

The Wolf's Bride by Coffee's Tea Chapter 700 -

Chapter 700

The Second War God made a quick decision. "We need to head to the Rourke residence as fast as possible. I have a feeling that that Andrius is a fake! As long as we can confirm this, Andrius won't be able to escape suspicion!"

A wise light glimmered in the Second War God's eyes.

"That makes sense!"

"We mustn't delay. Let's go quickly!"

"Let's go!"

The group immediately hurried over to the Rourke manor.

Andrius brought the Black Hawk to a hidden location.

"Wolf King!"

A group of people had already been waiting here.

They were elite members of the Hawkeye Group, led by Harpy. They all greeted Andrius when they saw him.

The Black Hawk could not help but tremble. It turned out that during his absence, the Wolf King had already united the Hawkeye Group and become its new leader.

"Captain Black Hawk!"

"Captain, are you okay?"

"Captain, you're finally out!"

"Captain..."

The members were excited when they saw the Black Hawk at the back.

However, Andrius was the leader now, so the Black Hawk was naturally 'demoted' to captain.

"I'm fine."

The Black Hawk glanced over the familiar faces and felt like he had been gone for a lifetime. Then he looked at Andrius and said emotionally, "As expected of the Wolf King. You're the only one in Florence who would be able to win the hearts of the Hawkeye Group so quickly."

That was something the Black Hawk had confidence in.

The people he led would not change their allegiance easily—unless it was the Wolf King!

Andrius did not dwell on that matter.

Rescuing the Black Hawk was only half the plan.

Andrius said decisively, "Harpy, take the Black Hawk back to Sumeria immediately. Dax will arrange for your accommodation.

"During this period, try not to leave any traces that may attract the attention of the emperor, Baron, and the others. Do you understand?"

After all, he had blown up the Dragon's Dungeon.

If Baron found out about the Black Hawk's location, he might just send missiles over directly!

"Yes!"

Harpy and the other Hawkeye Group members also understood how serious the situation was, but he asked another question, "Wolf King, what about you?"

"I have more important things to do."

Andrius was prepared to leave with Noir and the Ghosts when he heard the Black Hawk's voice from behind, tinged with curiosity. "Wolf King, aren't you afraid I'll run away?"

“Run?” Andrius turned slightly and sneered. “The world isn’t big enough for someone I set my sights on to run away!”

Then, he left without looking back.

After taking a dozen steps, a faint voice sounded, “Besides, who else can protect you now besides me?”

The Black Hawk’s eyes widened as a bitter smile rose on his lips.

Indeed!

The Dragon’s Dungeon had been blown up.

He could only live in the shadows from now on.

Who would dare to shelter him besides the Wolf King?

No one!

The Black Hawk shook his head and instructed Harpy and the others, “Let’s go...”

However...

Being controlled by the Wolf King was not a disgrace!

Maybe he could still rise to greatness in the future.

Andrius brought Noir and the Ghosts and headed toward the Rourke residence.

Noir looked at his phone and said, “Andy, I just got news that says Baron, the Second War God, and the others went to the Dragon’s Dungeon but only stayed for around three minutes before leaving. They’re headed toward the Rourke manor now!”

Andrius frowned slightly as he felt a sense of urgency. “Don’t say anything else. Everyone, speed up. We need to arrive at the Rourke manor before Baron surrounds it.

“Otherwise, trouble will be waiting for us.”

