My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1615-The news of the cooperation between the three companies caused an uproar.

In a villa in the suburbs, Andrea sat on the sofa as she looked at Alistair cautiously.

The man stood before the coffee machine, making the coffee elegantly.

After a while, Alistair brought the coffee he had made to her. "Miss Quirke, it's thanks to you that we had a happy cooperation."

His smile attracted Andrea. When he thanked her, she responded with a smile, "It's nothing. All I did was mention that to my brother."

The trading company Andrius contacted for Rosalie was introduced by Andrea.

The company was under Alistair's name, and he told Andrea about it. All Andrea did was convey what he had told her to her brother.

Andrius was having trouble with getting the suppliers. Thus, Andrea suggested the company. Her brother investigated it and found that the company was qualified. He did not think much about it and even praised her.

With that in mind, Andrea looked at Alistair gratefully. "I should thank you.

With your recommendation, my brother has changed his perception of me."

Alistair smiled and took a sip of his coffee, yet many thoughts were flashing across his mind.

He thought Andrius would doubt Andrea if she recommended the company to Andrius since his sister had a close relationship with Wendy.

Unexpectedly, Andrius trusted his sister.

Easily, his company cooperated with the Quirke family and had conflicts of interest.

At the same time, he had also contacted the Lawrence family discreetly.

What he wanted to do in the future would be much easier with this stepping stone!

Alistair squinted his eyes in satisfaction and put down the cup. He looked at Andrea and asked gentlemanly, "What would you like to have for lunch?"

The topic of conversation changed abruptly.

Andrea was startled. A flush crept up her face as she said, "Anything... will do. Let's have a simple meal."

Alistair nodded with a smile. "I'll arrange that."

Then, he took out his phone to make a call.

After arranging everything, he got into the car with Andrea and drove toward the city center.

Andrea had to admit that Alistair was a flirting expert.

It was a simple lunch. However, his arrangement was romantic.

Andrea knew they had nothing to do with each other, but she still felt they were dating.

Alistair was pleased to see Andrea's shy expression.

He had always enjoyed the pursuit of women.

It was fun when the woman responded as soon as he flirted with her. That gave him a sense of accomplishment.

Winning Andrea's heart would do him no harm. It might even benefit him in the future.

"By the way, you've helped me so much. I can't let you help me for nothing."

Alistair said, "Other than the benefits we agreed with Quirke Enterprise, I'll pay you 10% of the profit. Are you satisfied with that?"

Andrea was overwhelmed, yet she remained calm as she nodded.

Alistair smiled with satisfaction and said regretfully, "I like your personality, but I have some business to attend to and will be away for a while..."

Andrea was startled.

If he left, her plans might go to waste.

As she was feeling lost, Alistair's voice sounded again.

"Here's the key to the villa. I hope you can watch after my villa while I'm away. Moreover, I hope you won't think I'm annoying when I call you."

That was ambiguous.

Andrea was shocked, but a smile soon bloomed on her face. She was starting to fall for him.

“I’ll watch after your villa. Don’t worry!”

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1616- I Want To Talk To Her

Xander drove back to Lancer Corporation as soon as he left the Lancer family’s residence.

On the way back, he played back the live broadcast of the press conference.

He was so annoyed as he watched Rosalie and Byron being so harmonious on the screen!

When he arrived at the office, there was an obvious shift in the way the employees looked at him.

The news of Rosalie’s cooperation with Lawrence Corporation had gone public.

“What are you looking at? Go back to your respective seats and work!” Xander roared angrily.

Everyone looked away awkwardly and scrambled back to work respectively.

Xander stomped his way back to the office and slammed the door shut.

“Mr. Lancer...”

The assistant came in cautiously from the outside and asked for his instruction. “Should we continue to keep the batch of medicinal materials we reserved for the research institute?”

Before Xander was sure that Rosalie would turn back to seek their cooperation, so he instructed the company to keep a batch of medicinal materials for the research institute.

However, Rosalie had turned on him.

Unexpectedly, Rosalie asked Lawrence Corporation for help to partner with Quirke Enterprise!

Xander pondered for a long time and said coldly, "Keep it for now. Call Miss Jacobs again and ask when she's free. I want to talk to her."

Even if Rosalie had reached an agreement with those two companies, Xander did not think that those two companies would send the medicinal materials to the research institute so soon.

As long as he could get in touch with Rosalie before she got the medicinal materials, he still had a chance!

The assistant immediately called Rosalie upon Xander's instruction.

The other end quickly picked up.

The assistant asked cautiously, "Hello, Miss Jacobs. I'm Mr. Lancer's assistant. Can I check when you'll be free? Mr. Lancer wants to chat with you."

