

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball

Chapter 1211 –

Chapter 1211 Go For It Together

Andrius took the kids to the restaurant and ordered them a bunch of food.

The little ones did not seem to have much of an appetite.

“Aren’t you guys hungry?”

Andrius looked at them, puzzled.

Estelle reached out and slowly scooped a mouthful of dessert.

It was not because she was not hungry. She just did not want to be with the mean lady.

She wondered why the mean lady was still in the hospital even after Daddy had already asked her to leave.

Lucian and Nox were also absent-minded.

They listened to this uncle because they wanted to let their mommy and daddy spend time together alone.

However, the little ones regretted it a little when they got out of the hospital.

Every time Daddy and Mommy were alone, things would get ugly.

The little ones were afraid it would be the same this time...

“You guys aren’t hungry, are you?” Andrius could see through the little ones’ thoughts and smiled as he asked.

The three little ones dropped their eyes guiltily and clenched their little hands on the edge of the table.

Andrius was confused upon looking at the little ones’ unison reaction.

He was unsure if it was his illusion or if the little ones looked identical when he looked at them from this angle. Even their reaction when they were feeling guilty was the same, which amazed Andrius.

Even though he knew that Rosalie had given birth to the three little ones, he always felt that the two little boys resembled the young Byron.

As that thought stuck in his mind, he felt it might be great if Rosalie and Byron could get back together.

His gaze grew gentler. 'Tell me, you want Mr. Byron to date your mommy, right?'

The little ones lowered their head and dared not speak.

Finally, Lucian lifted his head carefully and met Andrius' eyes. He spoke in his cute voice, "We do have this thought in mind. Mr. Byron is nice to US."

Andrius could not help wanting to tease the two little boys. "I can also be very nice to you. Look! I bought you delicious food."

The little ones froze upon hearing that.

Andrius was amused to see the little ones fall for his joke. He stoked their heads. "I'm just joking. Mr. Byron and I are best friends, and I won't snatch your mommy from him."

Only then did the little ones feel relieved.

"I happen to have the same thought as you guys. I want to see them get back together."

Andrius continued. "So, let's go for it together?"

The three little ones looked at each other and were surprised.

Nox was the most excited among them. He cheered softly. "Okay!"

Lucian and Estelle nodded after him.

Andrius smiled. 'Well, if you're worried about them, quickly eat something. Then, I'll send you back.'

The little ones smiled sweetly and then began to eat.

At the same time, Xander's car pulled over at the hospital door.

He got out of the car and looked at the message he had just received.

Then, he lifted his head to check on the hospital's name, ensuring he was at the correct place. Only then did he stride in.

Rosalie was his valued partner, and something happened under his watch.

Besides, Xander knew how severe the symptoms of gas poisoning could be.

After Byron took Rosalie away, Xander asked his men to investigate where they were.

Chapter 1212 How She Would Feel

It was obvious Byron was trying to avoid him.

Xander had investigated for a whole day, yet he found nothing.

Rosalie's phone had also been disconnected.

Just as Xander's worry grew, he received an anonymous message on his phone.

Even though Xander did not know who it was or whether the news was trustworthy, he drove an hour in the dark just to get there.

The incident happened under his nose, and he wanted to ensure Rosalie was all right.

Soon, the elevator stopped on the top floor of the hospital.

Xander walked out of the elevator with a cold expression on his face. He saw Luther the moment he got out.

"Where's Byron?"

Luther was startled. After greeting Xander politely, he said, "Young Master Xander, Master is in the ward with Miss Jacobs. Miss Jacobs is resting now. I can convey your words to her if you want to say something. Please don't disturb Miss Jacobs."

As Luther spoke, he blocked the ward door with his body.

Offended, Xander showed his displeasure on his face and insisted on entering. "Get out of the way. I'll go in and have a look."

Luther was in a difficult situation. "This is President Lawrence's order.

Young Master Xander, please don't make things difficult for me."

"Ask Byron to come out and see me, then!" Xander responded coldly.

