

Read Novel MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 1661

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 1661—Everyone was speechless as Mr. Ellison's demeanor underwent a 360-degree shift when Nicole appeared. The atmosphere in the room was now awkward where all but one had inexplicably become a little timid.

The parents of the other two students were not from distinct families, so it made sense that neither of them knew who Nicole was. Still, they were perplexed to have Mr. Ellison addressing Nicole the way he did.

'Is it possible that she is also from the Riddle family? Karen was difficult enough to deal with and now, we have another that Mr. Ellison knows well too. It is hard enough for us to prove our daughter's innocence.'

Nicole looked at the couple who were eyeing one another and with frosty eyes, she asked, "Are you the two girls who had thrown the pots at us?"

The other party was nothing more than just a student, though she realized that her identity might presumably be unusual.

The father of one of the students stepped forward and unconvincingly, he said, "So what if my daughter had lost grip of the flowerpot? She forced them into it!"

As he spoke, he pointed at Karen's back with righteous indignation.

Raine raised her chin and looked at the other student's parents with an expression of disbelief. "Don't spout nonsense if you don't have a shred of evidence!"

"What kind of evidence do you want!? These two students here are the witnesses!" The father of the other student argued, fearing that Nicole would not give them a chance to prove themselves.

Mr. Ellison interrupted them and in an icy tone, he said, "Enough. What kind of place do you think this is? It's not a market for you to negotiate, let alone debate. All of you will be expelled!"

After hearing Mr. Ellison's words, the parents of the two girls kept mum, not daring to utter another word.

Noticing that Mr. Ellison was talking to her, Karen immediately got excited and perked up, "Mr. Ellison, I didn't want to attend this meeting today, but since the matter has been cleared up, I will leave."

Mr. Ellison was having a headache, but upon seeing that Nicole had come to support her family members, he could only grit his teeth and let the matter go.

However, before he could open his mouth to say another word, Nicole sat down across from him and said, "I didn't get the chance to explain this matter clearly, but I was the one who had been hit by the pot, so that should count right?"

As soon as these words left her mouth, everyone present in the room was stunned.

Mr. Ellison was dumbfounded too, and it took some time for him to react. "Hit..."

He immediately looked at Lulu who had followed Nicole here. "Are you the one who was hit by the flowerpot?"

Lulu had never spoken to Mr. Ellison before, and so, she was nervous.

Racked by anxiety, she awkwardly stated, "I should have been the one that the pot had fallen on...but Nicole saved me, and her shoulders got hurt because of it..."

When everyone heard that Nicole had been struck by the falling flowerpot, they all gasped, with Raine secretly feeling a gush of pride at her victory. 'I thought those two did not manage to hit her, but I didn't know that she got hurt trying to protect Lulu! Serves her right.'

Nicole noticed the nonchalant expression on Raine's face, and her eyes narrowed slightly. 'She is still unwilling to repent. I ought to teach her a lesson today!'

Then, Nicole crossed her legs and looked at everyone. "I've seen the video. The one who had thrown the flowerpot was your daughter, am I right?"

The parents noticed that there was a chance for them to plead their innocence, and thus, they immediately responded, "Although the video has proven that it was our daughters' doing, it was her who had forced them into it! Raine was the one who had forced them. There were other people present too. They could all testify!"

The moment Karen heard that, she became livid. "The principal had sent someone to look for witnesses, but no one came forward to testify. Stop spouting baseless accusations!"

Raine added on with a cold expression, "Exactly! Spewing nonsense without evidence? Be careful or I'll sue you for slandering!"

Nicole could not stop herself from squinting her eyes upon noticing how arrogant Raine was. "Raine, I don't care what other people say. I just want to ask you, was it you who had coerced someone into throw a flowerpot at me?"

Raine did not foresee that Nicole would target her so suddenly. She was stunned, and it took her a moment before she could even react.

She wanted to deny the accusation, but upon staring into Nicole's eyes, she stuttered, "I...I... It wasn't me!"

Read Novel MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 1662

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 1662—Though Raine had finally summoned the courage to deny it, the truth had become clear when she stuttered.

Karen had learned about this incident on her way to Royal Creed, so she immediately stepped up to defend her daughter. "Nicole, what do you mean? Are you going to trust the words from outsiders more than your own cousin?"

'This damn girl, Nicole! Does she know the meaning of' blood is thicker than water'? Just look at her watching those people uttering nonsense!'

Nicole shot Karen a piercing glare. "I was asking her, not you! N

Karen's heart froze, and she stood there, riveted to the ground for a moment. 'When did this brat develop such an attitude?!'

