

Widow 307

Chapter 307

The old man had no choice but to express his gratitude. "Thank you... thank you, sir!"

Willis said. "I should be the one apologizing to you."

Antony said lazily. "Director Willis, we're not going to take a statement. I believe that you'll know everything he's done after you take a walk and ask around."

Willis said. "We will investigate carefully."

At this time, the owner of the barbecue restaurant came over and said. "Wait, wait, wait... Since my shop has been ruined, you should also compensate for my loss, right?"

One of the policemen said. "Don't worry. We'll ask them to compensate you according to the price after we find out the truth. You can sort it out first and come to the police station with the bill."

Only then did the shop owner let out a sigh of relief.

Willis led his men to escort Herman and his friends to the police car. The group of people marched away. Crystal said, "I feel that I have done a good deed!"

one who fought with others." Crystal said. "You're so good at fighting! I've never seen anyone as powerful as but he still couldn't help laughing. Even when he got the first place in school, he wasn't this happy. He said, "It's just so-so. Look at how inexperienced you are." Crystal curled her lips. "That's right. I've never seen the world little girl, you're throwing me away after you took advantage of me, aren't you?" Antony him. "Let go. Aren't the barbecue restaurant. Only the fan was blowing. The two of he not let her go, he even tightened his grip and said. "I'm not letting you

Crystal puffed up her cheeks. "I'm going on the forehead. "No manners. Call

Crystal said, "No."

done here.

leaving. I came here before finishing my meal. I had hungry, go and find

Antony was speechless.

"If I pick up your call her finger on her phone. Antony's phone rang and he subconsciously picked