

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 756

Chapter 756 Adina turned around and saw that their conversation had become a spectacle. Her children along with Karl, Pete and Flint were listening in around the computer.

She blushed.

"Don't say things like that. I am going to hang up now." "TH meet you tonight then," Duke's voice was hoarse. "Addy, I miss you.

I want to see you." Adina blushed harder and her heart raced.

She was afraid her heart would stop beating, so she hung up the phone in a hurry.

"Huh, why did you hang up?" "Mommy, Daddy hasn't finished speaking yet. Why did you hang up?"

The children pestered her.

Adina took a deep breath and tried to calm herself before she walked to the living room.

"Don't monitor my calls in the future," she said, trying to keep a straight face.

Melody tilted her head, as if she found this amusing. "Mommy, your ears are so red." "Mommy, are you shy?" Harold teased.

George nodded.

"Daddy said he misses Mommy, so mommy must be shy." Adina was at a loss for words.

These brats knew too much.

Alden asked obediently, "Will Daddy come over tonight?" "Oh yeah, Daddy will come to see Mommy." Melody covered her face and laughed excitedly.

"I get to see Daddy too." Harold played with his fingers.

"I can finally see Daddy again. I'm so happy!"

George coughed.

“Didn’t you all hear what Daddy said? He misses Mommy, so he is coming to see Mommy only.

“We better not be the third wheel.” Melody asked curiously, “George, what is a third wheel?” “A third wheel is someone who disturbs Daddy and Mommy when they are dating,” George explained.

“But we won’t disturb Daddy and Mommy when they are on a date.” Melody blinked pitifully.

“I’ll hide in the corner and take a look at Daddy.”

Tears welled up in her eyes.

Adina quickly crouched down and said softly, “Let’s wait for Daddy to come over tonight, okay?” Melody and Harold jumped happily.

Adina let out a sigh of relief.

4 Last time, that man had sneaked into her room late at night and the situation had almost... heated up.

The children will be with her tonight, so that man would not dare to mess around.

However, Duke did not show up that night.

The children waited eagerly for their father but soon grew tired and fell asleep on the couch.

Adina felt helpless and carried the children back to their room.

It was already past eleven at night.

Besides Flint, who was still playing games in the room, the whole mansion was silent.

Adina returned to her room to wash up.

As soon as she opened the door, she saw that the light in her room was turned off.

She frowned.

She was about to turn the light back on when someone grabbed her wrist.

Madam Winters’s Fight For Her Children Chapter 757

Chapter 757 The bedroom was pitch black. Adina smelled cigarette smoke.

She thought it was Duke, but the grip on her wrist was so strong that it almost broke her arm.

Duke would never be so forceful with her.

Adina raised her foot and kicked the chair by the bed, but the man avoided it.

The man in the dark seemed to take it as provocation.

He grabbed her by the wrist and threw her on the bed.

He pinned her down on the bed.

“Adina, you seem to be living a good life here. Have you forgotten who I am?” The cold and low voice made her shudder.

She narrowed her eyes in the dark.

She pushed her elbow against the man’s neck.

“You know that my martial arts skills are better than yours. Don’t force me to beat you up.” “Really?” Earl suddenly took a black thing out of his pocket and pressed it against Adina’s forehead.

“Do you still think I can’t beat you?” It was a black thing with a cold touch and a death aura.

Chapter 75/ 2/3

Adina knew what it was.

She stared coldly at Earl’s tragic face now slightly visible because of the moonlight from the window.

“You came all the way to find me just to take my corpse back.”

“Of course, I don’t want to kill you.

I still haven’t f*cked you.” Earl moved his gun downward and opened her collar.

The black gun pressed against her delicate collarbone.

“Take off your clothes!”

Adina's face turned cold.

"Earl Winters, do you know what you're doing?" "I do, of course." Earl grinned.

"You took advantage of my feelings toward you and tricked me.

Adina, you're smart, but you shouldn't have done that.

Since you have tempted me, your body must also belong to me.

After searching for you for so long, I don't have any patience anymore.

