

Chapter 1418

There was no trace of fear in his words. In fact, they even carried a tone of provocation!

"He's the Wolf King of Florence, and I'm the Southern Warzone Master!" Dax held out a badge to prove his identity.

The chubby man glanced at it and said indifferently, "Oh, my deepest apologies. Why have you come to my office today?"

There was not a trace of respect or fear in his words.

Andrius could not help but snort coldly. "You've been supplying water contaminated with insects to the Southern Warzone's refugee camp these few days. It's clear you have malicious intentions. Guards, arrest him."

As he spoke, the soldiers behind him prepared to step forward to handcuff Carl.

Unexpectedly, Carl shouted confidently, "Wait!"

The soldiers hesitated, unsure whether to continue.

"Words are not proof!" Carl said with a smirk, "Wolf King, if you claim that there are insects in the water I supplied, then you must provide evidence. Otherwise..."

He glanced at the soldiers on both sides and said arrogantly, "Wolf King, Warzone Master, if you arrest me without evidence, it would be an abuse of power! That's not permitted by Florence's laws.

"I believe that with your esteemed positions, you won't stoop to such actions. After all, you're both pillars of Florence, upright and beyond reproach. You must not set a bad example for others."

Andrius and Dax's expressions darkened simultaneously. Although Carl's words were sarcastic and mocking, it was true that arresting and convicting him on mere claims would not be reasonable.

Furthermore, because of Andrius' appearance, a crowd had gathered outside the company gates. Carl's people might have been among them...

If Andrius were to arrest Carl without evidence, it would not be long before headlines like "Shocking! The Wolf King of Florence Abuses his Power" and such spread throughout the nation.

However, procuring evidence would be troublesome. These insects, especially the evolved ones, could not be detected with current technological methods. How could Andrius get evidence?

"Oh, I forgot to mention just now." Carl saw Andrius and Dax at a loss and continued with a mocking smirk, "I've been out for meetings lately and only just returned. The supply of this batch of water was actually handled by him."

As he spoke, he pulled someone else over.

"He's just a temporary hire at our company, but drinking water safety is paramount. If what you say is true, Wolf King, then go ahead and arrest him for questioning!"

That statement shattered Andrius' last idea. Anyone with eyes could see that the person was just a scapegoat Carl pinpointed.

Seeing this, Andrius glanced at Carl coldly and walked out.

After leaving the company, Andrius commanded in a cold voice, "Dax, keep an eye on him. If anything unusual happens, arrest him first and ask questions later. I have a feeling that he might be an important piece to uncovering the whole picture."

Dax turned to look at the company and sneered. "No matter how wealthy an ordinary person is, they turn submissive when they see us. However, this man is clear-headed and well-prepared. There must be someone pulling his strings.

"Don't worry, Wolf King. I'll keep a close watch on him. I'll even find out whether he dribbles to the left or right every time he takes a piss."

Dax was genuinely infuriated.

"Good. I'll leave it to you." Andrius nodded and left.
