Chapter 854

"You should have been more careful. Now Nicole is the only person who hasn't been injured and could move around freely in the dormitory." What should have been a word of concern coming out of Lulu's mouth turned out to be a little funny.

The three of them looked at each other and burst into laughter.

Suddenly there was a knock at the dormitory's door. Nicole went to answer the door. It was Spencer and Samuel.

"Oh, my God. You guys actually came to the girl's dormitory?" Nicole exclaimed.

"Is Lulu here?" "Is June here?" Nicole could immediately tell why the two guys came.

"I will leave you guys to it. I will leave first, as I still have something to do." Nicole actually did not want to be a third wheel here, so she left.

She came in front of the classroom and pushed open the door.

Ms. Emerson was excitedly praising everyone.

When she saw Nicole, she immediately invited Nicole to the podium.

"Nicole has done great today, and because of that, our class has become the envy of teachers and students in the school. Please give Nicole a big round of applause." Ms. Emerson took the lead, and warm applause from everyone followed.

Nicole hurriedly motioned for everyone to calm down.

"Ms. Emerson, the honor belongs to all the students, and everyone's performance has exceeded expectations." Nicole praised everyone instead of taking all the credit for herself.

"Yes, Nicole is right. It's our collective honor. But it was Nicole who trained you all. So I have decided that during my class in the afternoon, you all may move freely." Ms. Emerson had never been so happy as she was today.

In the past, Class A had always been outperforming Class B.

Today, she could finally hold her head high.

Vivian suddenly remembered that there were prizes given for this year's sports day. So she took the opportunity to ask

Ms. Emerson.

"Didn't you say that there were prizes for taking first place?" "I was so happy that I almost forgot such an important thing. Anyone follows me to get the prizes?"

"I will go." Vivian was the first to raise her hand.

So Ms. Emerson took Vivian and a few others to collect the prizes.

Because their class had won too many prizes, Nicole, as the class representative, had only received a symbolic prize and the prize list on the podium of the competition.

After a while, Vivian and her classmates returned with boxes of prizes, and Ms.

Emerson instructed Vivian and others to distribute them to everyone.

They were all happy to receive the prize.

"Just as Nicole said, these prizes are all big-name items."

"Nicole couldn't be lying. And I'm grateful to be in the same class as Nicole. Otherwise, these awesome prizes would have belonged to someone else."

"You're right. When I went out to collect the prizes, people from the other classes looked at us enviously."

"Nicole, thank you. Had you not trained with us, we wouldn't have gotten these big-name prizes."

"We're sorry that we opposed you before this." Those students who had worked against Nicole during the training apologized to her now.

"When I see everyone has a prize in their hand, I know that our previous efforts are worth it. Let's forget the past, and remember today that we can do it as long as we want it hard enough." Watching her once naughty classmates approve of Nicole, she knew she could never change Nicole's place in the class. As much as she did not want to concede defeat, she no longer dared to be foolhardy now. She fiddled with the prize in her hand as she walked over to Nicole and whispered a thank you.

Nicole looked back.

When she saw it was Vivian, she complimented her, "This results from your efforts, and you should thank yourself. You have won four first places for the class."

Vivian was transfixed for a second, not expecting Nicole to praise her. She seemed to have found a little sense of existence in front of Nicole, and she started to admire her.

After the sports day, the school announces a few days off. Nicole was carrying her backpack and was on her way to return home when she ran into Harvey.

"Nicole, the tender day of the Aegis Corporation project will soon arrive. Shall we discuss the bidding?" Harvey asked.

He knew that this was a rare opportunity where he could spend time with Nicole alone. If not for Aegis Corporation's tender, the Riddle family would not have worked with the Ellison family, and he would not have had an excuse to see Nicole so often.
