My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1463– Looks Like A Fractured Bone

The next game required them to hop on one leg. All the kids went to the equipment room to get their sneakers.

Nox put on his shoes, but it felt strange when he walked. However, he did not think much about it. He thought it was because he had not worn his sneakers for a long time and was not used to them.

Moreover, Lucian and Estelle were urging him to hurry up. Thus, the little boy ignored the strange feeling the sneakers gave him. He smiled and followed them to the open space.

Jumping on one foot was an individual event, and Nox was at the end of the line.

After Lucian and Estelle completed their turn, they watched Nox from aside.

“Everybody, be careful. Safety first.”

Miss Leigh Ann reminded the kids from aside.

Lucille stood nearby as if ready to protect the little ones.

The three kids did well in the first few events.

When it was Nox’s turn to jump, the kids surrounded him and cheered.

It sparked Nox’s competitive nature, and he jumped with all his might.

Listening to the cheers of the children, Nox hopped faster and faster. The shoes felt strange as he increased his speed.

When the little boy finally realized something was wrong, he could not stop.

“Nox!”

Lucian was the first one to notice something strange and rushed toward Nox.

Nox tried hard to stop.

However, the harder he tried, the more he wobbled.

Finally, he fell face down.

Before him was the pole they were supposed to jump across.

Only a cracking sound was heard.

The pole broke under Nox, and Nox whimpered in pain. His wounded hand supported him from falling to the ground and was in a strange position. A piercing pain came from his arm.

The next second, the always strong little boy was crying in pain.

“What’s wrong, Nox? Tell me which part of you hurts!”

Lucille was the closest to the kid, and she dashed to Nox before everyone did. Carrying Nox with one hand, she used her other hand to wipe off the grease on the ground.

Lucian also came and knelt by his brother’s side. He noticed his injured hand at once. ‘Teacher, Nox’s arm seemed to be wounded.’ 1

They grew up in a research institute. Although they were not proficient in medical skills, they knew some basics.

In addition, his brother rarely cried like this. Lucian knew that he must be badly injured.

“Ms. Crane, let’s get Nox a doctor quickly. He’s in pain!”

Lucille agreed, but she did not hurry. “Don’t worry. I’ll take Nox to the school doctor immediately.”

As she spoke, she slowly removed Nox’s shoes and placed them somewhere unnoticeable before the other teachers approached them. Only then did she take Nox to the infirmary.

The little one cried at the top of his lungs.

It was the first time Estelle saw Nox crying like this, and she felt sorry for him. She anxiously grabbed Lucian’s hand. “Is Nox badly injured? I think... Nox... Estie is afraid...”

As she spoke, her eyes turned red. “Let’s call Mommy and ask her to come quickly. Mommy’s medical skills are good, and she can cure Nox!”

Lucian was also anxious but appeased Estelle and said, “Don’t worry, the teacher is taking him to the doctor. If it’s serious, we’ll call Mommy.”

Mommy is busy at work, and it's better not to disturb her."

Estelle was still anxious but felt better after Lucian comforted her. She calmed down and said nothing more as she nervously grabbed Lucian's shirt.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1464– Mommy Will Be There Soon

The principal, Miss Leigh Ann, and Lucille accompanied Nox to the infirmary while other teachers looked after the other kids.

Nox was crying so loud that it tensed up the infirmary's atmosphere.

"How is his injury, doctor?"

The principal asked anxiously after the doctor examined Nox.

It would be fine if it were before this. However, Nox was the young master of the Lawrence family. If anything happened to him in the kindergarten, the principal was afraid he could not face Byron.

Lucian and Nox also looked at the doctor seriously and anxiously.

The doctor took the first aid kit and cleaned Nox's wound. "It's easy to deal with the wounded part. However, I suspect he strained his ligament and bruised his cartilage. Please send him to the hospital to get a thorough check-up."

The principal almost fainted upon hearing that.

Lucian's expression was gloomy, and he took Estelle out of the infirmary and called their mommy.

Since they had to take Nox to the hospital, it meant Nox's injury was severe.

Rosalie was working on a new medicine in her lab when she saw her phone screen light up. She did not have time to answer, i

"Dr. Jacobs, it's a call from Lucian."

