

Widow 64

Chapter 64

"I know." Walter said, "That cafe is run by my friend. You asked the right person. I'm going to find him. Do you want to go with me?"

"Thank you." Crystal said, "But it's too much trouble. Just tell me the address and I'll go by myself." "It doesn't matter." How could Walter let her go? He said sincerely, "In fact, I am also a shareholder of the cafe. I started recruiting people one or two months ago, but they didn't stay because they couldn't bear the hardships. We are worried. If you can work hard, your salary can be negotiated." One of the reasons why Walter was able to make a living in this industry was that he had a kind face and looked like a good person.

Crystal hesitated for a moment and said, "But I can't work for long. I'm about to start school at the end of August."

"It's okay." Walter said, "It's because of the summer holiday that we are very busy lately. If you are willing to come over, it will solve the urgent problem. Why don't you come with me to the store? The work is really tiring. You can have a look at the process. You are young, so I'm afraid that you won't be able to endure the hardship."

"Okay." Crystal nodded. "I can endure it."

Walter smiled and said, "Then let's go."

Crystal's vigilance, Walter did not drive his own car, but took a taxi. After getting in
