

Widow 75

Chapter 75

It had been more than 10 years since Corey started taking over the Coombs family when he was 16. He had seen all kinds of people, including the tough ones, the smooth ones, the cunning ones, and the fawning ones. Of course, he had also seen cowards, but it was really the first time for him to see a coward like Crystal.

"It's a good deal." Corey raised his eyebrows. "I promise I won't stab your vital parts. I'll take care of your medical expenses. You'll be lying in the hospital for two months, and you'll get seven hundred thousand dollars. Many people won't earn such an amount in their lifetime."

Crystal was shocked by the calmness of his words. "Do you not know where to spend your money?" When someone was too rich, they would look for people to stab for fun?

Corey said, "Didn't you just say that you are short of money? It's such a good deal. If I tell others the same thing, hundreds of people will come to me soon. Do you believe it?"

Crystal took a cautious step back and said, "I'm afraid of pain. I won't do it."
