Chapter 651

“Don’t go too far?” Natalie looked into his eyes and asked, “Did I go too far?”

Marcus let go of her hand and turned to leave. Natalie leaned against the table and said, “Marcus, why don’t you find me a place to sleep?”

Marcus ignored her and slammed the door shut. Even if the door was closed, he could still hear Natalie’s laughter.

“... What was so funny?”

The staff didn’t know why he was full of hostility when he came out again. He whispered, “Second, Second Young Master...”

“Arrange a lounge for her.” Marcus suppressed his temper and said, “Let her stay with Crystal.”

Marcus leaned against the chair. Compared with facing Natalie, he was much more relaxed now. He tapped his fingers on the table and laughed. “How do you know that those who have better backgrounds and looks are no better than you?”

“They’re just a bunch of good-for-nothings who were born with good-looking faces...”

Marcus said, “You probably don’t know yet.”

“What?”

“Crystal entered Princeton University as the top student in the province. She failed to perform well in the college entrance examination and only got 714 points. However, she should still be the champion in your class, right?”

Elvira raised her head in horror. “I... I will go to jail?”

Marcus clicked his tongue. He was surprised by the lack of knowledge of the law of this batch of college students.

“I can’t go to jail... I can’t!” Elvira gritted her teeth. “I don’t want to go to jail!”

“Then tell me.” Antony said, “Where did that box of medicine come from? Perhaps you’ll only need to face light punishment.”

“That box of medicine...” Elvira covered her mouth and shook her head with tears in her eyes. “I can’t say it... I can’t say it!”

In fact, Marcus had also guessed that the other party must have taken advantage of Elvira’s weakness to be able to make her do such a thing, making sure that she would not spill it even if she was found out.

When Marcus came out of the interrogation room, it was already two o'clock in the middle of the night. He passed by the lounge and pushed the door open to take a look. Crystal and Natalie were lying on the same bed and sleeping soundly. Those who didn't know the truth would think that Marcus was in trouble.

"... Marcus snorted, closed the door, and said, "You should deal with the remaining."

"Okay," the staff said softly. "I'll get someone to do it right away."

"I'll come to pick her up in the morning," Marcus said again.

"This..." The staff was a little embarrassed. "If it were tomorrow morning, there might not be enough time..." Marcus turned to look at him and said softly, "My sister was taken away in public. It's okay that she didn't return for a whole night, but if she still can't go back the next day, the rumors will ruin her. Do you need me to say more?" O

"Marcus?" Harold leaned against the sofa and seemed a little surprised. "Did he go in person?"

"Yes." On the other side of the phone, Luke said, "The matter has been dealt with. The Second Young Master is usually in the entertainment circle, but now it seems that he really has some means."

Harold laughed. "Which one of the Evans family members do you think is easy to deal with?"

"Yes." Luke sighed, "Even Mrs. White sent herself to be checked on the third day of school." Harold, "..."

"There's no need to count Crystal in," Harold said.

Luke, "Should we stay out of this matter?"

"Since Marcus has already dealt with it, why should we interfere?" Harold raised his head and looked at the bright moon outside the window. At this moment, there was no wind, and the stars were hazy. The light spots cast by the branches and leaves in the garden were like ghostly shadows, twisted and ferocious.

"How is she?"

Luke naturally knew who his boss was asking about. He said, "Don't worry. She's sleeping soundly right now." Harold, "..."

Crystal muttered, "What's so good about Marcus? Why are you so crazy about him?" Natalie replied, "I'm probably looking for trouble."

Crystal, "..."

The two spoke ill of Marcus together, but they had to rely on Marcus to get out.

The man seemed to be in a particularly bad mood today. He thought that no one would recognize him if he put on a mask. There was no expression on his face. As soon as they saw him, Natalie raised Crystal's hand and said, "Second Brother, Crystal wants to eat steamed buns, roasted pancakes, and shrimp dumplings!" Crystal, "?!"

Since when did I say that?

Marcus looked at Natalie quietly, but his face was still expressionless. Crystal was worried and asked, "Are you... suddenly paralyzed by a stroke?"

In the past, she felt that Marcus's smile was very scary, but now she felt that his expressionless face was even scarier.

Marcus suddenly stood up. "Since you're hungry, let's go."

Crystal looked at Marcus in horror. “You... Are you really only going to send me back at night?”

Could it be a corpse that would be sent back?!

Marcus snorted and said, “I’m worried that my IQ will become lower if I take one more look at you.
Hurry up and eat. I’ll send you back after you finish eating.”

Hearing this, Crystal was relieved.

*... Can you just endure it after listening to what he said?” Natalie was shocked.

Crystal looked embarrassed. “I can’t defeat him.”

The blue veins on the back of Marcus’s hand became more and more obvious.

He unbuttoned three of his shirt’s buttons. The collar of his shirt was pulled open casually, and his collarbones could be seen. Perhaps it was because his skin was white that the blue blood vessels could be vaguely seen.

After a long while, his Adam’s apple slid up and down, revealing his usual impeccable, polite, and gentle smile. “Miss Natalie, how do you know that I didn’t mean it when I said it?”

His iris tissue melanin was born rare, so his pupils showed the color of amber, which was the kind of amber that had been polished for hundreds of millions of years. It was warm and cold.

The beautiful amber, which had been buried underground for thousands of years, was petrified under pressure and heat.

Marcus’s gentleness covered up his coldness, which was tempered by the change of fate.

In the past, Natalie loved his eyes the most. No matter how precious the gem was, it could not be compared with them. With just a glance, she could read a lot of stories from them.

“That’s to say.” Natalie smiled and said, “Did you really want to marry me at that time?”

"Don't worry," Antony said. "I won't trouble you next time."

"I'll treat you to a meal next time, Second Brother."

Marcus raised his wrist and looked at the time. It was already ten o'clock in the morning. He had calmed down in such a short time. He said, "I have work to do. I have to go first."

"Brother, take care." Antony waved his hand obediently.

Crystal followed him and waved her hand, saying in a low voice, "Brother, take care."

"Hello." The middle-aged man sat in the interrogation room. Although his posture was casual, the sense of oppression he had after being in a high position for a long time was still overwhelming, which made Matilda shrink.

She looked at the man in horror. "You are..."

"Don't be nervous." The man said lightly, "I just came over to have a look."

He looked at Matilda for a while and said, "You are brave but very stupid."

"...What?"

"Before you framed someone, you didn't even find out her background first. Isn't this enough to prove your stupidity?" The man's voice was neither fast nor slow. He looked as if he was talking casually about the weather today. "Crystal is not someone you should mess with."
