

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 3301

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 3301-Patricia felt a mix of reluctance and happiness as she prepared to part ways with Charlie.

Jared glanced at Charlie and said, "It's about time for US to board." He tenderly held Nicole's hand and led her toward the boarding gate.

"I need to go through the boarding procedures too," Patricia said, biting her lip.

"You must find happiness as well." "I will," Charlie assured her with a gentle smile, giving her a reassuring pat on the shoulder. "You've grown up, too. You don't need to cling to me anymore. I believe Ellar will take great care of you."

Patricia nodded, then, leaning closer to Charlie, she whispered, 'When Mr.

Johnston and Ms. Riddle get married, make sure you bring my future sister-in-law back with you.' Caught off guard, Charlie playfully scolded her, "You little rascal."

Doretta, standing not too far away, overheard Patricia's whispered words.

Her cheeks turned even redder.

"Let's go," Patricia announced, then turned to Doretta, adding, "We'll meet again." "Goodbye, have a safe trip," Doretta responded, waving her hand.

After observing everyone complete the boarding procedures and walk through the gate, Charlie faced Doretta. "Let's go."

Doretta, biting her lip, gathered her courage and remarked, "I didn't expect you'd choose to stay."

Charlie looked at her with a fire in his eyes. "There are Max, Seth, and the others in San Joto. They don't specifically need me, so this time, I wanted to make a choice for myself," he explained. It seemed that, previously, he was fine just going with the flow, but now, he desired to have her by his side.

Doretta, feeling shy, looked away. "Let's go, we still have tasks to attend to back home." "Alright," Charlie agreed, and they set off together.

Max went to San Joto airport to pick up only three people. He was surprised to see just them. "Only you guys?" he asked.

"Yes, just us. Charlie isn't coming back," Patricia said, not giving more details.

Max, trying not to be too curious, gently said, "Mr. and Mrs. Johnston, please get in the car. The folks at the Riddle residence are waiting."

After they drove back, Jared and Nicole went inside the Riddle residence, while Max and Patricia left.

Max asked, "What happened? Where's Charlie?" "He's with the Zane group now," was all Patricia said.

Max couldn't hide his shock. "That rascal!" he exclaimed.

Patricia smiled and then said, "I'm off." She wanted to surprise Ellar, who didn't know she was back yet.

The family had been worried. Now that Jared and Nicole were home safe, everyone felt better.

"You seem worn out. Was it difficult?" Tia asked Nicole.

"It's just the jet lag. I'll be better after some rest," Nicole assured her.

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 3302-"You really need to rest. You shouldn't work for the next few days. Stay home and rest. A bride has to look her best," Gloria said, looking at Nicole and making the decision for her.

"Bride!" Nicole was surprised because she hadn't talked about any wedding yet.

"Yes, now that everything is settled, it's time for your wedding with Jared," Gloria said, deciding firmly. She used to think it was best for the kids to decide for themselves, but after several delays, she felt waiting longer made no sense.

The wedding should happen soon.

“I was thinking that too,” Jared said. They had planned the wedding after solving the Everett problem, but then they found out Lawrence had hurt Nicole in the past, causing more delays. Now, with everything sorted out, they saw no reason to wait. The wedding was the next big step.

Nicole looked at Jared and, with a smile, agreed, “Okay.” Their wedding had been waiting for five years; it was time, with no need to wait any longer.

“That’s so cool, I’m the flower girl and Nolan is the page boy!” Lana said, full of excitement.

“When should we set the date?” Tia asked, thinking they might need some time to get ready.

“In a week,” Jared said, looking at Nicole for her reaction.

Gloria was unsure. “As much as I want it soon, can we really get ready in just a week?” “Don’t worry, it’s all set up already,” Jared assured her. They had everything for the wedding ready a long time ago, just waiting for the right moment.

“Now, is there anything else we should do or add?” Stanley wondered if there was any way they could contribute.

“There’s nothing more to do,” Jared assured him.

Stanley paused then said, “Right, you have been planning for so long, everything must be ready.” “There’s definitely many things to do.” Nicole thought for a moment, then said, “We’re going to need everyone’s help to welcome the guests.”

She pictured the wedding day as being bustling with activity, hosting a large number of guests. There would be close friends of both the Riddle and Johnston families, along with their business partners. The number of attendees would indeed be substantial.

“We all need to help with hosting; we can’t overlook anyone,” she added.

“Don’t worry, your uncles will be there too,” Daniel said, then looked at Stanley, “And you guys will help with Nicole’s friends.”

Since Nicole couldn't greet the guests herself at the start of the wedding, it was key that everyone felt welcomed.

"Got it, I'll tell Samuel and Spencer," Stanley agreed.

"Jane hasn't been feeling well, and Sean is taking care of her. Steve is busy with Sally and the kids, so it's really up to you guys," Gloria reminded them. The older generation had their hands full too, with their own guests to entertain.

"Yes, I'm going to visit them tomorrow to find out more," Gloria said.

"Good idea. It's always better to talk in person," Nicole agreed.

Jared teased, "You might need to adjust to something new soon."

MY WIFE IS A HACKER CHAPTER 3303-Jared held Nicole close and looked at her. "After we get married, we'll move to the estate," he said.

Their future home would be just theirs.

He thought it was good for Nicole to spend more time with her family since she hadn't been with them for five years. But they knew they would move to the estate later.

"Okay," Nicole said, nodding. She was happy Jared made the estate close to her family, so she was okay with moving.

Jared gently touched her hair and kissed her...

Time flew, and soon it was Nicole and Jared's wedding day.

From the morning, San Joto was alive with excitement. Everyone was talking about Jared and Nicole's wedding.

Politicians, business leaders, close friends, and business partners all came to wish the couple well.

The Riddles were busy welcoming the guests, making everything look amazing.

“Patricia, hurry up, Charlie’s here,” Ellar called out as he spotted Charlie. He quickly got Patricia to come and greet him. Max, hearing the fuss, came over too.

Charlie arrived with Doretta, Zane, and Carl.

“Charlie!” Patricia said, thrilled, “you’re back.” “Yes, it’s a happy day. We had to come and join in,” Charlie replied, giving Patricia a relieved look.

It looked like Ellar had been taking great care of Patricia, so Charlie, her brother, didn’t need to worry anymore.

“Speaking of happy days, when’s yours?” Ellar teased, looking at Charlie.

Charlie hesitated, stealing a glance at Doretta.

Doretta blushed and quickly said, “Ellar, I’m off to see Aunt Emma.’ Then, she went over to Emma, who was busy with the guests.

“Charlie, you need to try a bit harder,” Ellar said, smiling playfully.

Charlie looked at Ellar with a bit of annoyance and said, “Worry about your own problems first.”

He and Doretta didn’t plan to get married soon. But they liked being together, helping and caring for each other. They’d think about marriage when it felt right.

“You young ones,” Zane laughed, watching them joke around.

“What’s the fun here? What are you talking about?” Preston, Ryder, and Gary came over to the group.

Preston didn’t want to welcome guests. Since Ryder and Gary were guests too, he acted like he was hosting them.

“We were talking about why so many people are single,” Ellar said jokingly, looking at the three who were also single.

“Cut it out, I just haven’t wanted to find anyone,” Gary retorted, not ready to give in.

“I’m just speaking the truth,” Ell ar stood his ground, looking Gary in the eye.
