

Chapter 647 The Whole Family Is Falling Down

Previously, internet trolls hired by Wanda had been dragging Lilah's name through the mud, flooding social media with baseless accusations that branded her a tramp who supposedly wrecked another woman's engagement. But Milton's post changed everything. The conversation erupted into something far more heated, as genuine voices rose to drown out the manufactured hatred.

This time, public sentiment formed a unified wall of rage—and every ounce of it targeted Wanda and Trinity.

"Wanda has no shame! She masqueraded as the daughter of the Sun Group's leader and tried to steal the real heiress's fiancé. She'll stop at nothing to achieve her despicable goals—what a scumbag!"

"Trinity's just as rotten! She knew Wanda was a fraud but paraded Wanda around anyway. Getting beaten up was exactly what Trinity deserved when the truth surfaced!"

"The manipulation these two sisters pulled off defies belief. No decent person would sink to such pathetic, underhanded schemes!"

"This exposes how completely the Craig family failed as parents. One messed-up daughter might be bad luck, but both of them? That's pure genetics. The entire bloodline is poisoned!"

"The Craigs didn't just fail with their daughters—they failed with their son too! Word is their older boy, Boris Craig, tricked some innocent girl into almost giving up her kidney for him with an outrageous charade. He's still rotting in prison where he belongs!"

"Is the entire Craig clan this twisted? They're nothing but a bunch of garbage! We can't let a family this corrupt walk free—everyone needs to unite and crush the Craig Group's stock!"

The digital uprising swept through cyberspace like wildfire. Wanda and Trinity became the first casualties, torn apart by thousands of angry voices. Then, Boris's crimes resurfaced from the depths. Within hours, the entire Craig family stood condemned, and their company's stock value crashed into oblivion.

The Craig family had never truly regained their former glory after being crushed by Merlin. Wanda's recent return to Ublento and her calculated use of the Campbell name had thrown them a lifeline, slowly rebuilding their fractured empire. But now, this sudden storm of public fury had shattered their progress, dragging them toward complete financial collapse.

Norwood and Joslyn huddled at home, desperately crafting their next strategy. With Wanda's engagement to Cole destroyed beyond repair, they decided to pivot their hopes to Trinity, gambling everything on securing her a marriage alliance with the Evans family. Trinity might not capture Cole himself or the formidable Jason, but marrying any influential Evans family member could still rescue the Craigs from their downward spiral.

But before Norwood and Joslyn could solidify their schemes, devastating news arrived—the Craig Group's stock had plummeted into freefall.

Shock gripped Norwood and Joslyn as they scrambled to understand what was happening, only to discover their family name was being destroyed across every platform. Marriage into high society became a fantasy. At this pace, they'd be homeless by dawn.

"How did this nightmare begin? How could it be?" Norwood's voice cracked as he paced frantically around the room.

Joslyn stood frozen in stunned silence before finally reaching for her phone to call Wanda.

Wanda was still driving toward the Harmony Estate, completely unaware of the chaos erupting around her.

Wanda did not know that Milton had publicly declared Lilah his only sister while denying any connection to Wanda herself. Wanda remained ignorant of Trinity's injuries and completely oblivious to her family's financial destruction.

Wanda's mind burned with nothing but white-hot rage over Lilah's relationship with Cole. When Joslyn's call pierced through her thoughts, she snapped, "What?" without even attempting basic courtesy.

"Wanda, what catastrophe is unfolding?" Joslyn's voice trembled with hysteria. "How is Lilah suddenly the legitimate Campbell daughter? And Milton actually claimed he doesn't know you? The public is destroying our family—we're staring at bankruptcy!"

"What did you just say?" Blood drained from Wanda's face completely. She slammed the brakes, her car shrieking to a violent stop along the roadside. "Explain everything—now," she commanded, her voice cutting through the air like shattered glass. How could Lilah possibly be a Campbell? Even if Milton refused to acknowledge her as his sister, how could he completely deny knowing of her existence? What on earth was going on?

Joslyn had expected Wanda to provide answers, but Wanda's confusion was painfully obvious. She had no patience left for explanations. "Search online yourself," she said curtly. "You'll understand everything."

With that, she hung up.

Wanda's expression darkened into a thundercloud. She frantically unlocked her phone, her fingers racing across the screen as she devoured every piece of news, following the digital breadcrumbs straight to Milton's post.

When she finished absorbing the complete picture, her complexion had transformed into the color of death itself. How could this be? Lilah—the woman who had stolen Cole from her grasp—was the genuine Campbell heiress. How could she ever extract her revenge now?

Wanda bitterly realized that she possessed no power to make Lilah's life hell. For the remainder of her existence, she would be condemned to watch Lilah and Cole's happiness while forcing artificial smiles, perhaps even offering congratulations through gritted teeth.

But then, Wanda shook her head. No. She couldn't accept this. Yet, her burning resentment had become a luxury she couldn't afford. The genuine crisis loomed before her. Now that the true heiress had emerged from the shadows, what fate awaited her, an adopted girl? Where would she find refuge? Would the Campbells simply cast her out like discarded
