

Widow 701

Chapter 701

The teenage boy at the age of seventeen or eighteen was just at the time of youth and sunshine. Even the ugly school uniform that had been criticized by students for more than ten years at Princeton University looked particularly neat and handsome on him. The young man has a tall and straight figure, like a tree growing in the haze, instantly attracting people's attention.

Even though he didn't fit in with the other boys who wore various limited edition luxury sneakers, because of his handsome appearance, he quickly became a celebrity in the school within a week of enrollment. According to Mrs. Lauren, nearly half of the female students in their experimental class had a crush on him.

Mrs. Lauren looked at the young man who stood against the wall without saying a word and sighed deeply. The other parents had a lot to say, especially Roland's mother, who came from the best family in the class. Roland's family background was indeed very good. His biological father was a very famous person in City W. He often had his face on TV. Maybe because he only had such a son when he was 40, he was so terrible that even dogs would shake their heads. Mrs. Lauren's head ached even more. "Madam Warren, calm down. I've already contacted Kyle's guardians. They'll be here soon."

Madam Warren was about to say something when someone knocked on the thick wooden door. The girl's voice was light and hesitant. "Hello... Is this Mrs. Lauren's office?"

The teachers, students, and parents in the office, at least a dozen people, all looked at the door.

The girl wore a simple white dress without any patterns, but the cutting was very delicate and very suitable for her figure. It made her look very young.

Her face was even more beautiful with almond-shaped eyes, a raised nose, red lips, and a palm-sized oval face. Her skin was fair and moist. At the beginning of September, the scorching sun had cooled down a little because of her arrival.

Roland and the others were stunned.

Mrs. Lauren was also stunned for a moment. She quickly stood up and said, "Hello, I

Kyle was still two months away from turning 18, but he was already taller and leaner than most adults. Without realizing it, he had grown to at least 182 centimeters, and to see his wound clearly, Crystal had to stand on tiptoe. She felt a bit frustrated. She couldn’t understand why he had grown so much taller than her, even though they had eaten almost the same amount of food since they were young. Although Debbie and Mia sometimes give him special treatment, Kyle doesn’t eat much.

At this moment, Crystal finally noticed how deep and profound the young man’s features had become. Although there was still a hint of youthfulness, it was also mixed with the sharpness of an adult man.

There were wounds on his lips, brow ridge, and forehead. Because his skin was white, it looked particularly scary. Crystal's heart ached terribly.

Kyle had never been wronged like this. She chose to ignore Roland, who was wrapped up like a mummy, and his gang of bruised-faced men.

Madam Warren was not afraid of Mrs. Lauren. In her eyes, people like Mrs. Lauren were like ants that she could crush with ease. She didn't care about Mrs. Lauren's warning and arrogantly said, "There's only one outcome I'll accept for this matter, and that's for this poor boy to drop out of school." She sneered at Crystal and added, "You should save up some money to take your little brother to see a doctor. Who knows what he might do when he grows up?"

Madam Warren's words would be considered very insulting even if they were directed towards an adult, let alone a minor under the age of 18.

In fact, Crystal seldom got angry. Many times, she felt that it was not worth it. But at this moment, Madam Warren's face really irritated her.

"I've heard a bit about Roland's situation before I came here," said Crystal with a blank expression on her face. "I heard he's been a troublemaker since he was young, skipping classes and getting into fights. He only got into middle and high school his school years, he Kilian crossed his arms and said, "Mrs. Lauren, I'm tired from sitting. Can't I stand and talk? And... you're favoring that poor boy so much. Is there something between you two?"

Mrs. Lauren was stunned at first, and then said incredulously, "What are you talking about?"

The good education she received made it hard for her to believe that someone could say such a thing.

Originally, Kilian was a gangster. By chance, he became a driver for Roland's father. Because of his good skills, he was also a part-time bodyguard. Because of this, his son, who was ignorant and incompetent, could only follow the young master, Roland, to such a good school in Princeton University. Naturally, he was on the side of Roland. Seeing that Mrs. Lauren's face turned red, he said frivolously, "I just said it casually. Did I really guess it correctly? because of Larissa? I think you haven't woken up from your dream, have you?"

At this moment, he seemed to have something to rely on. He stared at Kyle coldly and turned to Madam Warren and said, "Mom, call Jennifer. It's okay if he doesn't want to solve it. Just ask the school to dismiss him!"

The teenager, who had just turned 18, had no respect for the teacher. Growing up in his parents' indulgence and the praise of his peers, his values were already very distorted. He was not eager to escape responsibility, but he simply did not think he was at fault. He had his mother call an acquaintance to handle the matter, which was just a sign of his impatience.

Madam Warren had no reason not to respond to her precious son. She immediately took out her phone and made a phone call. After saying a few words, she hung up proudly. She stared at Mrs. Lauren and said, "Why don't you print your resignation letter now?"

She looked at Kyle seriously. "Something else happened in the toilet that day, right?"

Kyle lowered his eyes.

Crystal pinched his hand and asked in a gentle voice, "Kyle, is there anything inconvenient for you to say?"

"Yes." Kyle replied, "I promised not to say anything."

Crystal sighed softly, knowing that it had something to do with Larissa.

Roland was such a playboy and Larissa was such an outstanding and beautiful girl...

There was simply no need to guess what would happen.

Crystal was thinking about whether she should fight with Madam Warren directly. After all, it was just the Warren Family. They were not so capable in City W.

Suddenly, there was a rush of footsteps. A girl in school uniform appeared at the door with a pale face and panting heavily. She was very beautiful, with delicate eyes and white skin. She must be a class beauty or school beauty.

"What?!" Everyone in the room was stunned, including Secretary Jennifer.

She looked at Larissa in shock. "What... did you say?!"

Larissa was trembling all over. Crystal held her and patted her on the back to comfort her. "All right, all right... Don't be afraid. No one can hurt you now."

Larissa leaned on Crystal's shoulder and saw the twisted faces of Roland and the others.

She seemed to have returned to yesterday. Someone pulled her hair and dragged her into the dark men's toilet. The last light of the day was isolated. She sank into the deepest mire and lay on the ground, trying to grab something, but there was nothing...
Just as she was in despair, someone suddenly came in. She didn't even have a clear look at the other party's face before Roland's group of people were already knocked to Everyone in the office looked at the man who suddenly appeared.

He was wearing a simple light grey shirt, layered with a thin windbreaker on the outside. His lower half was clad in black pants, and his feet were in a pair of matching military boots. The laces were tied in a neat and standard straight knot, exuding a relaxed and casual posture, yet revealing an overall sense of order and solemnity.

Secretary Jennifer was trembling. "Who... who are you?"

Before Larissa could say anything, Madam Warren shrieked, "What are you talking Larissa's frail shoulders were shaking uncontrollably. Her emotions had already reached a breaking point, having to share her most painful experience in front of so many people and facing the most direct threat. This 17-year-old girl had reached her limit, but she still gritted her teeth, held onto Crystal's hand tightly, and cried out,

"Sister...I'm willing. I'm willing...! want these b*stards to be punished, I want justice!"
