

Widow 20

Chapter 20

He pinched the woman's little face. "Did you kiss people like this before?"

"Of course not. I have kissed your cheek only." Crystal's innocent eyes were like limpid streams that hid no secrets. "You treat me well. Of course, I want to kiss you."

In fact, he hadn't treated her really well. How pitiful she used to be, so that she could be satisfied so easily?

Harold had always been indifferent. There were too many pitiful people in the world. The law of the jungle was his principle. But now, his heart suddenly became soft. He slowly felt that... the Evans family had gone too far.

This girl was so petite. She might not be well-fed when she was young.

"Luke," Harold frowned.

"Yes, sir." Luke had been waiting at the door. "Master White, what can I do for you?"

Harold ordered, "You're in charge of Madame's meals. Don't let her be hungry no matter what."

He looked at Crystal, "Whatever you want to eat, just she just won the jackpot, excitedly hugging and kissing Harold again. The man pinched her face and pushed her back, looking like a gentleman.

him as long as he gave her food! Crystal happily sat back in her seat had changed so much after just one day as now she the King of Hell was utterly possessive. As long as it was the thing or the person he wanted, anyone attempted to get his or nineteen?"

years old. I can be considered a young

gone

to university, Crystal was a little sad. Harold caught her emotion at first glance.

W that Crystal Evans looked ordinary and got a strange temper. People in Sunshine Village hated her as countryside woman couldn't go

Dora was beautiful, elegant and well-educated. She had gone to T University, one of the top five universities in the country. She just graduated in the exam." Crystal lowered her head, told people that she would send her to the city to work, and until early in the morning. Fortunately, someone had secretly opened the door for her. She hurriedly went to the school to take the exam. On the way, she got a fever, which made her almost faint when she arrived at the examination room. It resulted in her bad performance that day. She