Luther looked helpless.

Xander lifted his leg and wanted to cross Luther and enter the ward, but Luther stopped him again.

Soon, it turned into a physical confrontation.

Xander suppressed Luther, and Luther could not do anything about it.

However, his master had told him no one was to enter without his permission.

However, the person before him was of high status, and he did not dare to be harsh.

The only one who suffered, in the end, was himself.

After a moment of confrontation, Xander managed to pin Luther on the door.

Someone opened the door from inside when Xander was about to open it.

'What's the matter?'

Byron walked out slowly and looked at the person before him. He did not hide his disguise. "Xander, why are you here at such a late hour?"

He walked out of the ward, closed the door before Xander, and blocked it with his body.

Xander only let go of Luther when he saw Byron. He stared at the man before him straight in the eye. 'Where's Miss Jacobs? How is she?'

Byron said coldly, "She's much better now. You don't have to worry about her, Young Master Xander."

"I'll go in and take a look myself!" Xander was persistent.

Then, he wanted to barge in.

Just as he had taken one step, Luther already blocked him before Byron made a move.

This time, Luther did not act politely anymore with Byron's presence.

Xander looked at the two men before him and pondered for a moment. He knew he was not these two men's opponent and stopped rationally.

Luther also gradually let down his guard.

"I wonder how Miss Jacobs would feel if she knows I've come to see her but you're keeping me out."

Xander tried to negotiate.

Byron was unmoved. "She won't find out."

Xander's expression changed slightly.

Xander could see Byron was not just saying. He meant it.

"It wouldn't change anything even if she knows."

Byron continued sarcastically. "Don't forget, Young Master Xander, you're nothing more than a business partner to her. To her, visiting her so late at night is already crossing the borderline of your relationship with her."

Rosalie was a person with a sense of boundaries.

Even if Rosalie knew what had happened tonight, she would only think Byron had done her a favor by helping her stop Xander.

Byron was confident.

Xander's expression changed.

"I just want to go in and make sure she's okay. I also have something I want to ask her."

He wanted to make sure what was going on.

Byron seemed to have seen through his thoughts and said, "There are only three of us here now. Stop putting on an act, Young Master Xander."

Xander's forehead puckered slightly, and he looked at Byron in a puzzle. "What are you talking about?"

"I've asked someone to investigate it, and only three people joined this research."

Byron's voice was cold when he continued, "The other one has worked with Miss Jacobs for many years. I don't think he needs to do such a stupid thing. It can only be you!"

Xander was startled.

He did not expect that he had been worrying about Rosalie for a day, yet Byron was suspecting him of being the person who messed with the experiment.

“President Lawrence, you must have forgotten this is the Xander family’s major project. Why do I have to do this?” Xander thought it was ridiculous.

Byron frowned deeply.

He had thought about it too.

Xander had no reason to do it.

However, just like he just said, the conclusion was obvious.

Three people were involved in the experiment. The only possible culprit was Xander!

Xander could see that Byron was still suspecting him. He said coldly and calmly, “President Lawrence, even if you doubt me, you should prove it to accuse me. You can’t just accuse me based on a guess. It’s ridiculous!” 1

“I’ll prove it.” The atmosphere around them was tense.

Xander took a few deep breaths to calm himself down. “Before that, please get out of the way. I have the right to go in to visit my business partner!”

Byron did not budge. “Don’t ever think of visiting her before you can prove your innocence.”

After being suspected by Byron again, Xander lost his temper and wanted to start a fight.

Byron’s expression was cold too.

They were like beasts fighting for food, and the atmosphere was tense.

Luther stood by the side, tense. He was preparing to back Byron up at any time.

While the three men were on the verge of hitting each other, no one noticed that the elevator doors were slowly opening.

Andrius got out of the elevator with the three little ones.

“Byron...”

Andrius wanted to say he had completed his task when he happened to see this scene. It dumbfounded him.

The three little ones also froze. Then, they realized what was happening.

Estelle ran to her daddy on her short legs and stretched out her arms, wanting to protect Byron.

