

Chapter 1414

This sort of feeling was hard to comprehend unless experienced firsthand.

Andrius was stunned. It seemed that Scott and Liliانا already knew Lance's identity.

Thus, he asked curiously, "You... knew?"

"Yeah...." Scott nodded sadly and said, "Actually, after he took us away, he told us the truth about the Jones family from a thousand years ago.

"The Jones family was once a prominent family with a glorious history. However, they were eventually buried in the dust of history and declined to their current state..."

Scott trailed off.

It seemed like Lance did not tell them about their enemies.

That was understandable. With their strength, even if they knew the identities of their enemies, it would only add to their troubles without them being able to get revenge.

"Elder Jones told me many things earlier." Andrius looked at the two grieving siblings and said slowly, "He asked me to help you two rebuild the Jones family and restore its former glory.

"I'll accept you two as disciples for now. When you have sufficient strength in the future, then we'll talk about everything else. What do you think?"

Disciples?

The Wolf King wanted to accept them as disciples?

"Master!"

"Master, please accept our respect!"

Scott and Liliana glanced at each other, overjoyed as they bowed before Andrius. Then, they performed the ceremony that finalized them as master and disciple.

Just Andrius' identity as the Wolf King attracted attention from wealthy noble families around the world. They naturally would not refuse.

"Rise." Andrius helped them up and said, "I have another disciple before you two, but that's a matter for another time. Now, let's bury Elder Jones first."

Andrius sighed softly as he spoke.

"Yes!"

Scott and Liliana were descendants of the Jones family, so they did not need Andrius to handle the burial arrangements.

After a while, they found a beautiful spot in the mountains where they buried Lance's body carefully and solemnly paid their respects.

After all that was done, Andrius walked over.

Andrius paid his respects and promised, "Elder Jones, I will do my best to fulfill your final wishes. Please rest in peace..."

With that, Andrius, Kate, and the Jones siblings descended the mountain together.

As they walked, Kate's phone suddenly vibrated. Her expression changed abruptly when she looked at the screen.

"Bad news! Something has happened in the ancient martial world!" Kate's tone carried a hint of fear.

Something happened?

Just as Andrius was about to ask, his phone vibrated as well. A string of strange symbols appeared on the screen. It was a number from the Lycantroops.

Andrius immediately answered it.

"Wolf King, there's a disturbance in southwest Murrfield. However, they've blocked all satellite signals. Murrfield is being restricted now. People can enter, but they can't leave. Currently, we don't know the specifics."

Murrfield.

The Insect Ruler!

Was he preparing to make a move?

A sharp glint flashed in Andrius' eyes.

"Got it."

After hanging up the phone, he said solemnly, "There's a disturbance in Murrfield. Let's head to the Southern Warzone first."

The Southern Warzone Headquarters was the closest and largest military command center to Murrfield.

If the Insect Ruler wanted to leave Murrfield, he could not avoid the Southern Warzone.

Similarly, if Andrius wanted to deal with the Insect Ruler, he could not avoid it either.