Rosalie had just finished the press conference and was on the way home with Byron.

She subconsciously turned her head and glanced at him.

Byron nodded to her, indicating that she was free to do so and that he would not mind.

Rosalie pursed her lips slightly, retracted her gaze, and said lightly, "Please tell Mr. Lancer that I have nothing to talk to him about as my previous stance remains. In addition, I already have a new partner. The only thing we can talk about is compensation. Please talk to my lawyer about this."

With that said, she hung up the phone.

Satisfied with her tough attitude, Byron held her hand with a smile.

On the other end of the call, the assistant's expression was troubled.

From the assistant's response, Xander's expression turned even colder." What did she say? When will she be free?"

The assistant trembled and said, ' Miss Jacobs said that the only thing she can talk to us about is compensation. She... She asked us to talk to her lawyer!' "Say it again?" Xander narrowed his eyes slightly, his tone icy-cold.

The assistant sensed his anger and lamented endlessly in his heart, but he could only bite the bullet and repeated.

“That ignorant b*tch!”

Xander had just been severely reprimanded by Old Master Lancer and almost lost his right as the heir of the Lancer family. On top of that, he was rejected by Rosalie now. He was beyond furious.

The assistant had been with him for so many years, and this was the first time he saw Xander so angry. He was so frightened that he had to hold his breath.

There was a dead silence in the office.

After a long time, Xander waved his hand. “You can go out now!”

The assistant breathed a sigh of relief, turned around, and left immediately.

In the office, Xander got up from behind the desk and took out a small incense burner from the drawer. His eyes were full of coldness.

“Rosalie, I’ve given you many chances. Since you won’t give in, don’t blame me for being too ruthless!”

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1617-Lawrence Manor.

After the press conference, Andrius bid farewell tactfully and left without intruding on the couple’s privacy.

At first, Byron wanted to take Rosalie out to celebrate. However, they thought of the three kids at home and decided to pick them up first.

After all, the two of them had been busy with work, and it was indeed a long time since they all went out to have fun.

“Daddy! Mommy!”

As soon as the two entered the door, the little ones greeted them enthusiastically.

Rosalie had just solved a problem and was in a good mood. She smiled and opened her arms but only hugged Estie.

Byron picked up Lucian and Nox in each arm.

The two little boys were lifted in the air and laughed happily. "We can fly!"

Byron held their collars and spun them in circles cooperatively. The boys stretched their arms wide, pretending that they were little airplanes.

The father and sons were having fun, but Rosalie was terrified watching them.

"Put them down. That's too dangerous."

Only then did Byron put them down. Lucian and Nox were slightly bummed about it, but they never wanted Mommy to worry. They obediently ran to her side.

"We watched TV today! Daddy was so handsome! Mommy was so beautiful!" Nox praised sweetly.

Rosalie smiled and patted the little boy's head.

On the side, Byron's voice was steady. "Come on, we're going out to have fun."

The three little ones jumped for joy again.

The two took them up to get ready, and each of them changed into a casual outfit. Then, the two took the little ones out.

Byron made a reservation at a Western restaurant on the top floor of the city's tallest commercial building.

The family of five sat on the terrace as they listened to soothing background music and looked at the lights of Coast City. They were like stars falling all over the ground.

"President Lawrence, I haven't seen you for a long time."

The manager served them in person. He exchanged some pleasantries after serving the dishes. "This is Miss Jacobs, right? She's so beautiful. No wonder President Lawrence picked the best place in our restaurant for a date. The president doesn't bring anyone with him when he comes here for a meal! With a beautiful partner like you, no one else will be able to catch President Lawrence's eye!"

Rosalie was in a good mood and asked the manager, "Hasn't he brought Miss Fuller here before? Otherwise, why would he be here alone?"

The manager seemed to have thought of something funny and waved his hand. "Now that you've mentioned it, President Lawrence didn't come alone."

The smile on Rosalie's face froze slightly at the manager's answer.

She originally wanted to make fun of Byron, but the manager's replies seem to shoot herself in the foot.

The manager said again, "President Lawrence brought Little Miss Lawrence with him every time he came here. Miss Lawrence likes our desserts, so I'll serve you more in a while. The two young masters would like them too."

With that said, the smile on Rosalie's face grew stiffer. She smiled at the manager awkwardly. "Thank you."

After that, she lowered her head to help the little ones cut their steak, not daring to look at the man's face opposite.

The manager left quickly, and Byron teased, "Why? Are you eating your heart out over your own daughter?"

Rosalie stomped on him under the table angrily.

"Mommy wants to eat hearts? Do you want artichoke? Estie will get it for you!" Estie looked at Rosalie innocently.

