My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1737-“Impossible...”

Xander's eyes trembled as he murmured repeatedly.

'Impossible! I used herbs and development methods that are only found in our ancient medical books. How could Rosalie decipher it?

'I took so long to develop the medicine. How could Rosalie crack it?!' “Nothing is impossible.”

Byron's cold voice shattered his illusion. His warning was stern. “Rosalie is fine now, Mr. Lancer. Be prepared to pay the price for your foolishness!”

Xander looked at the person in front of him in astonishment.

'Pay the price? Isn't it miserable enough for me now?'

Byron seemed to know what he was thinking and replied blankly, “This is just an appetizer. This bit of retribution is not enough for all that you've done, Mr. Lancer.”

The temperature around Byron suddenly dropped, and his eyes were instantly filled with murderous rage. “If it were up to me, you'd already be dead now!”

Xander's heart shrank as he felt a chill spread from the soles of his feet to his whole body.

He knew what Byron said was true!

Byron's every punch landed on a vital point. If he had exerted more strength, Xander might not be able to stand at all!

Even though Byron had already restrained himself, the thrashing made Xander feel as if he had already lost half his life!

'Byron came here just to finish me!

'However, he changed his mind for some reason!'

Realizing this, Xander could hardly suppress the panic on his face. His eyes trembled uncontrollably.

“What else do you want?”

Byron let go of his hand as if he was throwing a rag, and Xander's legs gave way. He landed on the table.

"Don't worry, Mr. Lancer. Just wait and see. I don't need you to beg me, and I never intended to be lenient on you!"

After speaking, he turned around and strode away.

Xander and his assistant were both in shock as they watched the man leave.

They were sure of winning and were just waiting to humiliate Byron.

Who would have thought that Byron gave Xander a thrashing instead?

"Mr. Lancer!"

The assistant needed a few seconds to come to his senses after being startled by the scuffle. He dashed forward to assist Xander, who was still helpless on the desk.

Xander looked terrible. His hands were shaking uncontrollably. "Impossible, how is it possible?"

As he spoke, he grabbed the assistant's collar frantically. "How could she develop the antidote in such a short time?"

The assistant was taken aback, but he did not dare to let go. He shuddered in response. "I... I don't know either. Miss Jacobs' medical skills are indeed formidable."

Otherwise, why would Xander do everything possible to get her?

"No! Byron must be lying!"

This had a huge impact on Xander. He shook his head and retorted before he even recover.

The assistant did not dare to say anything else as he watched his boss unravel. 'Til take you to the hospital."

Just now, Byron's actions clarified all the facts.

Rosalie must have developed the antidote for Byron to treat him like this.

However, the assistant could only keep silent to avoid shattering Xander's fantasy. With Xander's current condition, doing so would only incur his wrath.

Besides, what made the assistant even more terrified were the words that Byron said before he left.

'Byron wanted to make Lancer Corporation pay.

'What exactly is Byron going to do? Will it implicate me?'

The assistant was flustered. He had no time to care about Xander's appearance and just sloppily helped him into the elevator.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1738-At the same time, Mary, the three little ones, Old Master Loewe, Linda, and Andrius waited nervously in the ward on the top floor of the hospital.

They worked hard to develop the antidote at the last moment.

After Rosalie took the antidote, all her vital signs returned to normal. However, she remained unconscious.

"Godmother, is our antidote effective?"

Lucian asked in his childlike voice. He could not help feeling a little anxious after waiting for a long time.

Mary was feeling uneasy too because Rosalie was still asleep. However, she tried to calm down and comfort the little guy. i "It can't be wrong. This is a prescription written by your mommy. Besides, look, her vital signs are recovering."

With that, she looked at Old Master Loewe uneasily, hoping to get his affirmation.

The old man nodded slightly with a calm expression on his face.

Only then did Mary feel more at ease.

"But why isn't Mommy awake?"

Estie had cried badly just now. There were sniffles in her voice, and her round eyes were filled with anxiety.

Mary's heart ached as she heard the little girl's voice. She leaned over and soothed the little girl's head. 'Mommy is very tired, so she needs to sleep a little longer. She'll wake up for sure.'

The little ones had been waiting for a long time. No matter what she said, there was a look of suspicion on their faces.

Mary's heart was in chaos seeing them like this. She had no choice but to bite the bullet. "Go and talk to Mommy. She'll wake up soon after hearing your voice."

It was better to give the little ones something to do than to let their imagination run wild,

The kids nodded obediently and trotted over to the hospital bed.

"Mommy, don't sleep anymore. Wake up quickly. Estie misses you so much..."

With a soft voice, Estie held Rosalie's finger pitifully.

Nox anxiously lay beside Rosalie's ear, wanting to call her aloud but afraid of startling her. Thus, he restrained his voice as best he could, i "Mommy, you promised that you wouldn't lie to us. You said you'd come home tonight..."

The two little ones kept talking in Rosalie's ear.

Lucian remained silent, his eyes fixed on Rosalie's face.