Someone reminded her to take a look.

Rosalie stopped her research and answered the call.

Once the call went through, the little boy spoke before she could say anything, “Mommy, Nox is injured, and they seem to be taking him to the hospital. Do you have time to come over now?”

Rosalie was startled to hear that Nox was injured.

Lucian calmly spoke in an organized way, “If you’re too busy, I’ll ask Mr. Byron to come.”

“No! Wait. Mommy will be there soon.”

Rosalie snapped out of her shocked state and asked, “Is your teacher nearby? Can you please pass your smartwatch to your teacher? Mommy wants to have a word with her.”

Lucian was much relieved to hear Rosalie was coming. He handed his smartwatch obediently to Miss Leigh Ann.

Rosalie asked them the hospital they were sending Nox to and hung up the call. Then, after informing Linda, she left the research institute in a hurry.

It was not that she did not want Byron to go on her behalf. It was just that she was a doctor herself and could be of some help.

If she went there, it would be more helpful than Byron going.

Meanwhile, Miss Leigh Ann and the principal arranged transport to send Nox from the infirmary to the hospital.

Lucille pretended to be concerned and asked, “Do we all have to go? What about the rest of the kids? Why don’t I ask the other teachers to take over?”

Miss Leigh Ann answered without hesitation, “It’s alright. I’ll accompany Nox. You stay back and look after the rest of the kids.”

The principal would not let Miss Leigh Ann go by herself. “I’ll go to the hospital with Miss Leigh Ann. You can go back to the field first.”

Lucille hypocritically spoke a few words of concern before leaving.

When she was back on the field, the other kids continued the competition under the lead of the other teachers.

Lucille took advantage of the busy moment and took out Nox's sneakers she had just hidden. After wiping off the grease on them, she put them back beside the other kids' shoes.

After destroying the evidence, she returned to her students with a kind smile.

The little ones immediately surrounded her and asked about Nox's injury. Lucille was delighted deep down, but she looked worried on the surface.

"I'm not sure, but you guys have to be more careful. Don't get injured like Nox did." i

The children nodded obediently.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1465—I Am A Doctor Myself

Rosalie was on her way to the hospital, and panic fluttered in her stomach. She stepped on the accelerator all the way there and almost broke the traffic rules.

Although Lucian and Nox had been independent since they were infants, it was the first time Nox got injured.

Rosalie was worried thinking about it.

She parked the car and strode into the hospital when she arrived.

Miss Leigh Ann was kind enough to send her a message about the building and department they were in when she arrived at the hospital with Nox.

Rosalie did not spend much time getting over to them.

"Mommy!"

Lucian could hold back no more when he saw his mommy. He grabbed his mommy so hard that Rosalie felt pain.

Estelle was also grabbing her shirt.

Rosalie comforted the little ones by touching their heads. Then, she looked at Miss Leigh Ann. "Miss Leigh Ann, how is Nox now?"

Miss Leigh Ann apologized. "We aren't sure about his condition now. The doctor in our infirmary said it might be a bruised cartilage and a strained ligament. Nox is in the X-ray room now." 1

Rosalie felt sorry for her son upon hearing that.

"Miss Jacobs, I'm sorry about Nox getting injured. We should've paid closer attention to the kids."

The principal quickly apologized to Rosalie, "Originally, we wanted to let the children build up their relationship with their peers by organizing a sports day. We didn't expect this to happen. However, we promise we'll never let the kids do dangerous sports anymore."

Rosalie looked at her two other kids to get confirmation of what the principal said.

After what happened with Wendy drugging the kids, she had always been a little more concerned about the little ones.

Estelle's eyes were red, and she was too anxious to speak.

Lucian was considered calm, and he nodded. "We were hopping on one leg. Nox was behind us, and we're not sure why he fell."

Rosalie was only relieved after Lucian confirmed what the principal told her. Then, she said to the principal, "Don't blame yourself. It's normal for kids to get hurt during sports. It's fine as long as the injury isn't serious."

Nox came out with the doctor holding his hand.

At the sight of his mommy, the little boy's tears rolled down uncontrollably again. He threw himself into his mommy's embrace in grief.

"Boo-hoo... Mommy, it hurts!"

Rosalie observed the little one's wounded hand.