“Don’t bully Daddy!”

Luther and Andrius looked at each other and were shocked.

They doubted their ears. Someone was bullying Byron? Who could bully Byron?

Xander was also startled.

“Uncle Xander, have you come to visit Mommy?”

Lucian’s cute voice came from behind Xander.

Xander restrained his anger and looked back upon hearing the little one’s voice.

Lucian said, “It’s already so late. Mommy should have already slept. If you’re worried about her, Uncle Xander, it’s better if you come back tomorrow.”

Although Lucian said it politely, it could not hide his intention of asking Xander to leave.

Andrius supported Lucian. “Young Master Xander, I know you’re concerned about Miss Jacobs’ health. I understand your feelings, but it’s already a little late today. Why don’t you come back some other day?”

Xander frowned. Their words seemed reasonable, yet they felt wrong to him.

“I’m going back too. If you don’t mind, we can head downstairs together.”

Andrius placed his arm on Xander’s shoulder like they were friends and took Xander to the elevator. “My grandpa happened to mention visiting Grandpa Lancer. Let’s discuss when to set the time of the visit.”

Although Xander was reluctant, he could do nothing in front of the kids. Thus, he could only follow Andrius out.

Andrius winked at his best friend and pressed the elevator button naturally.

It was not until the elevator started going down that Xander realized what was wrong.

Each of them said it was getting late, but Byron still stayed in Rosalie's ward.

Who was Byron to have that privilege?

"Young Master Xander, as the saying goes, it's better to tear down ten temples than one marriage. Why do you have to make things difficult?"

Andrius looked at the man beside him meaningfully. "You're the heir of the Lancer family. I'm sure you know many great women. Why do you have to go for the woman Byron likes?"

Xander snapped out of his thought and glanced at Andrius coldly. "You know nothing."

Andrius lifted his eyebrows. "It's best if you don't have those intentions, Young Master Xander."

A sudden silence fell in the elevator.

They said nothing when they were on the ground floor and got into their respective cars.

Meanwhile, the others were still at Rosalie's ward door.

The three little ones let down their guard when they saw that Xander had left.

"Mr. Byron, can we go in and see Mommy?"

Lucian looked worried.

It was the first time they had ever seen their mommy so ill. Even though they had seen Rosalie regain consciousness, they still felt uneasy.

Byron was gentler when he spoke to the kids. "Go in. Your mother is resting. Keep your voice down so as not to wake her."

The little ones nodded sweetly, lined up, and walked carefully inside.

In the ward, Rosalie was deep asleep.

She looked just like when she was unconscious.

The little ones looked at her in fear of losing her again.

“Don’t be afraid. Your mommy just fell asleep. She’ll wake up in the morning.”

Byron knew what the little ones were thinking and comforted them before they asked.

The little ones stared at him for a while before reluctantly choosing to believe him.

“Goodnight, Mommy.”

Nox suddenly tiptoed and kissed Rosalie on her cheek.

Usually, when they went to bed, Mommy would give them a goodnight kiss.

This time, it was their turn to kiss their mommy.

Lucian also kissed her and said in a low voice, “Mommy, please wake up tomorrow morning!”

Estelle was the last in line. She wanted to do what her brothers did but backed away a little when she was by Rosalie’s side.

The little one looked hesitantly at the little boys.

Lucian and Nox looked at her and encouraged her.

Since they had encouraged her to do so, Estelle summoned her courage and gently pecked Rosalie’s cheek.

“Au...” The little girl paused and corrected what she wanted to say before whispering, “Goodnight, Mommy.”

Then, she looked longingly at her father to see his reaction.

It was the second time Byron had heard the little girl call Rosalie that.

His forehead puckered when he saw the timid look in the little one's eyes, but he could not bear to say anything to her.

Estelle's eyes lit up when her daddy did not ask her to change how she had addressed Rosalie. Then, she looked at the two little boys.

The little ones would have cheered if Rosalie were not asleep.

