My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1741- Landed

Andrius was smiling. "She's awake already. She's even asking for you earlier."

Byron frowned slightly. 'Did you tell her?'

Andrius shook his head quickly. "Not yet, I said something came up and you have to go back to the company."

Byron nodded but did not answer.

"Are you going to see Sister-in-law now?" Andrius asked him.

Byron frowned slightly; hesitation flashed across his eyes. After a while, he refused. "Perhaps later. As long as I know she's fine."

Then, he narrowed his eyes dangerously. His tone turned cold. 'I want that lowlife Xander to first pay for hurting her!'

Despite growing up with him, Andrius was still startled to see Byron like this. Secretly, he was glad that he did not have to fight against Byron.

'Otherwise, I'm afraid I won't even know how I died...'

At the same time, the assistant sent Xander to the hospital.

After a calm journey all the way, Xander finally regained consciousness.

"Where is this?"

Xander's face darkened as he looked at the name of the hospital.

The assistant trembled. "It's a hospital under the Lancer's, I think it's more convenient..."

With that said Xander violently rebuked him. 'Idiot! Are you afraid that others won't know that I was beaten? Change to another hospital now!'

The assistant had to start the car again and go to a public hospital.

When they arrived at the hospital, he immediately assisted Xander to get treated.

The sting of alcohol on the wound made Xander sober.

“How is Rosalie’s situation now? Go and check if she is awake!”

Xander desperately wanted to know the answer.

He still did not believe that anyone could crack his poison in such a short period of time!

Moreover, what is even more frightening was Byron’s attitude when he left just now!

‘Before, I was confident I had full control over Byron because Rosalie’s life is in my hands.

‘Now, if Rosalie had developed the antidote, Byron would never let me nor Lancer Corporation go!’

Thinking of this, Xander couldn’t help but tremble.

He put in so much effort because he wanted Lancer Corporation to rise further. Right now, he might just drag the Lancer Corporation with him into the abyss instead!

The assistant quickly took the instruction and left.

Fifteen minutes later, he rushed back, frantic.

“How’s the situation?” Xander asked coldly.

The assistant was hesitant to speak, his eyes were in a panic. “Mr. Lancer now is not the time to care about Miss Jacobs...”

Xander’s heart sank inexplicably. “What happened?!”

The assistant lowered his head and said, “Just now, thirteen medicinal material warehouses of the Lancer Corporation were all sealed up by the police!”

The assistant had just left the hospital. His car had not driven far before he received a call from the person in charge of the warehouse.

The assistant turned around and came back without hesitation the moment he hung up.

“What?” Xander looked at him in disbelief.

“Why did the police seal up Lancer’s warehouse? What’s the reason?”

For so many years, the Lancer’s image in the outside world has always been positive.

Their relationship with the government and the police was even more harmonious.

How could they be targeted by the police?

The assistant said cautiously, "The person in charge told me the police suspect that there are prohibited items in our warehouse."

Xander's heart sank to the bottom, and he finally understood.

'Byron's so-called price has landed now!

'Rosalie developed an antidote!'

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1742-"Mr. Lancer, what should we do now?"

The assistant was already deathly terrified. He realized early on that this was Byron's means of revenge against Lancer Corporation.

Xander was also flustered. That question riled him up again.

After he blew up at the assistant, he panted and said, "Notify the old man immediately. The old man is the backbone of the Lancer family. With the old man coming forward, maybe the situation would not be so ugly."

The assistant agreed.

Xander said again, "Also, we must transfer the company's funds as soon as possible. Hurry up and retain as many funds as possible!"

He had a hunch that Byron's retributions were not that simple!

The assistant agreed. "I'll do it now!"

With that, he turned to leave.

The more Xander thought about it, the more uneasy he felt. Then he said, "Forget it, I'll go with you!"

He asked the nurse to bandage the wound hastily. Then, he got up and wanted to leave.

However, he felt himself collapse as soon as he stood up. He was unable to exert any strength at all. He could not lift his legs no matter what.

In the next second, his consciousness blurred, and his body fell powerlessly to the ground.

“Mr. Lancer! Are you okay?”

The assistant heard the commotion, glanced back, and hurried over.

The assistant’s eyes flickered with hesitation as he watched the unconscious person on the ground.

‘Byron would never let Lancer Corporation go. I would be dragged through the mud too if I continue to be associated with the Lancer family.’

For a moment, the assistant thought of running away.

Then, he thought, ‘To Byron, I had long been a member of the Lancer Corporation who helped the tyrant, even if I did run away, Byron would never let me go.’

Realizing this, the assistant turned his head and reminded the nurse. “Hurry up and help him!”

The nurse was also taken aback. She came back to her senses, quickly called for a stretcher, and pushed the man into the emergency room with her colleagues.

Andrius, too, learned that Lancer’s warehouses were sealed by authorities. He just felt relieved.

“By now, that lowlife Xander must’ve regretted being born!”

The two stood in the corridor. Byron ignored him and just looked longingly at the little woman in the ward.

Rosalie had already sat up. She looked better compared to her pale face in the afternoon, but she still seemed a little weak.

Mary and Linda were taking care of her. The three little ones had stopped crying and were happily talking to Rosalie.

The atmosphere in the ward was warm and joyful.

After receiving the news, the experts came to check on Rosalie and happened to meet the two at the door. They slowed down instinctively and greeted Byron cautiously.

Byron nodded slightly. "Don't tell her I'm outside."

The experts agreed and quickly walked in to check on Rosalie's vitals.

The experts were shocked to see Rosalie awake and gave her a full body examination in disbelief.

After the inspection, their gaze upon Rosalie turned from shock to admiration.

"How is it?" Rosalie asked, puzzled by their strange expressions.

The experts came back to their senses and explained. "There's no issue with your vitals and the previous arteriosclerosis had also improved. As long as you rest for a while, everything will return to its original state."

The three little ones cheered happily when they heard this. Rosalie smiled and patted their heads.
