My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1752-"You!"

Anger shot through Old Master Lancer, and it triggered his heart attack. His vision turned black, and he almost passed out again.

The assistant quickly held him upright. "Old Master Lancer, I'm telling the truth! No one can stop Mr. Lancer from doing what he wants to do. Please take care of your health. The Lancer family needs you!"

The assistant spoke as he patted Old Master Lancer's back.

Old Master Lancer's chest heaved violently. His face had turned pale, and his lips were purplish because he almost lost breath.

The assistant quickly took the pills and fed them to Old Master Lancer. Soon, Old Master Lancer felt better.

"Are you telling the truth?"

After recovering, Old Master Lancer's anger subsided gradually. He looked at the assistant sadly, trying to get an answer.

The assistant nodded warily.

"How ironic..." Old Master Lancer shook his head sadly. "The Lancer family has been doing good deeds for generations. Why did Xander turn out to be a despicable person?"

Then, Old Master Lancer apologized to the assistant, "It seems I misunderstood you, but why didn't you tell me he was doing this behind my back?"

Looking at Old Master Lancer's disappointed expression made the assistant feel bad. "Old Master Lancer, I couldn't do anything. I'm only an assistant. I would never dare to defy Mr. Lancer's order."

Old Master Lancer nodded and sighed. "Where is that bastard? Tell him to come to me! He has to give me an explanation for this matter. Otherwise, I'd disappoint the ancestors of the Lancer family for bringing up such an heir."

The assistant hesitated as he said, "Mr. Lancer..."

Old Master Lancer asked upon noticing the assistant's hesitation. "Where is he?" "Mr. Lancer must have already left Coast City. If he didn't leave, I'm afraid he might have to go to prison...."

The assistant replied guiltily.

Before, Xander had passed out as anger rushed through him. However, he was conscious for a while. During that time, he arranged for his assistant to look for Old Master Lancer, saying only Old Master Lancer could save the Lancer family from this situation.

As for Xander, he left the hospital that night and arranged his transportation. Then, he absconded before things got serious.

Hearing Xander had escaped made Old Master Lancer's rage explode within him. "He absconded just like that? How dare the bastard leave after causing all this trouble?! I was blind to have chosen him as the Lancer family's heir."

Old Master Lancer was trembling with rage.

If Xander could repent, apologize to the public, and plead guilty, they might be able to save the Lancer family's reputation.

However, that bastard absconded!

That was putting the Lancer family in an irreversible disaster!

Old Master Lancer lamented as he thought of the Lancer family's fate.

"The Lancer family has been in the pharmacology research industry for generations. Our ancestors even sacrificed their lives for this! Why happened to this generation? Why is money so important to him? Did he not think of what might happen to the Lancer family when the scandal is exposed?"

The assistant said defiantly, "Old Master Lancer, Lawrence Corporation..."

He wanted to ask Old Master Lancer to speak to Byron about it. Byron might show some mercy.

However, Old Master Lancer snapped.

"He wouldn't have attacked the Lancer family for no reason! If that bastard had run Lancer Corporation by the same standards as before, these scandals wouldn't exist. If Lawrence Corporation did not attack us this time, Xander might have done something worse."

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1753-The assistant could only shut his mouth since Old Master Lancer had flared up. He was afraid he might piss Old Master Lancer off so much that he would pass out again.

Meanwhile, Xander rushed to a pier on the outskirts of the city. He had a silver suitcase with him and nothing else.

Last night, after gaining consciousness, Xander was aware of the seriousness of the matter.

If he stayed back, Byron might not let him off easily even if the police did not arrest him!

Therefore, Xander planned to escape overnight and had already arranged everything.

Long before this incident, he had already done preparations by moving some of his wealth abroad.

As long as he could escape smoothly to a foreign country, he could still live a luxurious life.

There were plenty of opportunities for him to make a comeback in the future!

At that time, he would take revenge on every person who stood in his way!

Byron and Rosalie destroyed Lancer Corporation which he had painstakingly managed for so long.

When he returned, he would ensure they paid for what they did!

Recalling what happened last night, Xander's gaze turned cold.

After a moment, he still did not see any ferries at the dock. Anxiousness grew within him.

He wondered if Byron had discovered his whereabouts.

Thinking of this possibility raised panic in Xander. He took out his phone and wanted to urge the people responsible for bringing the ferry over.

However, he soon realized that making a call would expose his location. Thus, he gave up on doing so.

“Damn it. Where are they?”

Xander could not help cursing as he tried to find a new solution.

Just as he was about to leave, a honk sounded behind him.

Xander felt relieved and turned to look at the ferry approaching the shore.