I'll count to three.

If you don't take off your clothes, I'll go to the next room and kill a kid." Adina gritted her teeth and looked at him.

"They're your nephews and niece. How can you be so cruel?" "Cruel is a good word. I like it." Earl sneered.

"I just want to show you how mad I am." He got up suddenly, turned, and rested his hand on the door. Adina bit her lower lip.

"Okay, I'll take it off!" "You should have done it earlier."

Chapter 757 3/3

Earl stood against the wall and watched Adina, who was on the edge of the bed in the dark.

She lowered her head and did not look at him.

She unbuttoned one by one, revealing the camisole inside.

The white camisole was eye-catching in the dark.

Earl swallowed hungrily.

He walked toward the bed slowly and grabbed Adina's shoulders.

Adina suppressed the resentment she felt.

Something shone, and she saw the gun at the man's waist.

She was thinking about how to steal the gun.

Earl smiled as he noticed her gaze falling on his gun.

“I have two guns with me. Even if you steal one, I still have an extra. I won’t kill you, but I’ll kill your children. Four bullets for four children. It’s quite convenient.”

Adina gritted her teeth.

“I wasn’t planning to steal your gun. Do whatever you want. Just don’t wake the whole mansion.” “You’re smart.” Earl pushed her.

He was satisfied seeing her helplessly lying on the bed with no power to fight back.

Madam Winters’s Fight For Her Children Chapter 758

Chapter 758 He leaned over her and parted his mouth to bite the woman’s lips.

Adina turned her head away. “Don’t kiss me.”

“Why? Do you find me disgusting?” Earl turned her face to him.

“Adina, the more you hate my actions, the more I want to do things that sicken you.

Because only with this would I remain more stubbornly etched in your head, and you would stop thinking about leaving my side all the time.” Adina glared at him.

“You’re letting Duke down by doing this!” “A dead man is a dead man.

So, what if I’m not worthy?” Earl said indifferently, “Now is not the time to bring up the dead.” Adina lowered her gaze.

It seemed that Earl was completely unaware of Duke being alive.

She could use this to cause a huge stir...

As she pondered this, Earl lowered his head to hers.

When he was just a centimeter away from kissing her neck, the balcony suddenly flung open.

The chilly night air billowed in, causing the man, who leaned over Adina, to raise his head.

Chapter 758 213

Earl's gloomy eyes looked towards the window only to find a man with a golden mask walk into the room from the balcony.

'Gold mask and black cape, and close to Hestia Border....' Earl was from such a place, so he immediately guessed who this person donning the golden mask and black cape must be.

"Save me, Terry North!" Adina cried for help as she hurriedly put on her coat.

Duke walked inside; his gaze was like ice.

He had pushed open the balcony window and entered the room to find this man lying atop Adina.

He was filled with rage.

His first thought was that he had been betrayed.

But when he heard Adina's cry for help, he understood that someone was trying to get their hands on his woman.

He drew the gun from his waist.

Before Earl could even react, he shot a bullet from his silenced gun aiming for Earl's right wrist.

Adina could smell the blood.

"Very well!" Earl was shot in his right hand, and he could not pull out his gun.

But he grinned savagely.

"Aren't you amazing, Adina Daugherty? To think you could seduce the leader of a gang.

Heh! I underestimated you... but just you wait!"

ANONS

FW

LONTOWN

TE

In one leap, Earl had jumped down from the second – floor balcony and disappeared into the night.

The smell of gunpowder and blood still permeated the house.

Adina buttoned up her clothes quickly.

“Luckily you arrived just in time...” ‘I can’t imagine what would have happened if you hadn’t.

‘ She did not say that out loud.

She most certainly would never let Earl have his way, but if they ended up fighting because of it, they would both suffer...

It did not matter if she got injured.

She was only worried for the children.

Adina raised her head to see Duke make a strange face.

She turned around to turn on the bedroom lights.

The golden mask shone brilliantly under the light.

Duke lifted his hand to take off the mask.

He pursed his lips.

“That man looked familiar.”

