My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1678-In the evening, the two met in the hotel at six o'clock sharp.

Byron had no patience to wait any longer. He rushed over immediately after hanging up the phone.

When Xander arrived, there was only a jug of plain water on the table.

There was not even a decent drink.

Byron must have stopped the waiter from serving food using the same reason last time.

Xander was unsettled. The smile on his face was a little cold.

"I'm so flattered that you're waiting for me, President Lawrence."

He stepped forward and sat down two seats away from Byron. "If the food in this hotel isn't up to your preference, you should've told me earlier."

Byron seemed to have noticed his existence. He just raised his eyes and glanced at him, ignoring his strange demeanor.

"I have nothing against the food here. I just don't think it's necessary."

With that, Byron went straight to the point and brought up business. 'I've prepared the transfer documents for the ten companies. You only need to sign them and those companies can be transferred to your name at any time. As for the transfer documents of the research institute, I've already signed the compensation contract for canceling the cooperation. It's all included.'

He took out a folder from the side and pushed it in front of Xander indifferently.

Xander was stunned as he glanced at the folder handed to him. Then, he became even prouder.

‘So, this is how it feels to see Byron submit to me in person! How refreshing!

‘How many chances would one get in this lifetime to step all over Byron? This opportunity is rare. I must seize it and enjoy the feeling of being begged by Byron!’

Thinking of this, Xander pulled his lower lip back and pushed the folder aside without opening it.

“If you already knew this would happen, why did you persist in the first two days, President Lawrence?”

His tone was full of contempt. “Didn’t you say that you would use all the financial resources of Lawrence Corporation to save Miss Jacobs? How is she now?”

Byron’s eyes fluctuated a little at the mention of Rosalie’s situation. He kept his cool and said, ‘No matter how she is now, I believe she’ll wake up tomorrow as long as you can give me the antidote as promised.”

Xander raised the corners of his lips and continued to speak slowly,” There’s no rush for the antidote. President Lawrence, it seems that you haven’t fulfilled one more of my requests. When you do. I’ll give you the antidote.”

Byron stared at him with intent.

‘All I can see on Xander’s face is the arrogance and pride in his determination to win.

‘I’m sure that I have no other choice but to beg him.

‘Before this, I was ready to agree.

‘Now, I can’t even open my mouth.’

Xander’s eyes were full of disdain.

“I heard that you invited many famous doctors to help Miss Jacobs. She remains unconscious, I suppose.

“I’m afraid those quack doctors are still clueless about the effects of my drug, right? The current medical world is a mess. Any unworthy person can be called an expert as long as they’ve been here long enough!”

Suddenly, Xander realized that he was off-topic and snorted coldly. "Rest assured, even if they find the cause of the disease by chance, there's no way anyone can come up with the antidote. The drug was developed from our ancient medical books!"

Right now, Byron understood.

No wonder Old Master Loewe could not help after searching so many medical books.

The antidote was never disclosed to the outside world and was exclusively recorded in the Lancer family's ancient medical books.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1679—"President Lawrence, how is it? What's your decision regarding my third request?"

With a sinister smile, Xander pushed further after explaining the origin of the drug.

Byron was taken aback. Then, he quickly regained his composure and turned to meet his gaze. "Deal."

Xander was dissatisfied. 'Only verbally? Any concrete evidence? Without evidence, how do I know if you'll make good on your word? Although I believe in your character, I've worked hard to get this antidote. If you deceive me, won't I be made a fool?"

Byron frowned slightly. 'What evidence do you want?"

Xander raised his eyebrows adamantly. "A marriage certificate, of course. It's a bit late now, and the Civil Affairs Bureau is probably off working hours. However, if you issue a public statement now, I'm willing to accept it. n

Xander's gaze on Byron was intended to provoke.

Among these three requirements, he knew best which one was the most unacceptable to Byron.

After he made this request, Byron's struggling expression was also the moment Xander looked forward to the most.

He wanted to savor this moment when President Lawrence, who always had an air of superiority, showed a pained and tormented expression in front of him!

“Alright.”

Byron nodded and agreed without changing his expression.

Xander frowned slightly. He was surprised and utterly dissatisfied. “What did you say?”

Byron’s reaction was beyond Xander’s expectations, which made the latter extremely disappointed!

‘Byron is just shrugging this off like it’s nothing? I’ve been waiting for this moment the most!

‘Shouldn’t you at least struggle a bit being forced to leave Rosalie?

‘How could you agree so readily?’

There was even a sarcastic smile on the corner of Byron’s mouth. “Since I asked you out, I’ve already thought through these three requirements.

However, I didn’t have time to prepare what you wanted. It was my negligence. Let me go back and get ready.”

With that, he got up and left.

There was no sign of begging for mercy throughout their discussion. On the contrary, he still appeared lofty as if everything was under his control!

As Xander watched Byron leave, the expression on his face turned ferocious.

“Damn it! Damn it!”

Xander got up suddenly and swept everything on the table to the ground. He was livid!

The sound of broken glass was crisp as everything crashed on the ground.

The waiter outside heard the commotion and hurried in to see if anybody was hurt.

The poor waiter was met with Xander’s red eyes. ‘Who let you in? Get out!’

The waiter shivered violently, nodded repeatedly, turned around, and retreated.

There was another commotion in the private room.

Xander wanted to flip the table in front of him!

‘He has to beg me! What the hell is Byron so proud of?

'Who does he think he is?!

'Without those ten subsidiaries, even Lawrence Corporation would have to drop a level below!

'At that time, would he be greater than the Lancers?

'What confidence does he have to show off in front of me?!'

Xander sat on the chair. His face was livid.

His anger slightly subsided when he remembered that Byron would marry another woman soon.

'So what if Byron is superior?

'In the end, he'll still have to bow down to me, right?

'When Byron signs the paperwork with another woman, everything will be a foregone conclusion!

'Rosalie would be mine sooner or later!

'Lawrence Corporation would be trampled under my feet in no time!'