Lucian and Nox hurriedly stuffed a mouthful of salad into their sister's mouth and gagged her.

Byron looked at the flushed Rosalie and chuckled.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1618-After dinner, the three little ones sensibly went aside to play.

Byron specifically informed the manager that he would bring his children, so the manager changed the layout of the restaurant. He turned a corner into a small children's playground equipped with a lot of video games. The little ones had a great time.

Byron and Rosalie stood on the terrace, watching the night view.

"Thank you."

Rosalie turned her head to look at the man with gratefulness in her eyes.

Byron frowned slightly, his eyes showing a glint of playfulness. "Just thank you?"

Rosalie was slightly distressed. "Let's treat Young Master Quirke to dinner some other day. As for you, I haven't decided what to give you..."

She knew that Byron would not be satisfied with just a thank you.

Byron embraced her from behind, trapping her between himself and the railing. He handed her a glass of red wine.

Rosalie raised her hand to take it.

A deep voice whispered behind her, "I don't need a gift. You've already given me what I want."

After finishing speaking, he lightly touched her glass again. "If you want to thank me..."

The man whispered something in her ear.

Rosalie's face turned beet red. She turned around and lifted the wine glass in her hand to her mouth while protesting in embarrassment. "I want to rest!"

If she did not know him well enough, Rosalie would have suspected he had been promiscuous all these years!

Otherwise, why would there be so much dirty nonsense in his head?

Byron's goal was achieved. He took a sip of wine from her hand with a smile, bent down, and fed all the wine into her mouth.

His kiss dazzled Rosalie.

"Take a good rest today and pay me back slowly later." After the kiss was over, Byron's fingertips rubbed against her lips.

Rosalie came back to her senses and wanted to step back and stay away from him.

Byron suddenly became serious again. "Apart from that, when are you going to fulfill your promise to me?"

When this matter was mentioned, Rosalie hesitated again and remained silent for a few seconds before saying, "I want... to wait for a suitable opportunity."

Byron looked at the worry on her face, but he was unsure what she was worrying about.

However, he could never bear to force her. He just raised his hand and pulled her into his arms. "It's okay, I can wait a little longer."

Anyway, after today's press conference, he knew almost everything he needed to know.

Rosalie smiled gratefully and put her arms around his waist.

The two stayed together on the terrace for a while.

As it was getting late, they took the little ones back home.

The three little ones were having tons of fun under the manager's care. As soon as they got in the car, they were so tired that they fell asleep.

Rosalie smiled. She looked at the little ones' cute sleeping faces, then at Byron's side profile as he drove beside her. Her heart was at ease.

For her, life now was very satisfying.

Her only regret was that Melody could not accept her and her two children.

It seemed that she has to work harder!

The car stopped slowly at the gate of Lawrence Manor.

Byron took the three little ones out of the car and carefully sent them back to their rooms.

The little ones were really tired from playing and never intended to wake up as they were being carried to their rooms.

After settling the kids down, the two returned to their rooms.

After taking a shower, Rosalie still hesitated, thinking about what the man said on the balcony.

Byron went too far last night. In addition, she had been sitting the whole afternoon, and her waist still had not recovered.

However, if Byron wanted to...

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1619-Just when she felt sorry for her waist, Byron came out of the bathroom.

Rosalie's heart tightened.

"Go to bed early. You've been exhausted these two days." Byron came over and kissed her on the lips.

Suddenly, Rosalie could not respond.

Byron frowned slightly. 'Well, if you want it, it's my husbandly duty to satisfy you.'

Rosalie's face burned hot. She got into the quilt silently and buried herself in it.

After a while, the sound of the hair dryer stopped. Byron lifted the other side of the quilt and got into bed. He pulled her into his arms and fell into a deep sleep.

It was a good night's sleep.

Early the next morning, Rosalie was full of energy when she woke up.

Andrius' call came in early in the morning.

Byron was still in the bathroom. Rosalie hesitated for a moment before she picked it up.

"Andrius, what's the matter?"

Andrius' eyes flashed with surprise upon hearing her voice. "Sister-in-law?"

Without waiting for Rosalie to respond, he asked cautiously, "I didn't bother you, did I? Where's Byron?"

Rosalie explained softly without much thought, "Byron is in the shower.

What's up?" 'Shower?'

Suddenly, Andrius had a lot of speculations in his mind. He forcibly pushed them back and said seriously, "Oh, the first batch of medicinal materials has arrived. I'm at the pier now, and I wanted to ask if you want to come and have a look to check them out?" "That fast?" Hearing this, Rosalie could not help being a little surprised. 1

She thought she would have to wait at least another two or three days.