'I believe in Mommy. There's no problem with Mommy's prescription! She'll wake up!'

Perhaps he badly wanted Mommy to wake up, but the little boy thought he saw Mommy's eyes flutter. He excitedly grabbed Mary's hand.

"Godmother, is Mommy waking up?"

He anxiously dragged Mary to the hospital bed.

Hearing this, Old Master Loewe's face turned serious, and he walked over.

Linda and Andrius' expressions changed too as they looked nervously at her on the hospital bed.

The ward suddenly fell silent.

Under everyone's scorching gazes, Rosalie slowly opened her eyes.

"Mommy!"

The three little guys shouted almost simultaneously.

Mary's eyes turned red. She wanted to cry and laugh at her best friend on the hospital bed.

Thank goodness, she finally woke up...

Rosalie waited for a few seconds before fully waking up.

She looked around and smiled weakly. "Sorry, I made you worry." "I'm glad you woke up."

Mary smiled as she looked at her, but her tears streamed down uncontrollably. She quickly wiped them in a panic.

Rosalie's heart was moved by her best friend's tears.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1739-The kid finally waited until Mummy woke up and cried uncontrollably.

"Mommy, you're finally awake... We were so scared..."

Even Lucian, with tears on his face, was sobbing silently.

Rosalie had just woken up. She was weak, and her heart was aching. She comforted them softly, "I'm sorry for scaring you, but thanks to you, I'm awake now."

The little ones' cries subsided.

Nox choked up and asked her, "Did you hear us just now?"

Rosalie pursed her lips and smiled. "I heard two crybabies almost crying. I was afraid that you would cry, so I quickly woke up. But you still cried anyway."

In reality, she was half-awake earlier, but her physical strength was not enough to wake her up completely.

She fought hard and woke up from the coma when she heard Nox and Estie's voices.

She found them in tears as soon as she opened her eyes.

Rosalie's heart was full of guilt. "I'm sorry, it's all my fault for being too careless and making you worry like this."

If she had been careful, she would not have fallen for Xander's tricks.

Lucian was the first to stop crying. He frowned and shook his head. "No, it's all the bad guy's fault and not Mommy's fault! Mommy, you're the best doctor in the world!"

Although Nox and Estie could not stop their tears for the time being, they nodded vigorously in agreement.

Rosalie was used to the little ones' praises. However, she was embarrassed because Old Master Loewe was still in the ward. "I just happened to make the right guess."

The little ones wanted to refute, but Old Master Loewe spoke first.

"The children are right. You're an excellent doctor. It's not an exaggeration to say that your medical skills are top-notch."

Rosalie was pleasantly overwhelmed. "Sir, I'm just a rookie. With seniors like you and my teacher around, how can I be considered top-notch?"

Old Master Loewe's eyes were filled with admiration. "You're considered a genius for deciphering this strange poison in such a short time. Not to mention that meticulously precise prescription that you wrote while you were poisoned. Who has your quality among these so-called experts?"

With exceptional medical capabilities, neither an inferior nor an overbearing demeanor, and such a sweet and humble personality, Rosalie was a rarity in this century!

Rosalie felt even more embarrassed after being praised by the old man." Perhaps the heavens above decided that it wasn't time for my life to end, so I correctly guessed the key formula at the last moment. In truth, the antidote creation process is quite complicated. It would've been impossible for me to wake up now if it hadn't been for Mary and your superb medical skills."

She always used the word 'guess' and kept her posture extremely low.

Old Master Loewe appreciated and praised her even more. He even smiled a few times. "No wonder Quentin Luke has been hiding such talent all these years. If the medical world finds out that there's someone like you, I'm afraid those old guys are going to come and wrestle you away from him!"

Rosalie took advantage of the situation and said, "It's Professor Luke's good teaching over the years that allowed me to focus at critical moments."

The smile on Old Master Loewe's face grew bigger. He sighed joyously." What a good candidate."

Then, he looked down at Lucian on the side with a smile. "You kids are great too. Each of them is smarter than the other. We would've been unable to make it if it weren't for Lucian's help in finding the herbs." Rosalie looked at the little ones around her and smiled in relief.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1740-"Um, where's Byron?"

Rosalie's first instinct was to look around the ward for Byron as soon as she woke up.

However, she became a little worried when she looked around and did not find him.

She even began to doubt whether she had really developed an antidote.

'Did Byron go to find Xander...'

This possibility made Rosalie uneasy.

Everyone in the ward looked at each other in blank dismay at the mention of Byron's whereabouts.

Rosalie's heart sank in an instant. She looked at her best friend and asked," What's going on? Is he going to..."

Mary knew before she even finished and quickly explained, 'No, he didn't go to look for Xander. Don't worry.'

Rosalie looked doubtful.

Mary had no choice but to say, "He did plan to go, but we developed the antidote in time, so he dismissed the idea. He fed you the medicine himself!"

Rosalie was still puzzled. "Where is he now?" "He went out after feeding you the antidote. He even made sure that the antidote was effective before he left, but we don't know where he went..."

