

My Wife is a Hacker by Summer

Chapter 836

□ □ □

Chapter 836

When Preston saw Nicole was up and stretching, he quickly followed suit.

"You have just sat down and now want to get up again? Sit back down and keep an eye on the screen, Preston.

White could strike at any time." Edwin taunted.

"Didn't you see Nicole get up and stretch ? That means that nothing is going to happen. So don't worry."

"Lazy-guy."

After doing some stretches, Nicole sat back down and waited quietly for the next attack, which had never come again until nightfall. Nicole was exasperated after wasting a day of her time for nothing.

Logically, hackers would not just attack once and give up. She wondered if she had misjudged something.

Nicole sat there silently, analyzing the situation. Preston had dozed off when the urge of nature's call woke him up. He saw Nicole was still staring at the computer screen.

"Why don't we just call it a day? You should also go back early to rest." Nicole ignored him, and Preston went to answer nature's call.

Just at the moment, he entered the men's room, he heard Nicole call out to him.

"Here it comes!" Preston quickly zipped his pants and ran back out. The computer's firewall was under heavy attack. Preston quickly sat down and fought back. Nicole's voice jolted up Edwin from his sleep. He sat straight up in front of the computer and launched a counteroffensive with Preston.

"Nicole, have you tracked it down? The attack is vicious this time." Preston busily typed on the keyboard.

"Hang on there." Nicole was looking for the weakest entry point. Suddenly, her eyes lit up, and she responded at once.

"I got him." Nicole successfully hacked into White's computer in the quickest possible time. She could not have gained access had White found out.

"I got him," Nicole exclaimed again as if each announcement was a victory. Nicole started to rummage through White's computer system for information about him.

Suddenly, White found that his computer had been hacked. He immediately made a counter-intrusion move. But it was too late; Nicole had taken over his computer and restricted all his permissions .

At this moment, his computer was just a dummy monitor that he had no control over. He could only watch Nicole searching around for his information. Nicole also knew that White was aware of what she was doing. So she sped up the search. White stared angrily at the screen; his hands clenched into fists.

Worried that the opponent might find information about him, he smashed the computer to the ground and walked out of his place, then set the base on fire to cover his tracks. The scene of the raging fire was reflected in White's eyes. White might have smashed the computer, but Nicole had managed to find his registration on The Hunters.

Nicole mused as she looked at the information she had found. It turned out that White was also a member of The Hunters.

After withstanding all the attacks, Preston and Edwin lay exhausted on their computer desks, asking feebly, "Nicole, have you tracked him down?"

"I got him." Nicole glanced back.

□ □ □