

My Wife is a Hacker by Summer

Chapter 930

□ □ □

Chapter 930

After a moment of observation, Nicole said to Carl, "Leave a mark." Then the two of them went to check out other locations."

Leave a mark here."

Carl did as Nicole had instructed. "If the entire Roca Este is under the enemy's surveillance, how will the boats get in?" Carl asked the question Nicole had been thinking about.

"I'm thinking about this too, but we can't think too much now. We will know when we cross the bridge." Trapped on this isolated island, Nicole also did not know what to do next, but could only let Carl leave marks, and then they went back to study in detail.

They had marked all the places suitable for boats to dock. "Carl, you go get the car back, and I will look around."

After Carl went, Nicole went up to the top of one of the highest hills and took out her binoculars to observe the entrance to Roca

Este. There were indeed many men in black guarding the entrance. With their current numbers and equipment, it seemed that fighting their way out was not really possible.

Back at Zane's place, Carl had already brought the car back.

"Did you find anything, Nicole?" Carl asked.

"The entrance into Roca Este has been sealed off by the men in black. We are now completely trapped." Nicole told of what she saw.

Zane slammed his fist down hard on the table. "Looks like this gang is trying to trap us here with little effort."

"Did you find the places where the boats could dock?"

Zane looked over at Nicole.

"Yup. I have asked Carl to leave marks in different spots."

"Why don't you come up with a battle plan, Zane?"

Nicole looked at Zane.

"You two have just come on the island today. The enemy will definitely keep a close eye on you two. If we take action now, we will definitely be discovered. Let's stay put today, and you and Carl do the necessary preparation," Zane said.

"Okay." Nicole and Carl went out at once.

"Someone, watch closely the situation outside the island and keep me informed."

"Aye."

After giving the instructions, Zane took out the sketch and carefully studied the escape plan.

Nicole and Carl came outside and checked everyone's equipment. The men's weapons and equipment were fine, but there were just not enough men.

"Carl, choose the ten best among them to protect Zane while evacuating."

"Okay."

Nicole went to a secluded area and took out her pager." Hello, hello." After a long wait, a voice replied.

"Roger."

"Prepare three boats, then wait for my signal and sail due south of Roca Este. I have marked three spots there. Stop one boat at each spot." Nicole explained to the man in the suit.

"Okay."

Amid the tense atmosphere, Nicole and others spent an uneventful night on Roca Este.

The next day, before dawn, a man on sentry duty on Roca Este suddenly noticed a group of men sneaking up toward them and immediately reported back to Zane.

"There is a group of unidentified men entering Roca Este.

"How many of them?"

"At least twenty, probably thirty."

"Lead a team and ambush the enemy." Zane picked up his gun and was already ready for battle.

□ □ □