

My Wife is a Hacker by Summer

Chapter 772

□ □ □

Chapter 772

Fortunately, there was no one at the school gate. Nicole pushed him away and blushed.

“I-I go now.”

“Okay.” He smiled.

She turned around, walked a few steps, and suddenly opened her mouth. “I will attend the Johnston family’s party.”

Jared did not expect that Nicole already knew before he could invite her. “Would you like to be my female partner, then?” He smiled happily.

“My pleasure.” She smiled.

Jared smiled even brighter under the streetlamp. “Deal. I’ll pick you up on the day.”

“Deal.” Nicole nodded excitedly and went back to the campus.

He looked on as Nicole went before getting into his car contentedly.

The next day, Nicole went to school as usual. She heard that both Stanley and Edwin had just done it; news came out from the student union that the reward scheme that Nicole had said earlier was real.

Many students had started to sign up enthusiastically, and the problem of the school signing up students for the sports day had been resolved. In Edwin's words, Nicole was their lucky star.

The result was that everyone in the class had a lot of admiration for Nicole. As soon as Nicole became the class monitor, her classmates immediately got to enjoy the fringe benefit. They felt proud of being associated with Nicole. As those who used to trample on Nicole in the class started to butter her up, Vivian was maddened. But she did not dare to show her anger.

Lulu and June envied Nicole. "You're the class monitor now. How nice." They felt relieved, as no one would bully her anymore.

"No, it's too busy." She did not like the feeling of being busy.

"You're so capable; all these are just a piece of cake for you." Bradley smiled.

As he spoke, the school PA system sounded, asking all the students to gather on the sports field.

"Do today's recess exercises come earlier?" Jack and others were surprised.

"Let's go." Gary was too lazy to ask and got up straight away. With Gary taking the lead, everyone got up and went to the sports field.

Someone was standing on the podium. Nicole and the others walked over and saw that it was Norah. Nicole raised an eyebrow, not knowing what she had done wrong again.

Norah had a vicious look in her eyes at the sight of Nicole.

Nicole could not help but frown, her gut feeling telling her that this might have something to do with her.

Sure enough, after each class was lined up, Harvey stood on the podium, took the microphone, and said,”

We have identified the culprit who sabotaged the lighting fixture during the performance of Class B of the eleventh grade on the day of the school anniversary celebration.”

There was an instant uproar.

“It wasn’t an accident, but an act of sabotage. And the culprit was....”

□ □ □