Byron was in a puzzle when he saw the joyous look on the little ones' faces. However, he did not ask. He only said, "It's getting late. Go back home and sleep early."

Since the little ones had seen that Rosalie was in good condition and experienced a surprising moment, they obediently nodded at Byron's words. Then, they followed Byron out of the ward.

After taking the three little ones into the next room, Byron watched them look into his eyes and something struck him.

He seemed to know what the little ones were so happy about.

"Daddy."

Estelle was the closest to Byron, and she tugged on his clothes. 1

Byron stopped and squatted. His eyes met the little one's readily. 1

Estelle tilted her head and asked carefully, "Daddy, are you back on good terms with Auntie?"

Then, the little one asked anxiously, "Just now, I called Auntie 'Mommy', and you said nothing about it!"

To the little one, it was her daddy agreeing with what she did.

Behind her, Lucian and Nox looked at Byron with hope.

Byron lifted his hand and stroked the little one's hair. "I can't do anything about it alone. We'll have to listen to Auntie's thoughts after she recovers."

The three little ones looked disappointed at Byron's vague answer.

Byron frowned upon seeing how disappointed the kids were, and he promised, "However, I'll take care of Auntie until she recovers. You don't have to worry. Just take care of yourselves."

It was a kind of promise to the kids that he would try to get back to his old relationship with Rosalie.

It was not the answer the little ones were looking for, but it was good enough.

The little ones nodded. "Okay!"

Byron stroked the little ones' head one after another and said, "Sleep early.

I'm going to take care of Auntie."

Then, he got up and left when the kids nodded.

The children's faces looked expectant as the ward door closed.

"In the meantime, we must persuade Mommy to forgive Mr. Byron quickly!"

Nox clenched his fist, looking determined.

Lucian also nodded.

After this incident, the children were even more sure that Daddy liked Mommy.

It was just that Mommy did not seem to see it yet, so they had to work harder to make sure she would!

Then, Lucian and Nox looked at Estelle, waiting for her to express her thought.

Estelle's eyes were bright as she nodded hard. "I'll watch Daddy and not let him make Auntie angry!"

The three little ones smiled at each other.

Since it was getting late, they climbed into their beds and slept.

Just as Lucian and Nox dozed off, they heard Estelle crying.

"Mommy..."

The little ones quickly got up and rushed to Estelle's bed, "Estie, what happened to you?"

Estelle looked at the little boys in a daze with tears smudged on her face.

Chapter 1216 Become One Family

Estelle saw her two brothers when she opened her eyes, and her cheeks flushed red.

“Did you dream about your mommy? What happened to her?”

Lucian grabbed Estelle’s and asked her slowly.

The little one drooped her eyes guiltily. “I dreamed... of Auntie.”

Lucian and Nox looked puzzled. “But you called out to your mommy?” Estelle looked at Lucian and Nox timidly and did not answer.

She did not know what was going on either, but after she met Rosalie, the mommy in her dreams had a face.

She also felt that the mommy in her dreams was warmer.

It was different now that Rosalie was ill.

Like this time, she dreamed of Rosalie being unconscious.

In the dream, no matter what she said, Rosalie kept her eyes closed and ignored her, making the girl scared.

Lucian and Nox did not get an answer from Estelle, but they could guess the reason from her expression.

“Estie, you’ve taken our mommy as yours too, right?”

Nox asked in his cute voice.

Estelle hesitated and nodded. Then, she looked at the little boys carefully and asked, “Lucian and Nox, are you angry about it?”

Lucian and Nox looked at each other, puzzled. “Why should we be angry?” “Because... I’m snatching your mommy’s love,” Estelle said as she sobbed. The little ones were surprised when they heard this.

They never knew that Estelle thought so!

Lucian's grip on Estelle's hand tightened. "We're not angry. Would you be angry about US snatching away your daddy?"

Estelle pursed her lips and shook her head anxiously.

She would never be angry that Lucian, Nox, and she were going to become one family.

Lucian took a piece of tissue and wiped the little one's tears. "If you're not angry, we certainly aren't angry!"

