

MY WIFE IS A HACKER

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 3281-Doretta shook her head. "No, but I believe Nicole is looking for an opportunity, or waiting for the right moment to coordinate with US from inside." "Understood,"

Charlie nodded, thinking that Nicole might only have a preliminary plan, and the specifics would need to be adjusted based on the situation.

"Have you arranged everything on your end?" Doretta casually asked Charlie.

"Yes, I've assigned our most reliable people," Charlie replied.

After giving Charlie a serious look, Doretta cautioned, "Be careful when carrying out the mission. Lawrence may seem like a gentleman, but he's actually ruthless."

Important notice: Dear readers, Please bookmark our new site: to continue reading the Novels. Thank you.Recommend: Clean Your Brower Cache now to access missing chapters.

She thought about how skillfully Lawrence had dealt with Everett without raising any suspicion, highlighting his capabilities. Moreover, being on his turf in Mecrounia made him even more dangerous and difficult to deal with.

Charlie gave Doretta a thoughtful look. "You be careful too." "Mm," Doretta responded before leaving.

As Charlie watched Doretta walking away, his expression became complex, his gaze lingering until she was out of sight.

The next day in San Joto, Daniel and Gloria dropped Nolan and Lana off at kindergarten.

"Off you go. We'll come to pick you up after school," Gloria instructed.

"Okay," Nolan and Lana obediently replied.

Daniel and Gloria watched as Nolan and Lana entered the kindergarten before they departed.

With all the children inside, the kindergarten's main gate was closed, and the sound of children's voices reciting lessons filled the air.

Suddenly, a silver van pulled up outside the gate, and someone got out to ring the doorbell.

A teacher came out to inquire, "Who are you looking for?" "We received a call saying your Wi-Fi is down. We're here to fix it," the man at the gate responded.

"Is it? I didn't know," the teacher said, looking confused. "Let me check." "We don't need to check. We can just take a look, and if there's no problem, we'll leave," the visitor insisted, noticing the teacher hesitating to open the gate.

"I should check first. If it's not broken, you won't need to bother." "But you've already called for repairs, and we've come all this way. It's better to check."

The standoff continued, with the teacher, Anne Morrison, hesitating to open the gate, insisting on checking first. Anne, being new, was aware of a past incident where children almost got into trouble, which was why the kindergarten's security was very tight.

As Anne went to verify, the visitor grew anxious, considering forcing their way in.

"Show me your ID," Seth demanded firmly.

Moreover, the teacher had mentioned not knowing about any Wi-Fi issue, which raised his suspicions.

He thought it best to be cautious, especially at a time like this, given Nolan and Lana's safety was paramount.

The visitor hesitated for a moment before reluctantly producing an ID.

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 3282-Seth's eyes narrowed slightly as he inspected the ID; it was fake, confirming his suspicion about the visitors. He returned the ID without revealing his realization and subtly signaled toward a hidden spot with his other hand.

They had a team positioned here specifically to ensure Nolan and Lana's safety, determined not to let any potential threat into the kindergarten.

A responding whistle came from the hidden spot upon receiving Seth's signal.

"Now, can I go in?" the visitor asked, visibly growing impatient. The teacher's been gone a while. He knew that if they don't do something soon, they would blow their cover.

Anne came back, yelling, "Don't open the gate! The Wi-Fi is working, and there's something off about these people."

Important notice: Dear readers, Please bookmark our new site: to continue reading the Novels. Thank you. Recommend: Clean Your Brower Cache now to access missing chapters.

The visitor frowned. He had hoped to sneak in without causing a scene, but now he saw no other option but to use force.

He banged on the gate, frustrated, and told his group, "We'll break in. We have to catch them."

With that, four more people got out of the vehicle, looking threatening and ready to climb over the kindergarten's gate.

But before they could react, another group of people appeared suddenly and overwhelmed them. They were pushed into the same van, which then sped away.

Anne stood there, stunned, unable to comprehend what had just happened.

"Ms. Morrison, are you okay?" Principal Laura Sullivan noticed Anne's distress and approached her.

"Ms. Sullivan, I-I..." Anne struggled to find the words.

Laura remained composed. "It's okay, just take a moment and then get back to your work." "Okay," Anne replied, sounding dazed, before walking away.

Laura glanced toward the gate, having witnessed the events herself, and could guess what had happened. She shook her head and sighed in relief internally, 'Thank goodness Mr. Johnston had arranged for protection.' Nolan watched everything happen. He was on his way to the bathroom when he saw it all from the hallway.

