

My Wife is a Hacker by Summer

Chapter 853

□ □ □

Chapter 853

"Exactly. She is also from the Riddle family, yet nothing like Nicole. Such a stark contrast."

"If I were here, I would have been too embarrassed to stay here."

"Shut your dirty mouth. I'll cut off your tongue if you say it again." Raine stepped out angrily, trying to argue with them, but Snow stopped her.

"Don't bark up the wrong tree. Nicole is the one to blame. If not for her, these people would not have taunted us." Snow looked at Nicole with frosty eyes.

It had now moved on to pole jump, which was an event June loved.

After warming up, she walked to the field. But as she walked past Snow, a leg was quietly extended, tripping her up. She fell to the ground, injuring her palms and knees.

June had no choice but to give up the competition and let her substitute take her place, Nicole had previously signed up for all the events.

As some of her classmates liked to take part in some of these events, she gave way to her classmates while she would be a substitute .

Everything had gone on smoothly, and her classmates had also performed well. But in June's turn, an accident happened.

Nicole asked Samuel to take care of June while she came onto the field.

The audience rose in a hullabaloo when they saw Nicole again.

"Nicole, go, go, go!" Nicole swept her eyes over her classmates, who were cheering her, then picked up the pole and launched it into the air.

She broke the national record.

The TV station had recorded her wonderful action, and there was thunderous applause from the audience.

Nicole enjoyed more fame and grabbed even more limelight.

This year's sports day was concluded.

At first, Snow and Raine were expecting to see Nicole embarrass herself.

But things did not turn out as expected, and they had indirectly helped Nicole gain more fame instead.

So they left the scene in exasperation.

The TV station requested to interview Nicole, but she declined it and recommended Gary as the class representative for an interview.

Gary never liked to appear in front of the camera, but since Nicole had asked, he had no choice but to agree. Nicole was thinking of going to the infirmary to check on Lulu's foot injury, but she heard that Lulu had been back in the dormitory. So she went straight back there.

As soon as she entered the door, she saw Lulu sitting against the wall.

Nicole came up to her and asked with concern, "Does it still hurt? What did the doctor say?"

"I feel better after seeing you." Lulu looked at Nicole with a smile.

"Silly girl, am I your panacea?"

"Nicole, how were the subsequent events going?" Lulu was injured and left the scene early, so she missed a lot of the actions.

"It was awesome. Our class has taken the most first place, and you share part of the credit," Nicole said.

"Really? That is amazing. Do you know that our class has never won first place before? Had it not been for you becoming the class monitor, we would have remained at the bottom of the barrel. Thanks to you for giving us training.

Nicole , you are awesome.” Lulu was genuinely happy.

“You’re wrong. It’s not my credit alone. It’s the result of everyone working together. Class B is the best!”

Nicole was not carried away but remained humble even though she had scored so many firsts.

"Yes, Class B is the best!" Lulu shouted in the dormitory.

"Where is June? Why didn't I see her back?" Lulu was asking when June walked in slowly from outside.

"I'm back."

"June, how did you get hurt, too?" Lulu was taken aback, her heart skipping a beat at the sight of the bandage on June's leg.

Nicole stepped up and helped her sit down.

"What the hell is going on?"

"Before the last pole jump event, I accidentally tripped and fell." June was disappointed that she did not get to compete.

□ □ □