There was only a blood-stained scratch from the wrist to the palm. It was swollen.

Nox held his wrist stiffly. She was unsure if it was because of the pain.

"Don't be afraid. Mommy's here. The pain will be gone soon, sweetheart."

Then, she carried the little boy and approached the doctor. "Doctor, how is Nox's injury? Can I take a look at the X-ray film?"

The doctor, of course, would not refuse. He handed her the X-ray film and explained, "The injury is on the tissue. However, children's pain tolerance level is not as good as adults, and it'll hurt for quite some time."

Rosalie observed the X-ray and frowned.

The injury was so severe that she could imagine how suddenly Nox fell.

Since she was a doctor herself, she had taught them what to do to prevent serious injuries.

Nox must have not remembered because the fall was too sudden.

She suspected it was not that simple.

"I recommend that the kid stays in the ward for a few days and then be discharged if he recovers well."

The doctor's words lingered in Nox's ears.

"I don't want to stay in the ward," Nox whimpered as he refused.

Rosalie appeased the little boy and rejected the doctor's suggestion. "It's okay. I'm a doctor myself, and I can take care of him. Thank you for everything, doctor."

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1466– How Could It Be Such A Coincidence

After Rosalie got the doctor's permission, she took the little ones back home.

On the other hand, after school was over, Benedict and Melody waited at the kindergarten gate early, but they did not see Estie.

They waited and waited, watching all the children in the kindergarten get picked up. However, Estie was nowhere to be seen.

The two wanted to ask the teacher what was going on but belatedly remembered that they rarely came to send Estie to and from school. They did not even know which class the little girl was in.

"Estie is nowhere to be seen, yet she said she'll let us pick Estie up..." Melody was very dissatisfied.

Benedict did not look great either, so he called Byron and asked, "Did you inform Rosalie? We're at the gate of the kindergarten now. Where's Estie?"

When Byron heard this, suspicion flashed across his eyes. "Wait a minute. I'll call Rosalie. She agreed yesterday. Something must have happened."

Benedict did not answer.

Byron hung up the phone and called Rosalie directly.

Rosalie was busy helping Nox treat his wound. The phone rang for a while before she had time to answer it.

"Where is Estie?" Byron's voice sounded from the other end. "Is something wrong?"

Suddenly, Rosalie remembered that Estie was supposed to go back with Benedict and his wife this afternoon!

She lowered her eyes to look at Estie and said apologetically, "Something happened today, so I brought Estie back first. Can you please speak to Uncle Benedict and Auntie Melody about it? If they don't mind, they can come to pick Estie up at my house. I can't leave at the moment."

Estie's face was already downcast because she was worried about Nox, and now her face was even more upset after hearing Rosalie's words.

Rosalie patted the little girl's head reassuringly.

Byron frowned deeply. "What happened?"

Perhaps his voice was too reassuring, Rosalie unconsciously let go to reveal some fatigue.

"Nox was injured while playing games in the afternoon. Lucian and Estie accompanied him to the hospital. I was overwhelmed by the rush, so I brought Estie back together."

Byron froze slightly. "Is he badly hurt? Do you need me to go over?"

Rosalie felt supported at that moment but refused him with a smile. "No, no, don't forget that I'm a doctor too! I can sort him out. I only need your help with Uncle and Aunt. Please tell them that if they want to come, I'll wait for them."

Byron realized he was worrying too much. Upon hearing what she said, he did not insist further.

After they hung up, he called his father back and explained the situation.

Knowing that one of the children was injured, Benedict showed some understanding. "Since the child is injured, she must be too busy, so let's not trouble her. Let's go another day." i

Byron thanked his father for Rosalie and the little ones.

'How could it be such a coincidence?'

Melody was still displeased. "I think she did it on purpose. She's just lying to us because she doesn't want us to take Estie away. She plans to use her identity as Estie's biological mother to enter our family in a legitimate way!'

Benedict hung up the phone and looked at his wife helplessly. "Whether the child is injured or not, we can tell at a glance. Why would she tell such a lie that can be exposed so easily?"

'Who knows! Aren't you planning on not going to her house? I think you're also siding with her!' Melody turned her head angrily, refusing to meet his gaze.