"I guess Mommy and Daddy are dealing with the bad guys," Nolan whispered. "I hope they're okay." Even though he was worried, Nolan knew he had to stay out of trouble. He had to keep himself and Lana safe so he wouldn't add to Jared and Nicole's worries.

He went back to the classroom quietly, not telling Lana about what had happened. He made sure she stayed with him the whole time.

In Mecrounia, Charlie received Seth's report, his face turning grim.

"That bastard really tried to go after Nolan and Lana," Charlie muttered angrily.

"Proceed as she requested," Jared suddenly said sternly.

Charlie and Doretta looked at Jared and firmly responded, "Yes, Mr. Johnston."

Seeing Jared about to leave, Charlie asked, "Where are you going?" "Don't follow me," Jared left them with three words before departing.

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 3283-Charlie had wanted to say something, but he stayed silent. He watched as Jared walked away and disappeared from view.

"What's Mr. Johnston up to?" Doretta asked, puzzled.

"I'm not sure," Charlie replied with a shake of his head. Deep down, he felt like it had to do with Nicole. It made sense since Jared was really worried about her.

Inside, he thought, 'I hope this ends soon. Then we won't have to worry all the time.' Doretta sighed. "Okay, I'll report the updates to Zane too. He's really worried about Nicole." "Did you set everything up for the deployment?" Charlie asked without thinking.

"It's all set, just waiting for Nicole's signal," Doretta replied.

Important notice: Dear readers, Please bookmark our new site: to continue reading the Novels. Thank you. Recommend: Clean Your Brower Cache now to access missing chapters.

“That’s good,” Charlie seemed somewhat relieved. However, he knew they couldn’t relax and had to stay alert for any changes in the situation.

Jared quietly left the hotel and headed to where Nicole was staying. He managed to bypass the guards and entered the room where Nicole was confined.

“How did you get here!” Nicole was surprised to see Jared, instinctively glancing outside.

“No one saw me,” Jared said, pulling Nicole into an embrace the next second.

Holding her like this gave him some reassurance.

Nicole hugged him back and whispered, “Sorry for worrying you.”

Taking a deep breath, Jared reluctantly let go of Nicole and looked at her with concern. “You shouldn’t have taken the risk.” “I felt it was a risk worth taking,” Nicole said with a heavy tone. “Though I’m in Lawrence’s hands, he’s not going to hurt me—at least not yet. But if it were someone else, things might turn out differently.’ Moreover, since Lawrence had made the first move, she felt no need to hold back.

She then asked through clenched teeth, “How are Nolan and Lana?” “They’re safe,” Jared reassured her. “I’ve made sure they’re protected.” “That’s a relief,” Nicole replied, feeling somewhat reassured. Knowing Nolan and Lana were safe allowed her to focus on the situation at hand.

“What’s your plan?” Jared asked softly, holding Nicole’s hand.

“Lawrence has no way out. His company in San Joto can only declare bankruptcy, and this base is his last refuge. And if he loses this base...” Nicole’s voice trailed off, a cold determination crossing her eyes.

She believed Lawrence’s main force was here. Destroying his base would strip him of everything, leaving him no escape.

Smiling at Jared, Nicole added, "So, as long as you're here, he won't touch me."

She knew Lawrence would constantly monitor Jared's every move, and she was the leverage Lawrence had over Jared.

Realizing her point, Jared frowned. "Your plan sounds good, but if he sees through your intentions, you could be in real danger."

Nicole soothed the furrow in Jared's brow. "Don't worry. If it really gets dangerous, I'll contact Doretta to rescue me."

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 3284-Nicole was aware that Lawrence believed having her would make Jared hesitant, giving him a chance.

Jared seemed about to say more, but Nicole silenced him with a kiss.

Startled for a moment, Jared quickly regained his composure, kissing her deeply.

"I should head back now. If I stay too long, there's a risk I'll get caught, and that could mess up your whole plan," Jared said reluctantly.

"Okay, see you soon," Nicole replied with a smile.

Important notice: Dear readers, Please bookmark our new site: to continue reading the Novels. Thank you.Recommend: Clean Your Brower Cache now to access missing chapters.

After smoothing her hair, Jared cautioned, "Take care of yourself. Your safety comes first. We can find other ways to handle everything else." "Don't worry,"

Nicole assured him.

Watching Jared leave, Nicole smiled. She hadn't expected Jared to risk visiting her, but thankfully, he hadn't been detected, allowing her plan to proceed.

