

Widow 731

Chapter 731

The man did not speak.

Harold slowly put on his gloves. This was his habit. He didn't like his hands to be stained with blood when he was in a situation where he had to fight.

"Actually, I know you'll find me sooner or later." The man suddenly said, "But I didn't expect it to be so fast."

"This shouldn't be fast, right?" Harold said indifferently, "After Valeri died, you defected. Let me think... it's already been eight years. Do you plan to hide in a place like this for the rest of your life? Leo."

Leo let out a cold laugh from his throat. "I've said it many times. Valeri's death has nothing to do with me!"

"Since you didn't-" Harold suddenly grabbed his clothes. His eyes were as cold as the most

"I just wanted to know something." Harold laughed, but there wasn't the slightest hint of a smile in his eyes. "Who wants to kill you?"

Leo's face twitched for a moment, and he opened his blood-stained teeth. "Don't you want to kill me?"

"Leo." Harold's tone was calm. "If you don't want to say anything, then your life is meaningless to me."

"Perhaps you can take this opportunity to think about whether you should explain it clearly to me or enter the interrogation room and let your old friends hear the trial...
You know, they all hate you. As long as they know that you are still alive, they will use Harold walked out of the store. There were very few cars at this time. The hook in the sky was like snow, making the sky a little colder. He stood under the tree and lit a cigarette.

From this point of view, the winding road had been spreading to City W. The city was extremely prosperous, and it was the heart of the whole Hallbury. Even at two o'clock in the morning, the lights were still as bright as day. The huge LED advertising screen, the flowing neon lights, and the endless traffic lights gathered into a sea of lights. Just looking at it, one could see that it was extremely extravagant, and it was very noisy.

Leo was dragged into the car. Luke stood to the side and watched. He ordered, "Tie him up tightly. Tie his hands and feet up separately. Take away all the things on his body."

He glanced at Leo, who was gasping for breath in the trunk of the SUV, and said lightly, "You used to be the instructor of the special forces. Even though more than ten years have passed, I still have to respect you." Leo couldn't help but laugh. "You know me?"

Crystal had a strange dream.

In her dream, she stood in the small yard of the Hays residence. She was very young, about two or three years old, and she couldn’t remember a lot of things.

Human memory was a very magical thing. When you thought you had forgotten it, in fact, it was just buried in the deepest place, and you would suddenly think of it when you saw a familiar scene.

The torrential rain from the day before yesterday resonated with the sound of the rain hitting the surface of the umbrella. She stood behind someone and saw a group of adults entering the Hays family. They were all too tall for Crystal to see their faces clearly. However, there was a little girl who looked about eight or nine years old and was wearing a beautiful floral skirt.

The adults went in to talk about something. The little girl

Harold propped himself up slightly. "You saw Sadie in Sunshine Village?"

"Well... but it should be my imagination." Crystal said, "I don't remember it anymore. At that time, Sister Sadie should have been a daughter of a rich family in City W. How could she have appeared in Sunshine Village?"

Harold's eyes were deep. He rubbed Crystal's hair and said, "It's said that you'd dream of someone if you always think of her during the day. You dreamt of Sadie in your dreams. How much do you like her?"

Crystal was shocked. "Who wouldn't like someone as gentle as Sister Sadie?"

Harold, "Your big brother."

She was speechless.

Crystal scolded Danny. "He's just a brat who doesn't appreciate what he has."

Crystal had lived for nineteen years and had seen all kinds of people. However, she would rank Harold as the most shameless person she had met.

How did he manage to be so self-righteous?!

Crystal held the toy in her arms and almost pulled down the Corgi's ear.

She held her breath in the silent condemnation of Dana in the eyes. After all, she cared about her face more than Harold. She didn't have the nerve to tell her what had happened in the morning. She just said in a muffled voice, "Anyway, I don't want to sleep with him in the same room!"

Dana tried to persuade her. "How can you not sleep in the same room? Only married couples who don't have any feelings for each other..."

This sentence enlightened Crystal. She looked at Harold and said, "That's right. I forgot that we don't have a marriage certificate. We can't be considered husband and wife. I can even move away."

Speaking of this, she quickly fumbled for her phone and called Antony. However, as

When Harold was in the army in the early years, he was surrounded by energetic boys of 17 or 18 years old. It was a disaster for a bunch of men to be together. Therefore, if anyone had a girlfriend, it would probably shock everyone in the whole dormitory building. Unfortunately, one of Harold's roommates was a professional lover who had fallen in love at an early age. He knew how to hook up with a little girl since he was in kindergarten. When he entered the army, he had already dated 23 girls before. When it came to the day that they would be given their mobile phones back, everyone in the dormitory would be forced to listen to him talking to his girlfriend. His disgusting tone made people feel sick.

The most terrible thing was that this pair of lovers were very fond of each other.

During the nights when their mobile phones had been confiscated, the boys in the dormitory would listen to him giving useless flirting tips and hear him talking about his girlfriend.

When Sadie woke up, it was in the afternoon.

In fact, she didn't really want to stay in the hospital. She had been lying here for too long, which was really annoying.

But Danny's attitude was very firm.

Sadie was soft-hearted, but no one could force her to do anything. But when she saw Danny's gloomy face, she could only sigh in her heart and choose to shut up.

At this time, Danny should be in the company. But the moment Sadie opened her eyes, she felt that someone was sitting by the bed. Her eyelashes trembled. She saw the man's elegant side face. Seeing that she had woken up, the man smiled slightly and said, "Hello, Miss Sadie."

"..." Sadie moved slightly. Marcus had already thoughtfully adjusted the bed so that Sadie could look straight into his eyes.

"Speaking of which, we seem to have never met formally." Marcus stretched out his hands with him

Under the cold white light, Marcus crossed his hands on his knees. In fact, he was sitting very leisurely, but he looked at Sadie with scrutiny in his eyes. “What do you think, Miss Sadie?”

“Perhaps I knew about these things before.” Sadie rubbed the envelope with her fingers and then smiled.

“But now, I have forgotten them all.”

Marcus said, “In fact, it’s hard for me to imagine. If you were the one who arranged that car accident, what kind of reason did you have to do it while risking your life? If it was me who did it, then there could only be one reason.”

He looked at Sadie quietly and said, “I was eager to escape something.”

"I heard that Marcus came to see you." Danny said simply, "He has never visited others without a reason. What did he say to you?"

"Nothing much." Sadie said, "He just showed me a photo."

"Yes." Sadie nodded. After a pause, she said, "It's an old photo. It's what I looked like when I was a child, but I forgot it."

Danny frowned slightly, which made his eyes look deeper. His face was originally fierce. At this moment, he looked like he could easily scare a child to tears.

Marcus did not give up and continued to investigate. After nearly 20 years, he still did not believe in the cause of Chloe's death.

“If he comes to you again in the future, you can choose not to see him.” Danny walked to Sadie’s bed and said, “You are a patient. You need your rest. Do you want to drink some water?”
