Chapter 1423

With his strength to rule the world of shamanism...

If he resurrected, just one call from him could change the situation in Florence and the world!

The world would change!

At that thought, Andrius' eyes could not help but widen.

Registus' astonishment was no less than Andrius'.

Seeing their reaction, Old Hagstorm paused and let them digest it for a moment, then continued, "After returning from the Obaro continent, Old Ophis and I followed the clues left by the Insect Ruler and traced him all the way to Murrfield, where we learned most of his plans.

"The Insect Ruler's plan is nearing its end. I estimate that in a month, the once renowned Demon Emperor will be reborn and reign over the world."

A month...

It was neither too long nor too short. It was not enough time to stabilize the situation in Florence.

Andrius and Registus exchanged a look, both feeling the urgency.

"Now..." Old Hagstorm's eyes flashed with a glint. "The Insect Ruler is only one step away, and it's the step he urgently needs to complete in this month."

Andrius quickly asked, "What is that step, Master?"

"War!" Old Hagstorm's eyes turned to Registus as he uttered the word.

"War?" Andrius frowned, not quite understanding.

Old Hagstorm continued to explain, "It is not easy to revive an existence like the Demon Emperor, who has already defied the heavens and earth.

"The Insect Ruler needs to start a war to gather a massive amount of resentment, cultivate enough insects, and finally resurrect the Demon Emperor."

Andrius was struck by a realization with that explanation. He finally understood.

It was no wonder the Insect Ruler had to collect so many corpses of powerful individuals. It was to refine them into insect soldiers as his most loyal killing machines to harvest lives and gather resentment.

Finally, he would launch a massive war to achieve his ultimate goal.

Having learned the Insect Ruler's plan, Andrius asked, "Master, if we were to take action against the Insect Ruler now, what are the chances of success?"

Old Hagstorm shook his head and said, "Zero."

Zero?

Did that mean they had no chance of success?

"Master! That can't be. How can we have zero chances?" Andrius immediately disagreed. "I've already broken through to the Martial Saint realm. Coupled with you, Old Ophis, and the Medicine Sect Master, we have a total of four Martial Saints.

"Although the Insect Ruler has Martial Saint insect soldiers under him, their agility and intelligence are far inferior to ours as normal people.

"As long as we join forces to kill the Insect Ruler, the remaining insect soldiers will collapse. In that case, how could our chances of success be zero?"

Faced with Andrius' serious analysis, Old Hagstorm only said one sentence in response, "The Demon Emperor alone is enough to wipe us all out."

Andrius was stunned.

The Demon Emperor alone was enough to wipe out all the Martial Saint experts?

"Don't doubt it." Old Hagstorm shook his head and said, "The Demon Emperor's strength is in a completely different realm. The gap between us and him is the disparity between lifeforms. It's a gap as wide as the heavens and the earth. It can't be bridged by numbers alone.

"It's just like how no matter how many babies there are, they can't possibly go against a Grandmaster. The two sides are simply not in the same dimension."

Andrius fell silent.

Previously, he only heard from Old Hagstorm that the Demon Emperor was extraordinary, but he never expected him to be this extraordinary.

What should they do?