It was only then that Mr. Ellison realized that Nicole's intention was not to protect another member of the Riddle family. According to his assessment, Raine was a bit of a shmuck, for out of everyone she could've picked on, she had chosen to pick on Nicole. As such, she ought to know what Nicole was capable of if someone offended her, and that she would not be merciful toward them, not even if they were her own blood relatives.

Mr. Ellison broke the tension with an awkward cough, and in an icy tone, he said, "Raine, you have to think clearly about this. I can get someone to investigate this matter and if everyone on the volleyball team points out that you've done it, you won't be given a chance to repent for your wrongdoings!"

Raine totally did not expect that Mr. Ellison would side with Nicole. She began to feel a little hurt in her heart, but then again, the people on the volleyball team were hers, so she had nothing to be afraid of.

"Do whatever you like. I'm not afraid of you!" Raine held her breath and attempted to defy them.

And as Nicole was not expecting Raine to come clean, she flashed her a cold smile. "Why is there still a need to ask the people around us?"

Nicole's words immediately caught Mr. Ellison's attention, and he gave Nicole a glance. "There's no need for it?"

The parents in the room were confused as they did not understand why Mr. Ellison would look at Nicole in the eye. Even Karen and Raine were confused, not knowing what to make of the energy in the room.

'In the past the Riddle family had to beg Mr. Ellison, and now, things have changed. He is now nothing but respectful to Nicole. The Riddle family has never experienced this sort of treatment before!'

Nicole coldly glanced at the parents, and then at Raine, after which she said, "Those girls never had any grievances or hostility with me. It's impossible for them to target me on purpose, and when I was playing yesterday, I made a mistake and knocked Raine out, so it would make perfect sense that she wanted revenge."

Without warning, Nicole directly pointed the finger at herself without summoning any witnesses, causing Raine to be alarmed.

"Don't go around spewing nonsense!" Raine yelled.

Nicole coldly sneered. "Whether I am spewing hogwash or not, you know the truth deep down. Yesterday, I just happened to look up and you were obviously there, yesterday!"

Raine, who was taken aback, stepped forward angrily, "Impossible! When they dropped the flowerpot, I was watching you from the classroom, you couldn't have seen me at all!"

As soon as these words exited her mouth, everyone in the office became silent. It was not long before the father of one of the students came to his senses.

"Well, would you look at that? She admitted it! She was watching from the classroom!" he said.

"You ordered them to do it!"

In an instant, Raine became the target of the parents in the office. It was only then that she realized she had been tricked by Nicole into exposing herself in front of everyone.

Read Novel MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 1663

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 1663—Karen was not expecting her daughter to be so foolish that all it took was a few words from Nicole to get her to expose her crimes.

“You stupid girl! What kind of crap are you spewing?” Karen jabbed Raine’s head angrily, but it was already too late, for the damage had been done.

As Raine had told them the full account of her actions, Mr. Ellison could not turn a blind eye on this matter.

“It seems to me that the truth has been unveiled. Raine, do you have anything else to say?” Mr. Ellison coughed, prompting everyone to fall silent again.

“Mr. Ellison, it was a mistake. I didn’t think before I said what I said! No, I saw them throwing the flowerpots but I didn’t instruct them to do so!” Raine’s face blanched as she tried to convince Mr. Ellison her innocence.

It was then that Lulu became sick of the lies coming out of Raine’s mouth. “At that time, school was over for a while, and those who wanted to leave had already left! If you weren’t the one who started this, how could you be in the classroom with them?”

‘Who are you trying to kid?’

“Shut up!” Raine was flustered as she did not expect that Lulu would dare to question her.

“The only person that needs to shut up is you!” Nicole suddenly stood in front of Lulu and shoved Raine away.

“As a senior student, you’re awfully petty. If you’ve lost the game fair and square, you should wait for the next game to make up for the loss. This is not an excuse for you to coerce your classmates into engaging in criminal activity. If the flowerpot had hit someone else, the school would be held accountable! People like you should not be in school!” Nicole yelled, spelling out all of Raine’s crimes.

Mr. Ellison was stunned for a moment; he had thought of other serious punishable offenses, but he did not foresee that Nicole would attempt to get her cousin expelled.

“Nicole! What do you mean! Do you wish to have your cousin expelled!?” Karen shouted, anxious to protect Raine. “Don’t forget that we are a family. What good will come out of you accusing your own family members?!”

Nicole snorted coldly. “It won’t be good for me, but it’ll good for Mr. Ellison, won’t it Mr. Ellison?” She glanced at an appalled Mr. Ellison.