Nox said, "When we're by ourselves next time, let's call them Mommy and Daddy! They're not Mr. Byron or Auntie. They're our daddy and mommy!"

Lucian and Nox immediately nodded.

Estelle had tears shimmering in her eyes, yet she was grinning, making her look a little funny.

Lucian and Nox laughed when they saw Estelle like that.

Byron knew nothing of what was going on next door, much less that the three little ones had become one family.

"Water..."

Rosalie had been unconscious all day. Although they gave her stabilizers, she could not sleep for long. Rosalie began to wake up after the kids kissed her just now.

Byron had been tired all day and was already sleepy. However, he woke up at once and went to pour her a glass of water when he heard her voice.

Rosalie tried to get up to take it. However, Byron had already put the rim of the glass by her lips and held her in his arms.

Rosalie was still drowsy and subconsciously felt that Byron's arms were secure. She leaned in his arms and drank a few sips of water. Then, she pushed the glass slightly when she had drunk enough.

Byron knew what she meant and placed the glass aside. Then, he put Rosalie back down on the bed.

Soon, Rosalie fell asleep again.

Fearing she would wake up again, Byron hesitated for a moment. He held her hand outside the blanket and slept by the bed.

When Byron woke up the following day, Rosalie had already woken up and was taking the acupuncture needles off her body.

Byron looked at his empty hand and the woman before him as he asked in his horse voice, "When did you wake up? Why didn't you wake me?"

Rosalie was focusing on taking off the acupuncture needles. She knew he was awake when she heard his voice. After hesitating for a moment, she continued doing what she was doing as she answered.

'You were fast asleep, and I was fine, so I didn't call you.'

She did not even look at Byron when she spoke.

Rosalie felt as though she was in a dream when she saw Byron's hand holding hers as he lay by the bed when she woke up that morning.

The memory of her waking up in a daze last night struck her.

It was not a dream. Byron had taken care of her day and night.

Rosalie could not describe her feelings when she realized this.

She did not have the heart to wake Byron up when she saw how tired he looked. Hence, she pulled out her hand cautiously.

Byron, apparently exhausted, did not notice her movement and was still sleeping.

While Byron was still asleep, Rosalie checked her body condition and did a simple acupuncture treatment on herself.

She did not expect Byron to wake up while she was taking out the needles.

Rosalie's mind was a mess when she heard his voice.

'What are you doing?'

Byron pressed his temples and sat upright gradually. His forehead puckered when he saw her movement.

Rosalie looked calmly at the silver needle on the acupoint and pulled it out. "I examined myself and felt acupuncture could help me with detoxing."

Byron looked at Rosalie deeply as he asked, "You're doing it yourself?"

Rosalie was startled to hear his words of concern. Then, she smiled and turned around. "It's not a very complicated procedure. I can do it myself. Don't worry, President Lawrence."

As she spoke, his face sank.

Rosalie was calling him 'President Lawrence' again.

He took care of her all night, yet she still distanced herself from him.

Byron was a little angry, but he suppressed his anger when he recalled that Rosalie was still ill.

For a moment, the ward was silent.

Rosalie noticed Byron's mood swing and was confused. However, she did not dare to ask and silently took out the acupuncture needles.

It was long before Byron spoke again, "How do you feel?"

He thought it was because Rosalie felt uncomfortable that she performed acupuncture on herself.

Rosalie did not know what he was thinking and answered calmly, "I'm much better now, and the remaining toxins have dispersed out of my body."

Suddenly, something struck Rosalie, and her gaze on Byron changed.

Byron noticed her gaze, and he frowned. "Yes?"

Rosalie felt guilty looking at him like that and pretended to be calm as she said, "Nothing. I'm just a little worried about the kids. How are they?"

She remembered Byron had brought all the kids to the ward last night.

The little ones must have been very worried when they knew she was so ill.

Rosalie vaguely remembered that last night before going to bed, she seemed to hear the voices of the little ones.