The guards outside were still there, but at this hour, they had fallen asleep.

Restless, Nicole moved to the window, gazing into the night, her expression gradually darkening.

Meanwhile, Jared returned to the hotel.

“Mr. Johnston.” Charlie hurried over, concern evident as he checked on Jared’s condition.

Seeing Jared unharmed, Charlie felt somewhat relieved.

“Let’s go back and talk,” Jared suggested, leading the way to his room.

Once in the room, Jared instructed Charlie, “Arrange for someone to search for Nicole, but don’t be overly cautious.”

Understanding the urgency, Charlie nodded. “You must have seen Mrs.

Johnston.” “She’s safe for now, but we can’t delay,” Jared said, his determination clear. Committed to aligning with Nicole’s plan, he was prepared to move quickly.

“I understand.” Charlie grasped Jared’s intention and agreed respectfully.

“Go arrange it,” Jared said, giving Charlie a nod.

“Okay.” Charlie turned and left to organize the task.

Jared stood by the window, gazing out into the night, his expression growing solemn.

The next day, at Riddle Corporation in San Joto, Lulu arrived at the office feeling dejected.

“We succeeded,” Patricia entered the office with some excitement.

Everything here was proceeding smoothly according to Jared and Nicole’s plan.

Lulu blinked, slowly realizing, “So, we’ve successfully completed our mission.”

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 3285-“Yes, our part here is finished,” Patricia said, her expression turning somber.

She knew their business in San Joto was concluded, but Lawrence had cunningly fled San Joto before everything was fully settled, even taking Nicole with him.

“What about Nicole?” Lulu asked with a hint of tension, not knowing Nicole had run into trouble. She observed Patricia’s demeanor, suspecting Patricia knew something.

Patricia’s face paled slightly. She hesitated before responding, “Ms. Riddle might not return for a few days.”

These were just her guesses; she wasn’t sure of the specifics. If things had gone smoothly here, she hoped Jared and Nicole’s situation would also be positive.

Important notice: Dear readers, Please bookmark our new site: to continue reading the Novels. Thank you.Recommend: Clean Your Brower Cache now to access missing chapters.

Seeing Patricia’s reluctance to share more about Nicole’s situation, Lulu frowned. “How many days are we talking about?” She wanted to know whether it would be three days, five, or seven.

It seemed Patricia wasn’t certain either.

Patricia sighed. “I really don’t know how long it’ll take. It depends on whether things go smoothly or not.” “Is Nicole in danger then?” Lulu couldn’t help but worry.

“There shouldn’t be any immediate danger,” Patricia said, biting her lip. She at least hadn’t heard any news about Nicole being in danger.

Lulu’s face turned pale instantly. “Immediate danger! Does that mean she might still be in danger?”

She had suspected something urgent had happened when Nicole suddenly left San Joto, even Jared had left, and she couldn’t contact Nicole at all. She could only occasionally get some news from Charlie through Patricia, but it wasn’t always possible to get information.

“With Mr. Johnston there, Ms. Riddle should be safe,” Patricia said, unsure if she was comforting Lulu or herself.

“That damned Lawrence,” Lulu clenched her teeth in anger. She thought that if it weren’t Lawrence, Nicole wouldn’t have been put in danger.

“I believe it won’t be long before we see results. Mr. Johnston and Ms. Riddle will definitely return safely,” Patricia said meaningfully, emphasizing the need to keep believing.

“You should keep in touch with your brother frequently to stay updated on Nicole’s situation,” Lulu sighed, knowing she could only rest easy once she was assured of Nicole’s safety.

“I’ll do my best,” Patricia promised, aware that Charlie might not always reply promptly and worried that messaging too often might interfere with their operations.

Lulu looked at Patricia, her worry deepening.

Now that things in San Joto had been successfully wrapped up, she fervently hoped that Nicole and Jared would conclude their matters smoothly and return safely.

In the hotel in Mecrounia, Charlie knocked before entering Jared’s room.

“Mm,” Jared responded coolly, aware that it was about time for Lawrence’s company to declare bankruptcy given how long he had held out.

“Mr. Johnston, we’re stepping up our efforts, and it seems Lawrence is reacting,”

Charlie said with a slight heaviness in his voice. “Is Mrs.

Johnston prepared?” He believed that as long as Nicole was ready, they could act at any moment.

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 3286-“Zane will help US out,” Jared said seriously.