Adina looked up at him.

Madam Winters’s Fight For Her Children Chapter 759

Chapter 759 Duke’s voice faltered and the room fell silent. The only sound was the rustle of wind outside the window. Adina stared at him.

“You disappeared on our wedding day,” she said slowly.

“He came to the Winters family’s mansion pretending to be you.

He lived in your house, was a husband to your wife, was a father to your children, took charge of your company...

You were chased out here, having to carry responsibilities that were not yours..."

Her voice rang in Duke's ears.

A fractured memory surfaced in his mind.

The past emerged in his thoughts one by one, like fleeting scenes from a train window.

Beads of cold sweat formed on his forehead.

"Duke, what's wrong?" Adina rushed toward him and took his arm.

"The back of my head hurts..." Duke closed his eyes.

"A lot of repressed memories... but I can't remember anything..." "Don't worry ..." said Adina softly.

She held him.

"You only need to remember that you are my husband, a father to your children, and you have a full and happy family.

So, hurry and settle your problems at Hestia Border, then our family can finally be reunited." Duke understood how painful it would be to forcefully awaken his memories, but he had to try to remember.

He did not want to meet someone from his past and remember nothing about them.

If that happened, he would even misunderstand his own wife...

Adina felt horrible seeing him in pain.

She let out a tearful sigh.

"First, settle the Black Party problems, then we'll discuss about Earl.

At least he's not as difficult as the Black Party for now," she said

"I've wronged you." Duke pulled the woman close and hugged her.

When he had faced his supposed twin brother, he had reeked of blood.

Duke could sense that Earl had committed murder before.

He could not believe Adina, as fragile as she looked, had had to deal with someone like Earl.

She must have had to contend with him, take care of four children, and even venture to every nook and cranny looking for him.

Duke felt lucky to have such a wife.

He lowered his head and kissed her on her eyes.

His thin lips slowly trailed down to her lips and nibbled gently.

Adina returned his passionate kiss.

The door opened a small crack.

“Quick, close your eyes!”

“Big brother, please move aside.

I haven’t seen Daddy yet.” “Daddy and Mommy are kissing.

Children aren’t allowed to watch.” “No, I wanna see! Wow, now I can see it.

Daddy and Mommy are smooching!” Adina pulled away from the man’s arm after hearing the children’s voices.

She turned to see the four children at the door, all trying to cover their eyes with their tiny hands.

Though, some were still trying to get a peek through the gap between their fingers.

Adina blushed.

‘How could she have forgotten to lock the door?! Now the children had accidentally witnessed such a thing...’ “Huh, Daddy and Mommy aren’t doing it anymore?” Harold asked curiously.

“We promise not to peek!” “Yeah, no peeking!” Melody agreed, covering her own eyes tightly with her hands.

Adina cleared her throat.

“Why are you all awake?” “We heard movement from Mommy’s room, so we thought it must be Daddy,” George said in defense.”.

Daddy and Mommy can keep on dating.

we’ll go back to bed.” Melody was a little reluctant to go back.

"But Daddy chote 759 hasn't given me a hug yet."

Duke stared blankly at the four children in front of him, unable to regain his senses for a while.

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 760

Chapter 760 He had seen these four children before, but it had been less intense than them appearing simultaneously before him in this way.

He slowly regained his senses, stood up and walked towards them.

"I'm sorry I neglected my duties and couldn't protect you all, just like how I couldn't protect your mommy."

"Daddy, you meanie!" sobbed Melody as he lunged into Duke's arms and burst into tears.

Harold was also almost choking on his tears.

"Daddy, will you disappear again like before?" Duke shook his head.

"No, it'll never happen again." He would never leave his wife and his children in danger ever again.

George's eyes were a little red.

"Daddy, when can we go home?" "We need to wait till I settle things here first, then Daddy will take you all home." Duke scooped the children up in his arms in one sweeping motion.

1

Alden squirmed.

"Daddy, Mommy's been through a lot, you have to treat Mommy better from now on." Duke stroked his head.

