candice was certain it was Harvey’s excuse to molest her. She grew angrier as she thought of it.

“Hey, this is unfair. You hold a prejudice against me. Why do I have to respect you in this situation?” Harvey was frustrated.

He thought, “I kissed her once. Why does she always target me? If she’s mad about it, she can kiss me back. I won’t object.”

“I don’t have any prejudice against you. I merely want to help all the female employees to avoid your foul acts... Come with me, Roslyn. I’ll bring you to Ms. Patel. You can tell her all about Harvey’s hideous crimes. Don’t worry. I got your back.”

Candice said confidently and tried to drag Roslyn out.

To her surprise, Roslyn stood on the spot and refused to move.

“What’s wrong, Roslyn?”

“I can’t go with you, Ms. Ferrell.”

“Why?”

“Because Harvey is a good person.”