Andrius did not forget to say good things about his buddy. "Byron knows that you need them urgently. Before signing the contract, he bought a batch for you to use first and paid for it himself."

Rosalie was moved when she heard of Byron's gesture.

Byron came out of the bathroom just then, and Rosalie wanted to hand him the phone. Byron shook his head and turned on the speakerphone.

Andrius' voice continued, "Speaking of which, it took a lot of effort for Byron to buy this batch of medicinal materials. His devotion to you is clear as day! Sister-in-law, you must treasure such a good man!"

Rosalie wanted to burst out in laughter at his exaggerated remarks.

However, she had to hold back her laughter because Byron was present.

Byron himself could not listen to this any longer and interrupted, "Okay, let's get back to business."

Andrius' voice stopped abruptly, and he said awkwardly, "I've already told Sister-in-law. I'll be waiting at the pier if you want to come over."

Byron looked at Rosalie again.

Rosalie explained to him about the medicinal materials delivery once more. "I want to go over and have a look. Can you send the children to school?"

Byron originally wanted to send her there in person, but for the children's sake, he relented. "Then I'll pick you up at night."

Rosalie smiled and agreed.

The two went downstairs to have breakfast. Byron sent the little ones to the kindergarten, while Rosalie drove to the pier.

Andrius waited for her at the pier. He proceeded to chat with her when she arrived.

The two chatted while checking through the supplies.

After they verified the quantity, the next step was to send the medicinal materials to the research institute for trial in small batches. This was to confirm that the final medicinal effect was the same as when they use Lancer Corporation's medicinal materials.

Andrius assisted in the delivery of the medicinal materials. The next steps required confidentiality, which Andrius could not provide, so he left.

Rosalie watched him leave and then went back to work.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1620-After a busy day, Linda urged Rosalie to pause for lunch.

This batch of medicinal materials was a bit large.

Rosalie just wanted to eat something nearby and then resume work.

Unexpectedly, she heard a car honk as soon as she went out.

She paid no mind and continued walking. Yet, the horn kept blaring.

Rosalie realized belatedly that the person was here for her.

She turned to look and saw a car parked not far from the entrance of the institute. The car window was lowered halfway, revealing Xander's face inside.

"Miss Jacobs." Xander smiled familiarly at her as she turned around.

Rosalie frowned slightly and stood there without approaching. "Mr. Lancer, I'm sorry, but I'm busy and can't talk now."

With that, she turned around and wanted to walk toward the restaurant.

The horn sounded again, and the car slowly followed her.

"Miss Jacobs, there's no righteousness in buying and selling. We were friends before. Won't you even give me time to chat?"

Along with the horn, Xander's voice rang in her ears as well

People came out of the research institute and looked over.

Rosalie did not want to attract too much attention, so she stopped. "Mr.

Lancer, If you have something to say, you can say it now."

Xander's eyes turned cold upon her compromise. He leaned forward and opened the car door. "Let's chat in the car."

Rosalie stood still with vigilance in her eyes.

Xander pulled his lips thin. "Miss Jacobs, do you think I'm going to do something to you here in broad daylight? You and I are both people of status. I still have to take care of the Lancer family's reputation."

With that, he opened the door a little wider and asked her to check the inside of the car.

Finally, he explained, "I just think it's too hot outside, and I can't finish what I want to say in a few words. It's cooler in the car."

Rosalie frowned and checked the car before getting inside but did not take the front passenger seat. She opened the back door and got in by herself.

The air conditioner was on in the car, so she had to close the door and the windows.

"Let's talk now," she said calmly.

Xander glanced at the incense burner under the front passenger seat. He looked regretful but had coldness in his eyes.

"Miss Jacobs, you were quick to act. I was thinking that I could talk to you in two days and maybe we could still work together. I never expected that you to sign a contract with Lawrence Corporation and Quirke Enterprise so quickly."

There was a hint of accusation in his words.

Rosalie frowned slightly and met his gaze in the rearview mirror boldly. "Mr. Lancer, you may go to the factory and ask how much the institute has paid for this." i

The factory shut down and had to wait for the medicine's production. As a result, the research institute needed to compensate a large number of lost wages.

For the past two days, Byron had offered to produce the medicine for free in Lawrence Corporation's factory, but Rosalie refused.

She had already received too much help from Byron, and she could not rely on him for everything.

A subtle look of displeasure flashed across Xander's eyes. "Why do you say that, Miss Jacobs? It'll be a matter of time before the research institute pays the price. To be honest, I still don't agree with your pricing for the medicines."

Rosalie was no longer bothered by his disagreement at this point. "Whether you agree or not has nothing to do with me. My partner isn't Lancer Corporation. If you insist on your pricing, you can develop a new drug and sell it yourself."
