My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1433– Don't Break Grandma's Heart

Rosalie was moved upon hearing Nox's sincere words.

She was beginning to want to date Byron again.

Since Byron had already announced their relationship, they could get back together if she told him the two boys were his children. Her kids would also have a happy and complete family...

"Mommy, what are you guys talking about?"

Estelle had been ignored by three of them for a while and was a little unhappy about it.

Rosalie snapped out of her thoughts upon hearing the little's girl's voice.

She hugged her and said, "Do you want to live with Daddy and Mommy?"

It sounded like Rosalie was going to agree with Byron's proposal.

The three little ones' eyes lit up at once.

Lucian and Nox looked longingly at their sister.

Estelle nodded her head vigorously and replied in a whisper, "Yes! Estie wants to stay with Mommy and Daddy!"

Getting the response from Estelle, Rosalie was moved and decided. "We..."

She was about to say that they would live together from now on.

Suddenly, the doorbell of the villa rang.

Perhaps because of the announcement she had read, Rosalie thought it was Byron.

That man would surely take credit for his actions of protecting her.

With that thought in mind, she got up to get the door with a complicated expression on her face.

She had decided that if Byron were at the door, she would confess to him about the two little boys' identities and accept his proposal. 1

Rosalie was a little nervous when she opened the door when she thought of what she was about to tell Byron.

However, Rosalie's smile froze upon seeing the person at the door.

All her thoughts were gone, replaced by annoyance.

Before she could adjust her expression, the person at the door broke the silence.

"Miss Jacobs, aren't you going to invite me in?"

Melody stood at the door coldly and looked at her with disdain and pride.

Rosalie snapped out of her shock and remained silent for a few seconds. Her brows were furrowed as she made way for Melody to enter the house.

Melody did not say anything and walked in. When she saw the three little ones by the sofa, she glared at Lucian and Nox with disdain and held her hand out to Estelle.

"Estie, come to Grandma."

The little girl hid silently behind her brothers.

Lucian's and Nox's moods were down when they saw the glare Melody shot them.

Although Daddy had acknowledged them as his sons, their grandmother still disliked them and even despised their existence...

Rosalie followed her in. When she saw Melody's attitude toward her sons, she was displeased. "Mrs. Lawrence, you can talk to me if you need anything."

Then, she told the little ones, "Lucian, Nox, take your sister upstairs."

The little boys nodded obediently and turned around to head upstairs.

Melody's voice sounded from behind them, stopping them. "Wait!"

She peered at Rosalie coldly. "I have nothing to talk to you about. Today, I came here to take my granddaughter home!"

Then, she increased her volume and ordered Estelle, "Estie, come here. I'm here to pick you up so late at night. Don't break Grandma's heart!"

Estelle stopped walking upstairs and looked at her mommy and her angry grandmother. Then, she silently approached Rosalie, grabbing her shirt.

Rosalie grabbed the girl's hand to appease her and regretted letting Melody come in.

Melody wanted to avoid looking for trouble.

However, she did not expect her son to release such an important announcement online. She only knew about it after having her dinner.

She was so mad that she lost her appetite and rushed to Rosalie's house without finishing her meal.

Only one thing crossed her mind. She had to make her son and granddaughter stay away from the Jacobs woman soon!

Seeing Estelle being so close to Rosalie made her anger boil.

"Rosalie, give me back my granddaughter."

She pointed at Rosalie coldly as if Rosalie had stolen her granddaughter.

Sensing the little girl's nervousness, Rosalie squeezed her hand and looked straight into Melody's eyes.

If it were in the past, Rosalie might not know how to respond when Melody said that to her.

However, she was now Estelle's mommy and had all the right in the world to keep Estelle by her side. Thus, she was not afraid to face Melody anymore.

"Estie is my daughter, and we haven't seen each other for years. It's understandable for her to stay with me. Mrs. Lawrence, what do you mean by saying that?"

She looked at the woman in neither a servile nor overbearing manner as she retorted without the slightest intention of letting go.

Melody grew angrier and shouted, "You know that you're Estelle's mother? Why didn't you come back for her for so many years, then? We were the ones who raised her, yet you came and snatched her from the Lawrence family by claiming you're her mother. Have you considered our feelings?"

She said that as though she cared about Estelle.

Rosalie felt guilty for what happened and looked at the little girl apologetically.

