I Will Never Be Yours By Melan pamp Chapter 148

Selena pov

Stepping out on the other side of the portal I come to stand right in front of the pack house, it feels like ages since I was here and it's all different this time.

Take a deep breath before I start to walk up the stairs and head over to the front door, opening it up I hear several voices and know they are in the kitchen and eating breakfast making my way over there I step into the kitchen and see everyone sitting around the table except Jessie, she is nowhere to be seen.

"Selena you're back!" Zoey says and gets up on her feet and walks over to me when she wraps me up in a tight hug. Feels good to be back with them!

yes, I am, and need to talk to you after I have talked to Jessie!" I say to her when she releases me from her arms.

"I have something to talk to you about as well, mind link me when you are done talking to her. You know where to find her!" she says and I think I do.

"I will catch up with you all later after I have talked to her!" I say and look at them when they give me a nod or a smile back in response. Turning around I head out of the kitchen and start to climb the stairs up to her room, finding her scent strong the closer I get when I stop in front of her door.

Taking a breath to prepare myself for this talk when I give the door a knock before going inside, seeing her sitting on the bed she raises her head and looks at me in surprise before she is quick on her feet and runs over to where I am and wrap her arms around me, she breaks down in a sob on my shoulder. Wrapping my arms around her I can only imagine how bad she feels about all that happened.

"I'm so sorry for everything Selena!" she says in a sob and I already know it.

"I know! But you have to explain some things to me!" I say when she lets go of me and turns around to take a seat on the bed.

"what do you want to know?" she asks and wipe away her tears, walking over I take a seat on the bed beside her.

"Did everyone go with Jacob of their own free will or did he command them?" I have had this nagging at my mind since it happened.

"everyone went because they wanted and were tired of sitting inside here and only waiting for what's to come, I know we went against your orders and we shouldn't have then they all would be alive now and you would still be in charge of the pack!" she says and I hear how troubled she is over the whole thing.

"I'm still in charge of the pack, needed to focus on me and our children for what needed to be done, it was for the best he helped and take care of it for the time being!" I say when she turns to look at me.

"So you are coming back as the Alpha?" she says

"I never stopped being the Alpha, only I had to focus on myself and how this could go so wrong! Both my Beta and my Gamma went against my orders and disobeyed their Alpha, what message does it send to the rest?" I ask and look at her, seeing her take a deep breath before she gets up on her feet and starts to pace around the room.

"We only wanted to keep the pack safe and you, that's why we wanted to go outside the barrier!" she stops and looks at me, I see the pain in her eyes after everything that happened and I can only imagine how hard she is blaming herself for their death.

"I know why you did it even if it were wrong, they all had to pay the price for it! I couldn't save them and if I hadn't forced you to come with me that day you would probably lay dead like the others!" I say when she walks over and takes a seat beside me on the bed.

"I know Selena, my conscious is heavy with their death on it!" she says and I grab her hand in mine.

"No, Jessie! If they all went outside by their own free will knowing what is out there and they would be outnumbered then you couldn't have done anything to help them, even I tried and couldn't do anything!" I say when she hangs her head.

"it was me and Jacob who talked about it, he wanted to go out there and persuade me to go, it wasn't hard and I should have stood against it but it was easy to change my mind!" she says and drags her hand down her face.

"We all have learned a hard lesson here and we have to move forward from this, I suggest you do a far better work from now on!" I say when she looks up at me

"I think there are better persons to handle the job as your Beta than me!" she says when I place my arm around her shoulders.

"No, there isn't, we both have to change and take a learning from this!" I say when she looks down at my belly.

"I haven't seen you for weeks, you have grown big!" she says and chuckles, placing my hand on my stomach she is right about that.

"yes I have and this morning I cried over an empty bottle of pickles! I need you to keep my head straight these hormones are starting to mess with me!" I say and laugh about it when she joins me and the door flies open when Emma comes walking inside and laughing.

"I recognize that feeling even if I think it's hilarious you cried over some pickles!" she says and laughs hard.

"Emma have you been eavesdropping outside the door!" I say and look at her.

"of course I have! Need you two to be friends again and move past this, I want my pack back!" she says and raises her hands in the air while she laughs

"Well, you won't get rid of us and right now I have to talk to Zoey if we are okay!" I turn to Jessie when she gives me a big smile.

"of course we are! Are you going to offer her to be the Gamma?" she asks and I see her look over at Emma before she looks back at me, I get this feeling they are hiding something from me.

"Yes, I plan to, hoping she wants it this time! Why do I get a feeling you know something I don't?" I say and look between them.

"I will let her tell it to you!" Jessie says when I hear some footsteps in the hallway and Zoey comes walking to the doorway.

"Alright how about we talk in my office!" I say to Zoey and get up from the bed and start to walk towards the door when she takes a step back.

"I will talk to you later!" I say to Jessie and Emma when we walk out of the room and head over to my office, Zoey doesn't say anything on the way when we are walking down the hallway and stops outside my office door. Push my door open and walk inside, Kian's faint scent lingers in the room and I guess he has been working in here from time to time when I have been over at Michaels. Zoey closes the door after her and I make my way over to my office desk and take a seat behind it when she slowly makes her way over to my desk, I know by the sight of her that she has something on her mind.

"I know you already know what I plan to ask you but by the look of it you still haven't changed your mind!" I say when she slowly takes a seat on a chair in front of me, it takes a moment before she raises her eyes and looks at me.

"That's not what's bothering me!" she says and holds my gaze.

"then tell me what's your problem?" I say and sit back in my seat and wait for her to tell me, she pulls her shirt to the side and I see a freshly made mark on it, I'm shocked at the sight!

"you have met your mate!" I say and give her a big smile, couldn't be happier for her when she put her shirt back and sit back in her seat.

"Yes I did, he came here with a group of Kian's men to protect the pack," she says and looks out the window

"you don't look happy!" I say and can't understand a thing of it.

"I'm happy, but you might not be!" she says when there is a knock on my office door before it's opened.