He had already contacted Zane. For this roundup, Zane would personally lead people to crackdown Lawrence's force. Jared could leave the subsequent matters entirely to Zane. After all, Zane needed to investigate many things connected to Lawrence, including incidents from the past.

Knock, knock, knock.

When Jared heard the knock, he said in a deep voice, "Come in." The door opened.

Seeing the visitor, Jared said, "You got here fast." "I was already watching Lawrence, so I rushed over when I heard what happened," Zane replied.

Important notice: Dear readers, Please bookmark our new site: to continue reading the Novels. Thank you. Recommend: Clean Your Brower Cache now to access missing chapters.

With Zane came Doretta, who mentioned, "No news from Nicole yet." "It's fine, we can start planning," Zane said, and they all sat down.

Zane spread out a map and shared, "This shows Lawrence's place. It has one way in and out, but we've found out he's got a hidden tunnel too. Nicole might have gone in there herself." "If we don't know where this tunnel is, Lawrence could easily escape," Charlie added, thinking to himself how tricky Lawrence was.

"I'll talk to Nicole and find out where this tunnel leads. Lawrence won't get away," Doretta said, looking very determined.

"There's another thing..." Jared's face turned serious as he warned, "Lawrence might try to take US down with him."

Charlie looked worried and said, "That could happen."

They all knew Lawrence had taken Nicole to threaten Jared, but he really wanted to get rid of Jared and keep Nicole for himself. If Lawrence thought he couldn't do that, they wouldn't be surprised if he did something desperate.

Doretta bit her lip and said, "That could happen." "But there's someone else who might help US," Zane mentioned, looking thoughtful.

"Who?" Both Doretta and Charlie turned to him, eager to hear more.

Having another person on their side could really boost their chances.

“Carl,” Jared said slowly.

“Of course! How did I forget him?” Charlie hit his forehead, suddenly remembering. But then he hesitated, “Do you think he’d help?”

Jared glanced at Zane, guessing he had a plan since he brought it up.

“He’ll help US,” Zane said confidently.

“Then let’s get in touch with him,” Jared decided, his expression serious.

“Okay,” Zane agreed.

After making some plans, Zane and Doretta headed out.

“Now we wait for Nicole’s message before we make our move,” Charlie said, hoping it wouldn’t be long.

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 3287-A deep darkness lingered in Jared’s eyes as he thought, ‘Indeed, all is ready except for the right moment.’ Meanwhile, Nicole looked coldly at Lawrence and said, “You should know, I won’t give the Crests to you.” “It doesn’t matter, then forget it,” Lawrence suddenly became magnanimous. He felt that with Nicole in his hands, it didn’t matter if he didn’t have the Fire Crest and Water Crest. Once he dealt with Jared, he wouldn’t have to worry about anything anymore.

“Sir.” Someone called from outside the door, standing there with a rather solemn expression without entering.

Lawrence frowned and then stood up to go to the door. “What is it?” “It seems we’ve been discovered. There are suspicious people moving around outside,” his subordinate whispered.

Lawrence’s pupils suddenly contracted, and he said with a dark expression, “Arrange another place, we’re leaving here immediately.”

Important notice: Dear readers, Please bookmark our new site: to continue reading the Novels. Thank you. Recommend: Clean Your Brower Cache now to access missing chapters.

He guessed that Jared's people had already found this place. He couldn't keep Nicole here any longer; otherwise, if Jared's people found her, they would rescue Nicole.

"But where to?" his subordinate asked, somewhat troubled.

Now, there really wasn't a safe place anywhere. They had been targeted, and even if they moved Nicole, they would be discovered quickly.

After pondering for a moment, Lawrence gritted his teeth and said, "Go to the base."

He felt that since they couldn't hide, they might as well be blatant about it.

He believed that this way, Jared wouldn't dare to act rashly.

"Yes," his subordinate replied, immediately going to make arrangements.

Lawrence returned to the room and said to Nicole, "It must be boring staying here all day. Let's go to the base and have a look."

Nicole's lips curved up so slightly it was almost imperceptible. She knew their plan had succeeded; Lawrence had indeed fallen for the trick.

Rising slowly, Nicole remained silent, adopting an air of disinterest.

Soon, Nicole followed Lawrence into the car, heading toward the base.

Once at the base, if she could understand the layout and locate the secret passage, she could send a message to Doretta, allowing them to start their operation.

She believed that Jared must have made many arrangements during this time.

Thus, they needed to give their all this time to successfully destroy Lawrence's base, so they could live without worries in the future.