"Of course!" Seeing her husband hugging the children, Adina's eyes welled up in tears.

It was an ordinary thing, so why was she moved by this?

The children had woken up in the middle of the night, now they felt sleepy again.

Duke made two trips to their rooms to tuck them into their beds.

It was getting quite late.

“I’m sorry Addy, I have to go.” Duke pulled the woman into an embrace.

His voice was hoarse.

“Give me a week to settle things with the Black Party matters. Please take care of the children in the meantime. Don’t worry about me.”

Adina nodded.

“Then I’ll wait another week for you.” Duke placed an affectionate kiss on her forehead and leapt down from the balcony window.

His tall figure soon disappeared down the street.

Adina stared into the pitch-black night sky, silently praying in her heart that everything would go well.

As soon as Duke arrived at the gates of the Black Party’s mansion located in the central area, he saw a person pacing nonstop outside.

He glanced at the time.

It was four in the morning.

‘Why is she here at this hour?’ He slowly approached the person.

At the sound of his footsteps, the person at the entrance suddenly looked up in disbelief.

“Terry North, why are you out here? Where were you?” “Miss Isabelle, do you think I am obligated to answer your question?” The man’s voice was as icy as the chill in the early morning wind.

“Your father is in prison awaiting his trial, are you here to accompany him?”.

Isabelle shuddered.

A few days ago, when her father and Elder Dorien were transporting firearms, they were intercepted by Terry.

There had been a clash.

In the end, her father and Elder Dorien were arrested.

Her father was very old, there was no way he could survive in a gloomy and cold prison.

She had to get him out of there.

She could not sleep the whole night, so she had decided to wait here.

As long as she remained humble, Terry might feel sorry for her enough to let her father go.

“Terry, those firearms were all bought by Elder Dorien, they had nothing to do with my father,” Isabelle hissed. “If you let my father go, I will agree to anything.” “What right do you think you have to be discussing terms with me?” Terry arched his brow, giving off a cold disposition.

“After my father was imprisoned, his subordinates all came under my command,” Isabelle said through gritted teeth.

Madam Winters’s Fight For Her Children Chapter 761

Chapter 761 “How many subordinates does Elder Maurice have?” Terry asked coldly. Isabelle clenched her teeth and said in a low voice, “eight high-ranking officers, twenty-three mid-ranking officers, and over two hundred military personnel.” Duke’s eyes turned cold.

The number of people were only one-third of the people on the list Adina had given him.

It seemed that some people were very good at hiding themselves.

These people were always ready to attack him, it was time for him to take them all down.

“In three days, bring these people to the Soux River.

I will bring Elder Maurice with me,” he said icily.

“Deal.” Isabelle nodded.

It was not until the man’s figure had disappeared into the entrance of the mansion did a deep hatred surface in her eyes.

She was the eldest daughter of the Black Party’s head, there was no way she would willingly serve under someone else.

She got into her car and took out her cell phone.

“Gather my subordinates, we will meet at Soux River in three days.

Remember to capture him alive.

He needs to be Chapter 761 2/4 alive.” She wanted this man to be eating out of the palm of her hand.

She wanted him to know that she, Isabelle, was not someone to be messed with!

The dark colors of dusk soon faded and dawn slowly emerged on the horizon.

Duke flipped through the documents on his desk.

He threw the irrelevant documents straight into the shredder, while he placed the important ones in a drawer.

All that work took up to three hours, finishing exactly by eight in the morning.

The quiet mansion gradually became lively.

Duke, who had not slept the whole night, was still full of energy without a trace of fatigue on his face.

He changed into a suit.

“Blake, come with me,” he said indifferently.

Blake walked out of the corner.

“Yes, sir.” The two men walked out of the mansion.

Everyone looked at Blake curiously.

Everyone knew that the boss had a secret bodyguard, and this was the first time they had seen him.

Blake wore a mask, so nobody knew who he really was.

Blake got into the driver’s seat of the car and drove it into Yggdra without a hitch.

He eventually parked it in front of the opera house.