He looked at Nicole, who was waiting for him to express his opinions on this issue.

Now that the Riddle family was in full swing, it was safe to say that he could only take this opportunity to be on their good side, and to keep the connection between them neutral. Mr. Ellison had also kept in mind that the Riddle family had relied on Nicole in this situation, and therefore, if Nicole wanted to have Raine expelled, he could only...

Mr. Ellison gritted his teeth and said, "Royal Creed would never keep a student of morally questionable character. At such a young age, she has already coerced her classmates into hurting others. Fortunately, nothing tragic happened this time. If something had happened, the school would be held responsible for it, and what would that do to the school's reputation? You all know this."

Karen's heart sank the instant she heard Mr. Ellison's words. "Mr. Ellison, what do you mean? You don't really want to expel Raine, do you? You and my father-in-law..."

"Shut up! Don't embarrass Mr. Riddle Sr.!" he interrupted.

Nicole knew that Karen would do something without thinking it through by playing the emotional card. "If he knew that Raine was acting like this in school, he wouldn't have just stood by and allowed her to bring shame to the family name like that. You might as well go home and tell him all about it and see how he'll deal with her!"

This time, Raine's face turned pale with fright. "Don't... don't tell grandpa."

Mr. Riddle Sr. had always been known to be strict, but now, things had changed as he truly doted on Nicole. If he was clued in on the happenings at school, he would punish Raine severely.

Karen began to choke, and she bit her lower lip before saying, "Very well, Nicole. I guess you're using your grandfather's name to silence me now, huh?!"

In reply, Nicole snorted coldly. "So what?"

Mr. Ellison had never witnessed Nicole being so ruthless and unreasonable. 'It seems that this matter has hit the bottom line this time.'

"Enough! Go and settle your family affairs back home. This is Royal Creed. I've said enough. Royal Creed will not have such a student. Starting from tomorrow, she won't be a student here anymore!" Mr. Ellison slammed the table violently.

Read Novel MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 1664

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 1664—Karen suddenly burst into tears, "Mr. Ellison, you can't do this to us!"

Raine and Snow were both students at Royal Creed, and everyone in the family looked up to them. If Raine got expelled, what good would it bring to their reputation?

"Get out of my office now, or else I'll get security."

“Mr. Ellison, please don’t. I know what I did was wrong, but can you not expel me?” Raine pleaded.

It was only when it was too late that Raine realized that she had messed up and hurriedly begged Mr. Ellison for mercy.

“It’s too late now. If you had admitted to the truth earlier, I would have been more lenient. Now, please leave my office. ” Mr. Ellison urged both Karen and Raine to leave his office immediately, having lost his patience with them.

The parents of the two other students breathed sighs of relief knowing that Raine had been expelled.

“Yeah! Hurry up and leave! Don’t embarrass yourselves further!”

“That’s right! If Royal Creed kept a student like you, it would tarnish the school’s image entirely! Please leave!”

“You! Shut your mouths!” Karen shrieked.

It was the first time Karen had reacted so disrespectfully in the public eye, so much so that her face had turned green.

Nicole shot Karen a frosty glance. “Why aren’t you leaving? Are you waiting for Mr. Ellison to get the security to escort you out?”

“You!!” Karen was fuming mad, baring her teeth while staring at Nicole furiously. “Nicole, I will make you regret this. I won’t let this slide so easily!”

Nicole gave her a blank stare and said, “You’re welcome to try anytime.”

Karen noticed that she could not win this battle against Nicole, so she turned around and stormed off. She decided to head home and think of other alternatives with Damien. Raine too did not expect her mother to give in so easily. Seeing that Karen was leaving, she followed her mother out the door.

“Mom! Mom, don’t ignore me!”

From a distance, Karen could be heard yelling, “Don’t call me your mother! I don’t have a daughter as embarrassing as yourself!”

Once the mother and daughter duo had left, Mr. Ellison took a glance at the other parents. “Are you satisfied now? Raine has been expelled, and your daughters who had done the deed has been absolved. Is there anything else you want?”

Noticing Mr. Ellison's assertiveness, they hurriedly said, "No, no. We are really pleased with how it was handled."

"Yeah, we thank you so much, Mr. Ellison," they said.

The other parents quickly left after they had spoken.

The office then became quiet, after which Mr. Ellison looked at Nicole and sighed. "I didn't know that you were the one who had been attacked by Raine. Otherwise, I wouldn't have spared her so lightly."

Nicole nodded and gratefully stated, "I was the one who had taken the liberty of bothering you about the issue today anyway."