She even heard a cute voice that sounded like her deceased daughter in her dream...

Chapter 1218 Worried 'They're next door,' Byron said in a deep voice. "Now that you're awake, I'll let them come and look. Then, Luther will take them home."

Rosalie also did not want to keep the little ones in the hospital for a long time. She agreed without hesitation.

However, Byron did not do anything after saying so.

Rosalie was nervous as she recalled how Byron had cared for her the day before.

She had thought Byron would go and call the little ones right away. Then, she could take the time to calm down.

However, she did not know what to say when she saw Byron not planning on moving.

"Put the needles away."

Byron's voice sounded as he looked at the acupuncture needles she placed by the bedside.

Rosalie was startled for a moment.

Byron's gaze fell on her face, and he said gently, 'The kids will be scared to see those.'

Rosalie explained subconsciously, "It's alright. Lucian and Nox are used to them."

Sometimes, the little ones would help her disinfect and organize the acupuncture needles.

The silver needles used for acupuncture in their home were no different from the cutlery used for eating.

Byron's gaze turned gloomy. "Estie will be afraid. Your condition has already scared them yesterday."

Rosalie was startled. She had almost forgotten Estelle was also here.

Byron's face sank, and Rosalie drooped her eyes as she apologized, "I'm sorry. I forgot."

Byron frowned. "I didn't mean that. You don't have to apologize to me."

He just wanted to remind Rosalie that the children feared something might happen to her yesterday and that the needles might worry them.

However, Rosalie had apparently misunderstood him...

Byron felt his temples bulging in pain.

He had always been a man of action and was not much of a talker. He did not even know how to explain it now.

Rosalie rolled up the bag of needles and carefully placed it in the drawer. Then, she looked at Byron and said, "Okay. I've kept it. You can call them over now."

Byron glanced at her and gave up explaining. He got up and went to the room next door.

Rosalie was relieved to hear the ward door closing, and she heaved a sigh of relief. She took the opportunity to clear the mess in her mind.

Although she did not want to admit it, she did rely on Byron when she was in great pain last night. Rosalie did not think she would have been able to fall asleep again if Byron had not held her hand.

Byron must have seen her in pain, yet he stayed by her side and supported her.

His actions moved Rosalie.

When she was giving herself acupuncture, she hesitated to ask for clarification.

However, when Byron woke up, she flinched and did not even dare look at him.

She was afraid it was only her thinking too much...

However, she could never hide from Byron again like before after what happened yesterday.

Rosalie's mind was a mess when she thought of the situation she would face in the future.

There was a sudden knock at the door.

Before she knew it, the three little ones had rushed in and ran to the bedside, staring at her with three pairs of bright eyes.

Byron followed behind the little ones slowly and spoke to Rosalie in his deep voice, 'They were worried about you and woke up early.'

Rosalie comforted the little ones by stroking their heads.

"Mommy, how are you feeling? Do you feel any discomfort?"

Lucian and Nox looked at her, worried.

Through the eyes of the little ones, Rosalie could see her pale face.

She could understand why the little ones were worried.

Rosalie apologized. "I'm fine. Sorry for scaring you last night."

"Mommy, you already said sorry yesterday!"

"Mommy, you don't need to apologize to US. Just get better!"

Rosalie smiled.

"Estie is worried about you, Mommy. She dreamed of you and cried in her sleep."

Nox saw Estelle hiding behind them. He suddenly backed away to let Rosalie see her.

Estelle had her head lowered and glanced at Rosalie secretly.

She remembered that the last time she asked Rosalie if she could call her 'Mommy', Rosalie had rejected her without hesitation.

However, she had called Rosalie 'Mommy' quite a few times when she was unconscious.

The little one was afraid Rosalie would be angry if she recalled it.

Rosalie saw Estelle being a little afraid and felt sorry for her. She hugged Estelle.

“Mom-“

Estelle almost called Rosalie ‘Mommy’ again, maybe because she was thinking about what happened a day ago. However, she quickly changed her words. “Auntie.”

