

Widow 52

Chapter 52

Dan Hays was an honest and kind man. He had always been nice to Crystal. Even though he knew that Crystal wasn't his biological daughter, he had never changed. But he was too weak he didn't dare to go against his mother and wife. Most of the time, he couldn't help Crystal. He could only watch the poor little girl being bullied.

"I don't have money." Crystal said calmly. "You also know that the Evans family brought me back just to marry a dead man. How could they give me money?"

"Pffft!" Debbie said, "You are the real daughter of the Evans family. I don't believe that you can't get the money! You just want to see the luxury city and don't want to help us poor relatives! Although you aren't a child of the Hays family, our family has raised you for nineteen years. How can you be so ungrateful?"

Crystal squatted under the tree, looking at the stars in the sky, "When the Evans family came to pick me up, they gave you fifteen thousand dollars. I knew that."

"What can fifteen thousand dollars do? I've saved up all the money to buy a house for later," Debbie said, "Besides, fifteen thousand dollars is the fee for feeding you all those years.

brother Shouldn't we daughter, they'd given. the Hays money and let them live a rich life, which had also spoiled Debbie's appetite. She realized that as long as Crystal was still

Dora." Crystal said, "She has Collins chimed in, "No! She's a rich young lady. How could we ask her was strange. Was this blood relationship? She called Mia her mother for nineteen years, and this woman had always treated her coldly. And, Mia had never seen Dora before, but she still tried go to Dora. After all, she's the child of the Hays family. No matter that, she hung up the phone and put is the daughter you've been raising for nineteen years! How ungrateful she is! If I had known earlier, I would have strangled her to pain. It's not a big deal." "You still want to protect her! Is she your biological daughter?! She's not!

What's the use of protecting her like this? How