My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1494– Let You Know The Result

“Byron?”

Rosalie, who took the children to the car, saw Byron interrogating Lucille.

When she saw Byron seemed mad, she quickly stopped the kids. Then, she reminded Byron to pay attention and not use violence with the kids around her.

Byron's grip tightened. However, after a second, he let go of Lucille and beckoned the bodyguards to let go of her.

Lucille panted in terror and desperately tried to escape, but her feet seemed rooted, and she could not lift them.

“Daddy!”

The three little ones saw their daddy, who was tall, and greeted him warmly even when Rosalie stopped them.

The scene seemed harmonious, so Rosalie let go of the kids.

The little ones saw Lucille, who seemed strange, standing by the side. Even so, they greeted her obediently, “Ms. Crane.”

Lucille was drowned in dread, and she did not notice the kids' voices.

The kids looked at the adults beside them when Lucille did not respond to their greeting.

“Daddy, what are you doing here with Ms. Crane?”

Nox asked in his cute voice.

The little boy remembered what Byron had said before to call him Mr. Byron at home and Daddy outside.

Rosalie probably already guessed what was going on and looked at Byron nervously, not knowing how he would explain to the kids.

“Ms. Crane isn't feeling well. I'm asking someone to send her to the hospital.”

Byron concealed his anger well and sounded natural when he said that.

The bodyguards knew what Byron had in mind and helped Lucille get into the car nearby.

Estelle did not think much and nodded obediently. She said naively, “Daddy, you must get a good doctor for Ms. Crane and ensure Ms. Crane gets well soon!”

Byron nodded, promising his daughter.

“Daddy, will you be having dinner with us tonight?” The little girl looked at her father expectantly.

Byron touched the heads of the little ones. “Not tonight. I'll have dinner with you all some other time.”

Then, he told his bodyguards, “Drive them back in my car.”

The bodyguards took the order.

Rosalie looked at her car and the man in a puzzle.

“Go to the car with that uncle rst. Daddy has something to talk to your mommy,” Byron said to the little ones.

Naturally, the three children agreed without hesitation. As they walked away, Nox secretly gave Byron a thumbs up.

Byron's anger subsided upon seeing the cute boy's action. He even put on a faint smile.

As soon as the little ones left, Rosalie could not help asking.

Byron's face was serious again. “She tried to do something to your car to hurt you. We found grease on her, and it's been used, so don't drive this car for the time being. I'll send it to the mechanic to check it out.”

The thought of what would happen if the woman drove her car today made rage surge through him.

Rosalie's expression changed, and she looked at her car in shock.

She and her children would have... if Byron had not caught Lucille redhanded.

Thinking of what could have happened, Rosalie's forehead puckered as she glared at Lucille in disdain through the car window.

“Why would she do that?” “That's what I wanted to ask her just now. Take the children home rst. I'll let you know when I get the result.”
