My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1720-Time passed by.

As the sky gradually darkened, more and more components of the antidote came to light.

However, nobody had a clue about the most critical herb.

Rosalie's condition was getting worse.

At noon, she was still able to sit by herself, but now she could only lean on Byron to barely sit up. The severe pain in her body made her clench her teeth to keep from moaning in pain.

"There is no time. I will contact Xander now!" Byron became very anxious watching her in pain.

Rosalie struggled to raise her hand and grabbed his wrist." Wait a little longer. I can hold on for a while."

They would still have hope until the last moment!

Meanwhile, harboring the last glimmer of hope, Old Master Loewe clicked on the molecular formula on the screen. "Do the test again, I want to see what it is!"

Mary placed the liquid back into the instrument and restarted the test.

Before the test was over, the old man suddenly understood. He said, "I understand now. The key wasn't the herbs, but the chemicals he added during the production process!"

The processed molecular formula he saw was precisely the composition of the herbs that reacted with the chemical agents!

Mary heard this and understood it as well. She excitedly relayed it to Rosalie. "Rosie, did you hearthat? Master Loewe has already figured out the key. We can develop the antidote soon!"

As long as they figured out the key ingredients of the poison, developing the antidote would not be difficult!

Rosalie also breathed a sigh of relief and forced a smile." That's great."

Mary was busy all afternoon that she did not notice her best friend's condition.

She saw Rosalie's appearance, and the joy on her face gradually disappeared, replaced by worry and concern.

"However, we don't have much time left. We spent so long just researching the ingredients of the poison..."

With Rosalie's current state, it would be extremely difficult for her to persist until they develop an antidote!

Rosalie calmed down. "It's okay, we still have time. We can do it, don't worry."

Mary's eyes were red with anxiety from hearing Rosalie's weak voice.

She glanced over at Old Master Loewe to see that the old man was still groveling for the antidote formula. She felt even more anxious.

"Something's not right."

After a while, Old Master Loewe walked to the screen and looked straight at Rosalie with a serious expression.

Rosalie's heart sank slightly. "Why do you say so?"

Old Master Loewe shook his head slowly. "According to my medical practice experience, although this formula has the effect of delaying the toxicity, it cannot completely eliminate the toxicity. It is impossible no matter how much of the concoction is used."

Suddenly, Rosalie thought of something and was even more surprised at Xander's cruelty.

She frowned and said, "Is it possible that this is not an antidote at all, but simply a drug to delay the toxicity?"

'Xander wanted to use this method to firmly control the Lawrence Corporation and the research institute within his grasp in the days to come!'

This possibility made Rosalie shudder in fear.

She turned her head to look at the man beside her and grabbed onto his wrist.

Initially, she thought, 'If I'd gotten to the point where there's no other way, I would accept Byron giving in to Xander.'

'However, I can't let Byron go any further no matter what.

'Xander already knew that we were developing an antidote, who knew what he would do to this drug!'