Aware of her gaze, Estelle lifted her head and smiled at her mommy. She only cared about her mommy and would not blame her mommy for what happened.

Estelle's smile gave Rosalie confidence, and she looked into Melody's eyes as she said, "That's why I want to accompany her more now, to make it up to her for the years we missed."

Melody's hostility grew stronger.

Rosalie was calm as she said, "If it's just like what you said and you brought up Estie, your relationship with her won't be affected even if she were to stay by my side for a long time. You can rest assured." "If you don't want me to worry, give Estie back! Don't think you can marry Byron again just because you're Estie's mother!"

Melody's face was ashen, and she wanted to snatch Estelle.

Rosalie grabbed Estelle and dodged Melody's attack. Protecting Estelle behind her, she said coldly, "If that's the case, why don't we ask for Estie's opinion?"

She looked back at the little one behind her. "Do you want to go back with your grandmother, Estie?"

Naturally, the little girl shook her head without hesitation.

After finally being with Mommy, she did not want to be separated from her!

Seeing her granddaughter rejecting her without hesitation, Melody was pissed off. "Who knows if you've said anything to her?"

After saying that, Melody glanced at the little boys and questioned Rosalie, "What if Estie turns out like these illegitimate brats of yours after staying by your side for long?"

Hearing Melody insulting Lucian and Nox made Rosalie's anger flare. She was no longer polite and warned Melody, "Please be nice to the kids.

They've grown up and understand every word you say."

Melody looked at Rosalie and felt that Rosalie was different from before.

She seemed to be... more confident and sharper with her words.

Realizing this, Melody was displeased. "Don't ever think that with the announcement Byron made online today, you'll be Mrs. Lawrence soon. How dare you speak to me like this?!"

Rosalie was not afraid at all. "I've never taken myself as Mrs. Lawrence. All I've been doing is trying to talk some sense into you. If you think what I'm telling you is unbearable, why don't you think of what you just said?"

She had been speaking politely, but each of her words stabbed into Melody's weak points.

Melody's face was ashen, and she looked at Lucian and Nox.

The two little ones looked at her with hostility.

Although they hoped their grandmother would accept them, the little boys were unhappy to hear her condemning them.

Moreover, Melody was bullying their mommy, and they could never smile at her in such a situation.

Anger flared in her when Melody looked into the boys' eyes. "What did I say wrong? I can't understand what's wrong with Byron. How could he say these two are his?"

Upon hearing her still condemning them, Lucian and Nox almost pounced on Melody with their baring teeth.

Melody disliked them even more. "How could the Lawrence family have such ill-bred children?! I don't know which idiotic man you conceived them with, but don't ever think about getting the title of the young masters of the Lawrence family. It'll only happen in your dream." "Mrs. Lawrence!" Rosalie did not care about etiquette anymore. "Estie, Lucian, and Nox are all my children. Even without the Lawrence family's help, I can provide them with a good life. We'll never spend any dime from the Lawrence family. You don't have to worry about that!"

Melody looked at her in disdain. "Are you sure?"

Before Rosalie could retort, Nox said, "We don't need Mr. Byron's money. If we need any money, we can earn it ourselves."

Melody reacted like she had heard a hilarious joke.

Two kindergarten kids even had the audacity to say they could make money themselves!

To her, they were lying to get her to recognize them as part of the Lawrence family.

She was too lazy to waste more words with the mother and sons. "Now that you say that, I'll take that you've agreed to stand alone. I'd better not hear that you want to live with Byron because of Estie!"

She meant they would use Estelle as an excuse to get into Lawrence Manor.

Rosalie suppressed her smoldering anger so that she would not hit Melody. "I've never thought of that! Please stop accusing my children of what they haven't done. If you don't wish to have a proper conversation today, please leave! We don't welcome people who can't speak with brains here."

Melody snorted. "I didn't come to have a conversation with you anyway. I can leave, but I have to take Estie with me!"

Estelle looked at the tense atmosphere. She was anxious and afraid. When she heard what Melody said, her face flushed red, and she sobbed as she shouted, "No! Estie wants to be with Mommy!"

Melody was not happy to hear that. "You'll have a better mommy in the future!"

The little girl kept shaking her head. "No! Estie only wants Mommy!"

Rosalie embraced Estelle and said to Melody, "If you want to take Estie with you, please call Byron and ask for his permission. If he agrees to let you take her, I won't stop you or say another word."