Rosalie heard the word Estelle was about to say and was nervous. She was relieved only when Estelle did not say it. She smiled and caressed the little one’s head. “I’m sorry. I promised to visit you in kindergarten, but I didn’t go. Did you wait for me for very long?”

Estelle pouted her lips and wanted to nod her head. However, she saw Rosalie’s pale face and shook her head instead. “It’s the same even if I come to visit you!”

Then, the little one drooped her eyes and said, “It’d be better if you weren’t ill.”

Rosalie’s heart melted upon hearing the little one’s words. “It’s my fault for being careless and making you guys worry.”

Estelle shook her head again.

Rosalie talked to the little ones for a while.

Lucian suddenly approached Byron.

Then, the other two followed.

Rosalie was puzzled.

“Thank you, Mr. Byron,” Lucian thanked Byron sincerely. “Yesterday, you took care of Mommy, and that’s why Mommy got better so soon.”

Nox also thanked Byron.

The two little ones did not forget to express their deepest gratitude by bowing.

Byron looked at the little ones and then back at Rosalie. Then, he said meaningfully, “You’re welcome. I promised you that I would take good care of your mommy.”

Rosalie subconsciously looked over upon hearing that.

Byron’s words sounded like a commitment. Anyone who heard it would think they were a married couple.

In fact, Byron only cared for her when she was ill.

Why did he make it sound so ambiguous?

Rosalie was both touched and afraid.

When did Byron promise the little ones something like that?

What else did they talk about while she was unconscious?

Chapter 1220 Suppressed It

When Rosalie's mind drifted away, Byron said something to the little ones, and they bid farewell to her. 1

"Mommy, now that you're okay, we'll go back home first. You should have a good rest. We'll wait for you at home."

Nox was smiling.

Rosalie was puzzled when she saw the smile on the little one's face.

The little ones had always wanted to be with her 24 hours a day. This time, instead of being with her, they took the initiative to say goodbye.

Nox asked in his cute voice, "Mommy, why don't you let Estie come with us? She'll be scared alone!"

Rosalie snapped out of her thoughts and subconsciously looked at Byron. She hesitated before nodding. "You guys take care of her, then."

Yesterday, the little ones were terrified. Estelle was always insecure and really needed to be with Lucian and Nox.

The children nodded vigorously. "We'll go back home, then!"

With that, they waved to Rosalie and ran to the ward door.

Turning around, the little ones had smiles on their faces.

Andrius had told them they had to give their daddy and mommy space to get along.

Although they were still worried about Mommy, they believed Daddy could take care of her!

Rosalie's forehead furrowed upon seeing them leaving, and she wanted to call them back.

She did not know how to get along with Byron...

However, before she could speak, Byron said, "I'll ask Luther to take them back. Luther will stay with them and take care of them."

Rosalie could say nothing more since they had already arranged everything. She could only nod her head.

"I'll go down and see them off," Byron looked at her deeply before he walked out.

Rosalie was alone in the hospital ward.

She could guess Byron left because he saw her distress and wanted to give her some time to prepare.

Well, that was the best part of him.

Rosalie looked out through the window and tried hard to calm herself down.

She did not know Byron's thoughts, but after what happened yesterday, she could be sure that Byron was nice to her. It was not because of his competitive relationship with Xander.

Perhaps he was sincere.

It was impossible for her to say the care she received all night did not touch her.

However, there were too many unexplained things.

Rosalie decided it was better to let their relationship go with the flow than to overthink it.

With this thought, Rosalie gradually calmed down.

She had just figured out how to confront Byron when there was a noise at the ward door.

Moments later, Byron came in through the door.

“Have they left?” Rosalie was stunned for a moment and smiled naturally.

Byron looked at her steadily upon seeing her expression and nodded.” Luther will take good care of them. Don’t worry.”

“I know. Thank you for taking care of them and me last night.”

Her words sounded natural without distance or awkwardness.

Aware of her changes, Byron was shocked, and his emotions surged. However, he suppressed it.
