

Widow 73

Chapter 73

Alissa taught Crystal how to operate the machine cashier and wrap up the cake. Crystal soon learned how to do everything. Alissa praised her for being smart and asked her to take care of the store. Then she went into the kitchen and made the birthday cakes ordered by the guests.

The chime at the door rang. Crystal said "Welcome", but the guest walked straight to the counter. Crystal looked up and saw a man in a simple gray shirt with a windbreaker in his arms. He lowered his eyelashes and looked at her with a smile. "Hey, you're working."

Crystal: "..."

Crystal quickly took a few steps back. "You... why are you here?"

Corey said, "To buy things? You don't welcome me?"

Crystal wanted to say that she didn't welcome him, but the store was not hers. She said, "Then you should go and look for the things you want to buy."

Corey raised his eyebrows, put his hands on the counter, and said, "Miss Evans, did you sleep well last night?"

he

his eyes. "The moment I closed my eyes, I could

Crystal was speechless.

and because she is an

if he was very good-looking, the sinister look in his eyes couldn't be driven away, so when people saw him, they the Young Madam of the White family." Corey leaned against the counter and said, "But the Young Madam isn't in my hands at all. I can't hand her over, but trouble first. If you didn't rob me, would you have been scolded thought that although Crystal looked like a coward, she was very didn't rob you, wouldn't you still be guarding Harold's body? Would you be able to live a carefree life now?" Corey said, "It's fine

Crystal hurriedly said, "I, I, I,

that I've worked so hard into the cashier, and then put the cake in front of Corey. "I just lost a huge

Corey: "..."