

Widow 401

Chapter 401

Helena smiled and said, "You look better in real life."

Marcus did not reply. Instead, he said to Madam Kyla, "Grandma, I brought the embroidery artist were looking for for you."

After all, Madam Kyla was old. It took her a long time to remember this. She said, "Yes... yes, I asked you in the morning. You brought her here. Let me see her."

Marcus looked back at Crystal. Everyone in the reception room looked at Crystal too.

She was a little nervous. She walked up to Madam Kyla and said softly, "Nice to meet you, Old Madam."

When Madam Kyla saw her, she suddenly stood up, which scared everyone. Helena quickly went to hold her. "Old Madam... What's wrong with you?"

However, Madam Kyla pushed Helena's hand away and staggered up to Crystal. Tears welled up in her eyes as she held her hand. "Chloe... Chloe, you're finally back to see mom... you're finally willing to come back to see me..."

"Chloe" came out, the atmosphere in years. How could this girl have any trace of the noble and elegant young lady of the Kyla family back said gently, "You've got the wrong person. This is the embroidery master brought

I didn't mistake her for hugged by the old woman. She could smell the sandalwood on the withered body, which made her feel at ease.

Crystal's nose twitched.

that he was bringing her to the Kyla family today, which meant that he was very gentle. "This is the embroidery master I brought, not

she hesitantly released her hands

"No," Marcus said.

Marcus. She slowly calmed down, and her mind became a little sober. She said, "Miss, I'm sorry. I recognized the wrong person just now... I felt familiar with you as soon as I saw you. I thought that my daughter had with a bitter smile and said, "She has been dead for 19 years. How