Upon arriving at the base, Nicole looked around and found that the security was indeed tight.

However, she didn't act immediately, worried that Lawrence might notice something off. She had no choice but to play obedient, staying in the room Lawrence had prepared for her.

But she wasn't just idly waiting; she was also marking down the internal layout of the base to send to Doretta.

Meanwhile, Lawrence was in another room.

"Sir, everything at San Joto has been taken care of," Ian said quietly.

Abandoning everything at San Joto was a last resort, and it came with some reluctance.

"Is everything ready?" Lawrence asked Ian.

"Hmph, let them taste what Franco is capable of," Lawrence scoffed.

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 3288-Apart from Lawrence, nobody knew about those things, and now it was time to bring them out. He was eager to see how Zane and Jared would react with those in play.

Ian said joyfully, "That's great." Thinking to himself that Lawrence had a card up his sleeve, it's no wonder he was willing to abandon everything at San Joto so readily. If they succeeded this time, it would be easy to reclaim what they lost.

He then asked Lawrence, "Where are those things?" He was curious to see them for himself.

"No hurry, you'll know when it's needed," Lawrence said calmly.

Ian's expression stiffened, and he quickly responded respectfully, "Yes." He had momentarily forgotten his place, carried away by the moment.

Important notice: Dear readers, Please bookmark our new site: to continue reading the Novels. Thank you.Recommend: Clean Your Brower Cache now to access missing chapters.

“Go and make arrangements. We still need to strengthen the defenses here at the base,” Lawrence instructed Ian.

“Yes,” Ian replied, immediately turning to leave.

Lawrence’s pupils narrowed slightly. ‘Jared is searching everywhere for Nicole, and it seems he already knows where I keep her. I can’t hide her for much longer.’ With that in mind, he felt there was no need to hide any longer, ‘Let’s see who the final victor will be.’

Meanwhile, Charlie knocked and entered Jared’s hotel room.

“Mr. Johnston, Lawrence indeed took Mrs. Johnston to the base.”

This meant the first step of the plan was successful.

“Hmm,” Jared said with a calm gaze, “Prepare for the next move.”

He knew Nicole had just entered the base and it would be inconvenient for her to act immediately. It was necessary to behave for a couple of days to lower Lawrence’s guard. However, they could start making some moves on their end to help Nicole find the secret passage and escape sooner.

“Yes, Mr. Johnston,” Charlie responded, then added, “How long it would take for Carl to support US if he were to?” “We haven’t heard back yet,” Jared’s gaze deepened as he spoke, “Proceed with our plan for now.”

He felt that even if Carl couldn’t arrive in time to provide support, they still needed to carry out what they had planned.

“Alright, I’ll get on it,” Charlie agreed and left. As he stepped out of the room, he ran into Doretta.

Seeing Charlie seemed about to leave, Doretta asked, “Are you going out?”

“Yes, Mr. Johnston wants to arrange the next step of the plan,” Charlie answered.

“That makes sense. Nicole just got to the base; she indeed can’t act rashly, “

Doretta nodded and said, “Then I’ll come with you.”

With that, Doretta followed Charlie out.

Soon, the two of them, each leading a group, arrived near Lawrence's base, acting as if they were cautiously gathering information.

After ensuring they were spotted by nearby guards, the two exchanged a pleased look.

"Hey, at this rate, Nicole should be able to succeed soon," Doretta said with a hint of a smile.

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 3289-Doretta and Charlie both hoped the situation would quickly come to an end to avoid any complications. Any unexpected turn of events could put Nicole at risk.

"That should be the case." Seeing Doretta's smile, Charlie also cracked a smile.

Suddenly, a fierce wind blew, carrying sand and howling as it passed.

"Be careful." Charlie instinctively pulled Doretta into his arms to shield her from the gust.

Leaning against Charlie's chest, Doretta felt her heartbeat uncontrollably quicken, a strange sensation for her.

Important notice: Dear readers, Please bookmark our new site: to continue reading the Novels. Thank you.Recommend: Clean Your Brower Cache now to access missing chapters.

After the wind passed, everything returned to calm.

Charlie released Doretta, looking down to ask, "Are you okay?"

"I'm fine," Doretta replied, stepping back awkwardly to put some distance between them.

The sudden nervousness made her feel uneasy, even unable to look directly at Charlie.

Charlie paused, only then realizing what he had just done.

Rubbing his hands together awkwardly, Charlie also looked away.

