

Widow 508

Chapter 508

Crystal didn't see that bloody scene again, but maybe it was due to the visual impact caused by the death of Jacqueline, so Crystal even automatically outlined a similar scene in her mind.

It reminded her of the feeling of being forced to eat food that she hated when she was a child. She felt sick subconsciously.

Harold's expression was cold as he ordered, "Clean up this place."

In a hurry, someone went to deal with it. In the eyes of the crowd, Harold picked up Crystal and said to Luke, "You deal with the rest."

Luke immediately nodded. Under everyone's gazes of surprise, envy, and jealousy, Crystal was carried out by Harold step by step. The lights were bright, and they were like a painting that was getting fainter and fainter. Finally, they gradually disappeared from everyone's sight.

If it were anyone else, they would definitely stay behind to appease the guests when something like this happened at the banquet. However, Harold was different. It was an honor for them to be able to join his banquet. As such, no one wanted him to leave the banquet ahead of time. However, they all thought to themselves that this Fifth Miss of the Evans family seemed to be blessed.

something shining in the flesh. He stopped on the gloves and picked up the shining thing. The person next to him hesitated and said, "It replied, "Yes, it's similar to a crystal bead. My daughter also has a bracelet made of was lost in thought.

find this kind of thing on the light was swept over. It's easy to recognize. At that time, we thought that the ornaments on Jacqueline's body were blown up. But now, thinking about it, it's unlikely that she bead, stood up, and said,

"Yes,"

and sighed softly, "It seems that it's time to who were not loyal would only betray was as red as a tomato. She was placed on the sofa by Harold and was