

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 3110-After breakfast, Tia arrived to pick up Nolan and Lana.

“Nicole, Jared,” Tia greeted.

Jared and Nicole were preparing to leave for work. “Let’s go together,” they suggested to Tia.

They all left the house and headed to their respective cars parked in the courtyard.

“Bye, Daddy. Bye, Mommy,” Nolan and Lana waved to Jared and Nicole.

Bye,” Nicole waved back as the car carrying the kids started. She watched it drive away before telling Max, “Let’s go.”

‘Yes,” Max responded, starting the car and leaving the Riddle residence.

In the car, Max spoke in a low voice, “Mr. Johnston, Mrs. Johnston, I have an update from Charlie.”

“Speak,” Jared’s voice carried a hint of coldness.

He knew Nicole had asked Charlie to investigate Lawrence. Any news from there was likely related to Lawrence.

“Charlie said he had people look into it. Lawrence may seem quiet on the surface, but he’s actually arranged for Ian to secretly assist Everett,” Max said.

A cold glint crossed Nicole’s eyes; she had suspected as much.

She had already figured Everett’s sudden return was likely linked to Lawrence, who probably pushed Everett forward, readying him as a pawn.

“What have you found?” Jared asked, his voice cool.

“So far, we only know that this Ian has contacted a few people, but we don’t know the specifics of their actions yet; Max paused before adding,” Could Lawrence be planning to secretly target our people?”

‘Keep an eye on them, and deal with any moves directly,’ Jared commanded in a deep voice.

“Yes,” Max agreed.

Nicole bit her lip slightly. ‘As expected, Lawrence is already making his moves, supporting Everett from the shadows, probably hoping to reap the benefits amidst the chaos.’ Meanwhile, after several days of silence, Everett finally showed up at his office.

“Sir, there’s been no movement from BayCorp. It seems we’ve been discovered,” Jerry reported quietly.

“Don’t underestimate Ellar. He’s been learning from Nicole for so many years,”

Everett remarked. Even without Nicole, Ellar wasn’t a fool.

Moreover, if there were really a problem, Nicole wouldn’t just leave him to deal with it alone.

Thus, he always felt that BayCorp, especially Ellar, was the most difficult to deal with and the one to be most cautious about.

“What should we do next?” Jerry asked.

“We can’t let him go, of course,” Everett said, a ruthless glint in his eyes.

He knew that getting rid of Ellar would be a significant blow to Nicole.

“Then... how about we kidnap Ellar?” Jerry suggested. He thought since Ellar was so important, they could use him to threaten Nicole, forcing her to comply.

Everett gave Jerry a cold look. “Do you think kidnapping Ellar is that easy?”

Not only is it likely to fail, but it could also alarm them.”

He had done so much since his return, and Nicole had been unable to do anything to him precisely because he had been cautious, leaving no evidence for her.

If they were to kidnap Ellar blatantly, it would be like delivering the evidence directly to Nicole.

Jerry shrank back a bit and replied, "Yes."

"Don't rush. There are ways to deal with Ellar." Everett glanced at Jerry and added, "Hasn't a girl recently come into his life?"

"A girl?" Jerry frowned, tentatively saying, "Sir, are you talking about Doretta?"