In San Joto, Ellar came to pick up Patricia from work.

Seeing her lost in thought, Ellar let out a sigh and suggested, "If you're that worried, maybe you should go to them."

"What!" Patricia was surprised. She hadn't expected Ellar to say something like that.

"Being here and worrying won't help. You might feel better if you're part of their plan. I think that's the only way you'll stop worrying." Ellar held Patricia's hand, showing he understood her concern.

He knew Patricia was worried not just about Nicole, but also Charlie and her old team.

"But..." Patricia hesitated. She did feel drawn to help, but now she also had Ellar, which made her unsure.

"Don't say 'but.' I worry about you too, but I believe you should do what feels right to you." Ellar secretly hoped she wouldn't leave, but he knew she wouldn't be happy staying.

"I..." Patricia felt moved by his understanding.

"Don't worry about the Riddle Corporation. Sean, Steve, and Lulu are there.

They'll be fine. Follow your heart; I'm behind you," Ellar encouraged her, squeezing her hand softly.

With her eyes slightly reddened, Patricia said gratefully, "Ellar, thank you." "No need to thank me. Just promise me you'll come back safely," Ellar said with a smile.

"I will. Not just me, all of US will return safely." "Then let's go back and pack up, and I'll take you to the airport for the evening flight," Ellar said.

Patricia nodded. "Okay."

Soon, after a quick pack at the apartment, Ellar drove Patricia to the airport.

Hand in hand, they walked to the departure gate, a palpable sense of reluctance surrounding them.

Til wait for you all to come back safely,” Ellar suddenly said, holding Patricia back.

“Don’t worry, we will come back safely,’ Patricia nodded in assurance.

Caught off guard by his sudden proposal, Patricia blushed, but she shyly nodded.

When it was time to board, Patricia left.

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 3290-“Please come back safely,” Ellar murmured softly, silently praying in his heart that everyone would return unharmed.

“Mr. Riddle, it’s getting late. We should head back,” his assistant quietly reminded him.

The plane was already in the air, and Ell ar knew staying wouldn’t change anything. With a heavy sigh, he said, “Let’s head back.”

He didn’t like the idea of Patricia facing danger, but after seeing her worry and stress these last few days, he felt he had to support her decision.

He understood what she needed and made the tough choice, despite his feelings.

Important notice: Dear readers, Please bookmark our new site: to continue reading the Novels. Thank you.Recommend: Clean Your Brower Cache now to access missing chapters.

He loved her too much to hold her back. He wanted to be her biggest supporter as she followed her heart.

Once in the car, Ellar nervously sent a text to Charlie.

[Charlie, Patricia’s on her way to you. Please look out for her.] He waited anxiously for a response, but none came for a while, making him worry even more. ‘What’s happening? Why hasn’t he answered? Is everything okay?’ Finally, his phone beeped with a reply.

[Okay.] Ellar was puzzled by the short response and wondered, 'What's with that reaction...' ****

By the time Patricia arrived in Mecrounia, it was already the next day.

Exiting the airport, she saw Charlie and Doretta coming to pick her up.

"Charlie, Doretta," Patricia exclaimed with some surprise, "You came to pick me up!" "Yeah, Ellar told me," Charlie said, looking a bit unhappy. He then asked,

"Why did you decide to come?" "I was really worried about Nicole and wanted to help out," Patricia answered.

Charlie looked a bit resigned but didn't say anything more to Patricia.

Patricia secretly made a face. She was worried about everyone, not just Nicole, but she knew this was the best thing to say to avoid getting into trouble with Charlie.

"Let's go. We've already arranged a room for you. You should rest and save your energy," Doretta told Patricia, smiling kindly.

"Are we going to do something soon?" Patricia was surprised by Doretta's comment.

"Yes, we can't wait any longer." Doretta's face turned serious. They all thought that with them making moves, Nicole might find a chance to do something too.

"Alright, let's go to the hotel," Patricia said, ready to move on. She got in the car with Charlie and Doretta to head out from the airport.

Once at the hotel, Patricia gave Jared a polite greeting.

"How are things in San Joto?" Jared asked.

"Everything is smooth, and we've secretly checked. Indeed, none of Lawrence's people are left in San Joto. He must have pulled everyone back," Patricia replied.

Since the failed attack on the kindergarten, Lawrence' company had declared bankruptcy and either disbanded or pulled back all his personnel.

Jared's gaze deepened. "He's not planning to return to San Joto, and he doesn't plan to let Nicole go back either."