The concert had already begun.

Melodious piano music drifted out of the hall.

Chapter 761

3/4

Duke went straight into the lounge.

When he got there, the woman sitting on the sofa immediately stood up.

She was very graceful.

"I've heard a lot about you, Mr. North, I am honored to have this first formal meeting with you. I am Mavice. How do you do?"

Queen Mavice smiled as she held out her right hand.

She was forty-two years old this year, yet she looked closer to thirty.

Every movement she made had the dignity and elegance of nobility.

Duke shook her hand lightly.

Blake and the queen's entourage wisely left the lounge and waited by the door.

Duke and the queen sat facing each other on the sofa.

"Queen Mavice, thank you for taking time out of your busy schedule to make time for me," Duke said coolly. "There will be a tough battle the day aftertomorrow.

Are you ready for it?" Mavice looked into his eyes-the only thing left uncovered by his mask-and said, "I trust you, but I don't feel like I'm given the same courtesy." Duke understood the meaning hidden behind those words.

He lifted his hand to take off the golden mask.

"No more than five people have seen my true face.

Would this be enough as a token of my trust?" Mavice's gaze fell on his scarred face.

She was stunned.

Chapter 761

Her clam and elegant eyes welled up with tears.

Her lips parted slightly and, in a murmur, she cried out his name.

“Queen Mavice, does my appearance frighten you?” Duke picked up the mask from the coffee table and was about to put it back on...

Madam Winters’s Fight For Her Children Chapter 762

Chapter 762 Mavice’s hand pressed down on his arm. “No, I just thought you resemble someone...,” she said softly.

Duke pulled his arm away from her grip, avoiding Mavice’s touch.

“I’m sorry, I forgot myself.” Mavice looked away and lowered her head to take a sip of coffee.

She regained her composure.

The rest of their meeting went smoothly.

The two agreed on the venue of meeting, their course of action and how to perform the handover.

“I shall see you the day after tomorrow then, Queen Mavice.

Goodbye.” Duke bowed respectfully, put on his mask and left the opera house.

Mavice stood at the stairs, watching as his back slowly disappeared from the entrance, and tears suddenly pricked her eyes again.

It was shocking to think that the newly appointed Black Party leader’s face matched so strikingly with her late husband’s.

Even the scar on his face was the same.

When she was thirty years old, her husband had died protecting her.

Her husband’s face from so long ago had always stayed in her mind.

His and Terry’s faces

Chapter 762

gradually overlapped...

After leaving the opera house, Duke had Blake drive to the largest amusement park in Yggdra.

When he pushed open the car door, he saw a beautiful woman seated on the street bench, surrounded by four children, playing without a care in the world.

He took off the golden mask and wore a black mask.

He walked over to them.

“Wow, Daddy’s really here!” Harold was so happy he jumped for joy.

Adina looked over at him, the corners of her mouth raised into a gentle smile.

He had called her early in the morning to meet here.

She had been a little worried that he might not be able to make it.

She was happy that he could.

“Is everything settled now?” she asked.

Duke wrapped his arms around her slender waist.

“It has been dealt with.

The rest of my day belongs to you and the children.”

“Daddy, carry me!” Melody extended her two arms and clambered up to him.

Duke picked the little girl up and placed her on his shoulders.

Melody let out a happy laugh.

“Daddy, let’s go play in the amusement park!” Harold ES

A

ELEA ti

VRIENDINNEREN

IN

ran straight for the park.

George and Alden followed Harold toward the park.

The family of six appearing at the park had attracted the attention of several people.

“Sir, Madam, you look really happy.

Would you like to take a family photo as a keepsake?” A vendor who sold photographs came over to sell his service.

“Would you like to take a picture?” Adina asked.

“Yeah!” Melody nodded vigorously.

“This is my first time playing in another country with Daddy, Mommy and my brothers.”

“Alright, let’s take a picture then.” 1 Duke called to his three sons who ran ahead.

Adina and Duke sat on the bench, Melody and Harold on their knees, and George and Alden each sat on either side of their parents.