Mary's tone sounded guilty. She was worried that Rosalie would not believe her, so she added, "If you don't believe me, you can ask the kids! They can testify that what you took was the antidote we developed!"

Rosalie looked at her little ones.

Lucian explained to her in a childlike voice, "I was with Godmother and Grandpa Loewe the whole time. You did take the antidote."

Rosalie breathed a sigh of relief, but she was still worried about Byron's whereabouts.

Where else would he go at this time...

Amidst her unease, she suddenly saw Andrius in the corner.

Andrius' expression stiffened. He said bravely, "Byron... might be busy in the company. I saw Luther come to look for him just now. Why don't I give him a call if you're worried?"

Rosalie had no choice but to believe him. "It's alright. He might be busy."

She said so, but her heart felt otherwise.

The little ones started chatting all at once. Rosalie had no choice but to put away her thoughts and talk to them to calm their emotions.

Andrius stood near the corner. He left the ward discreetly while Rosalie was distracted by the kids.

A few minutes later, a helicopter hovered over the hospital rooftop.

Byron got off the helicopter and Andrius was already waiting on the rooftop.

"What's going on now?"

Contrary to his livid rage when he faced Xander just now, there was only worry on Byron's face.

He had just finished contacting Xander and started the car to leave when he received a call from Andrius. Old Master Loewe had devised the antidote and was on his way to the hospital.

Byron believed in Rosalie's prescription and Old Master's medical skills. He hesitated for a few seconds, then turned off the car and waited for them to arrive.

He administered the antidote to Rosalie and observed that her vital signs returned to normal on the monitor. Rosalie's discomfort appeared to be lessening as she relaxed her expression. Byron felt relieved only then.

After Old Master Loewe's inspection to make sure that the antidote had really worked, Byron headed to meet Xander without hesitation.

'The reason why I promised Xander to meet him at Lancer Corporation is to get the antidote.

'Right now, the reason is to teach Xander a lesson he will remember for life!

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1741- Landed

Andrius was smiling. "She's awake already. She's even asking for you earlier."

Byron frowned slightly. 'Did you tell her?'

Andrius shook his head quickly. "Not yet, I said something came up and you have to go back to the company."

Byron nodded but did not answer.

"Are you going to see Sister-in-law now?" Andrius asked him.

Byron frowned slightly; hesitation flashed across his eyes. After a while, he refused. "Perhaps later. As long as I know she's fine.'

Then, he narrowed his eyes dangerously. His tone turned cold. 'I want that lowlife Xander to first pay for hurting her!"

Despite growing up with him, Andrius was still startled to see Byron like this. Secretly, he was glad that he did not have to fight against Byron.

'Otherwise, I'm afraid I wont even know how I died...'

At the same time, the assistant sent Xander to the hospital.

After a calm journey all the way, Xander finally regained consciousness.

“Where is this?”

Xander’s face darkened as he looked at the name of the hospital.

The assistant trembled. “It’s a hospital under the Lancer’s, I think it’s more convenient...”

With that said Xander violently rebuked him. ‘Idiot! Are you afraid that others won’t know that I was beaten? Change to another hospital now!’

The assistant had to start the car again and go to a public hospital.

When they arrived at the hospital, he immediately assisted Xander to get treated.

The sting of alcohol on the wound made Xander sober.

“How is Rosalie’s situation now? Go and check if she is awake!”

Xander desperately wanted to know the answer.

He still did not believe that anyone could crack his poison in such a short period of time!

Moreover, what is even more frightening was Byron’s attitude when he left just now!

‘Before, I was confident I had full control over Byron because Rosalie’s life is in my hands.

‘Now, if Rosalie had developed the antidote, Byron would never let me nor Lancer Corporation go!’

Thinking of this, Xander couldn’t help but tremble.

He put in so much effort because he wanted Lancer Corporation to rise further. Right now, he might just drag the Lancer Corporation with him into the abyss instead!

The assistant quickly took the instruction and left.

Fifteen minutes later, he rushed back, frantic.

“How’s the situation?” Xander asked coldly.

The assistant was hesitant to speak, his eyes were in a panic. “Mr. Lancer now is not the time to care about Miss Jacobs...”

Xander’s heart sank inexplicably. “What happened?!”

The assistant lowered his head and said, "Just now, thirteen medicinal material warehouses of the Lancer Corporation were all sealed up by the police!"

The assistant had just left the hospital. His car had not driven far before he received a call from the person in charge of the warehouse.

The assistant turned around and came back without hesitation the moment he hung up.

"What?" Xander looked at him in disbelief.

"Why did the police seal up Lancer's warehouse? What's the reason?"

For so many years, the Lancer's image in the outside world has always been positive.

Their relationship with the government and the police was even more harmonious.

How could they be targeted by the police?

The assistant said cautiously, "The person in charge told me the police suspect that there are prohibited items in our warehouse."

Xander's heart sank to the bottom, and he finally understood.

'Byron's so-called price has landed now!

'Rosalie developed an antidote!'