Mr. Ellison noticed Nicole's polite demeanor and smiled. "It seems that she has tested your limits. Otherwise you wouldn't have brought your grandfather's reputation into it and insisted on expelling her."

Nicole smiled, knowing that Mr. Ellison was one of her confidants. He really knew her well.

"Yes, she almost got my friend hurt."

Lulu was moved by the words Nicole had said. Nicole had brought her here because of her, not because of Nicole herself.

'If Raine wasn't on the verge of hurting me, she would not have gotten Mr. Ellison to expel Raine. She didn't really have to do this, as she was the one who had gotten hurt.' Lulu thought of how serious Nicole's injuries were and began to feel an inexplicable sense of guilt.

"Nicole, you were the one who got hurt but... you're so considerate of me..."

Nicole shook her head. "It's okay. Anyway, it's almost time to go. Let's not bother Mr. Ellison anymore."

Lulu nodded and said, "Thank you Mr. Ellison."

Mr. Ellison nodded and took another look at Lulu. 'I didn't expect Nicole to cherish this ordinary student. I can't overlook what's to come in the future.'

"You're welcome, now off you go to your classes," he said.

"Okay." Nicole nodded, whereupon she left Mr. Ellison's office with Lulu.

After closing the door behind them, Lulu spoke with mixed feelings in her head. “Nicole, I think it’s a bit too much for you to sever your relationship with your cousin...”

Nicole shook her head. “It’s not because of you. Raine had never considered me as a cousin, and she had continuously screwed with me in school. Even if this never happened, I would have found ways to make her leave this school sooner or later.”

Read Novel MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 1665

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 1665—Lulu nodded; she knew that Nicole had said this to make her feel better.

“No matter what, I still have to thank you Nicole.” Lulu looked at her sincerely.

In return, Nicole smiled. “Let’s go. Don’t take it so formal. We have to go back to do some self-studying.”

“Let’s go!”

The two of them went back to class together, but as soon as they arrived, they bumped into Ms. Emerson. “Nicole, where have you been?”

Ms. Emerson had come to check on the self-study class and found that Nicole was nowhere to be found, and the class the Vivian was managing was an utter mess.

Nicole proceeded to give her an honest answer. “I went to the principal’s office.”

“The principal was looking for you?’ Ms. Emerson was surprised but did not press on further. “In that case, off you go. Hurry up and go back to your class. It’s a mess without you.”

“Okay.” Nicole nodded and walked into the classroom while Ms. Emerson issued a sigh of relief, as she could not do anything without Nicole’s help.

As soon as Nicole entered the class, everyone began to quiet down. As expected, Nicole’s presence alone managed to curb everyone’s incorrigibility. Then, Ms. Emerson walked in as Nicole and Lulu returned to their seats.

“Nicole...your presence is more impactful than the teacher’s. No wonder she wanted you to go in first. These people won’t dare to cause a ruckus when they see you,” Lulu said in a low whisper.

Nicole raised her eyebrows. ‘Is that so? I didn’t think this was possible...! thought everyone preferred to keep to themselves now? But then again, they are quiet when I’m around anyway...’

In a blink of an eye, the school day had finally ended. The students got up, packed their things, and left. Nicole was still in her seat packing her things up, but it was at this time that Gary walked up to Nicole and handed her a bag.

“Here, it’s for you.” Gary’s face was red with embarrassment, and he did not know where to look.

Nicole raised her eyebrows and asked, “What is this?”

‘It can’t be another book on learning how to program, can it?’ she wondered.

Gary rubbed his nose and lowered his voice, “I heard you were injured, so I got you some medicine that’s very useful.”

Gary had spent a lot of money to purchase the best medicine engineered to promote blood circulation and remove blood clots.

Nicole was stunned for a moment there.

She did not expect him to know that she had been injured, and thus, she coldly refused. “There’s no need for that, I’m almost well.”

Nicole had The Beacon, which was leagues beyond any medicinal drug on the market.

However, Gary brushed her dismissal aside and placed the bag on her table anyway. “Just keep it, it’s not expensive.”

After he had spoken, he walked away with his hands in his pockets. Jack and Wayne, who had happened to witness it, quickly followed Gary and together, they left the place.

Both of them gave Gary a secret thumbs up, and whispered as he walked out, “That was very smooth!!”

Hearing that, Nicole began to mentally complain, ‘Smooth my ass!! Do they really think that giving a woman a gift is all it takes to be smooth?’

Bradley noticed the icon on the bag, and his eyes widened.” This medicine is quite hard to get. He must’ve really put his heart into it...”

After he had spoken, he felt that something was amiss.” Nicole, Gary has...”