“I’m sorry, Mr. Lancer, our ferry was caught in a bit of a storm on the way. That’s why we’re late.”

The captain greeted him eagerly and apologized respectfully.

Xander glared at him and asked, ‘When can we depart?’

The captain said, “We can leave now. Immediately!”

Then, he held out his hand to help Xander board the vessel.

Xander snorted coldly upon hearing that answer and boarded the ferry.

The captain walked behind him, looking at Xander’s back as he heaved a sigh of relief.

Fortunately, he managed to arrive before Xander left. Otherwise, he did not know how he would explain to that man...

‘You can rest here while I tell the crew to set sail at once.’

After leading Xander to the lounge, the captain spoke a few words before leaving.

Xander did not think much.

Now that he was on board, it was only a matter of time before he left.

Besides, the captain had promised to leave at once.

He opened the suitcase slowly and examined the papers and cash inside.

However, there was no sign of the ferry leaving even after he had checked everything.

Panic grew in Xander. He stood up and wanted to check on the situation.

As soon as he opened the door, he saw the captain rushing to the lounge.

'What's the matter? Why haven't we set sail?'

Xander asked anxiously.

The captain wiped away his cold sweat in a panic and repeatedly apologized, "I'm sorry, Mr. Lancer. Our ferry suffered some damage in the wind and waves just now. There's a small part that needs urgent repair. Please wait patiently as the crew gets it repaired."

Suspicion grew in Xander upon hearing that excuse.

First, they were late, and now the captain claimed the ferry needed to be fixed. Xander felt there was only a slim chance of such a coincidence occurring.

Xander looked at the captain in front of him.

The captain lowered his head, appearing afraid and humble for fear of upsetting him. He explained carefully, "Accidents happen when we're at sea, and my crew is experienced. You can rest assured that we won't keep you waiting for long!"

Hearing this eased Xander's anxiety a little. "How long? Give me a time." ' Half an hour at most! It's almost noon now. If you're hungry, I'll have lunch prepared for you. After lunch, we can depart!"

Xander was naturally in no mood to eat. He waved his hand in frustration." No. Prepare a cup of coffee for me!"

The captain hastily agreed, turned around, and ordered it to be done.

In a few minutes, someone brought the coffee.

Time passed minute by minute as anxiousness grew in Xander. He kept checking the things in his suitcase to divert his attention.

The coffee was served, but he did not look at the person who brought it. He took it and gulped it down.

However, it tasted so awful that he almost spat it out.

“What is this? You call this coffee?”

Xander smashed the cup and scolded, “Is this how you serve me after I paid you so much money? You don’t even show the most basic quality of punctuality!”

With that, Xander closed the suitcase and started to walk to the door. “Get out of my way! I want to get someone else to escort me!” “It’s my negligence. Mr. Lancer, you grew up with a silver spoon. Of course, you won’t be used to drinking instant coffee.”

A slightly sarcastic remark sounded.

Xander was sensitive now, so he flared up upon hearing this and turned around.

However, the person at the door was Andrius, who had his hand in his pocket. He looked at him with disdain as if he was looking at a clown.

Beside him were Byron and Rosalie, who stood side by side expressionlessly.

Xander froze upon seeing them and looked at the crew in disbelief. Then, he looked again at the three at the door.

It was them, indeed!

Why were they here?

He had arranged everything himself.

Even his assistant only knew that he was running away but nothing else!

How did they know?

“Mr. Lancer, do you want to look for another crew?”

Andrius lifted his eyebrows and asked, ‘What about me? I can sail well too! I’m just not very good at reading directions. You might not be able to get to the seas, but you might be sent to the police by accident.’

Xander staggered back in shock and asked, “How... did you all know?” “How did we know your plan?” Andrius asked in disdain. Then, he glanced at the person beside him.

Xander looked at Byron, who Andrius had glanced at, and was shocked.

Byron? How did he know?

When their eyes met, Byron finally spoke coldly.

"Mr. Lancer, did you think you would be fine if you absconded abroad after what you've done to Rosie?"

He had the same look in his eyes as last night.

No! It was colder than last night!

Xander recalled what happened to him last night and felt the pain in his wound. Even his face looked pale.

"Even if you flee to the ends of the earth, I won't let you off!"

Byron stated the fact expressionlessly. "What's more, I won't give you a chance to escape."

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1755-Xander's hands trembled as he held his suitcase.

When he glanced at Rosalie, he tried hard to calm himself down.

He could not lose to Byron, and he could not show his cowardliness before this woman.

"What do you want?"

He forced himself to look into the eyes of the three of them.

Byron's cold voice sounded after Xander asked him that question.

"At first, I only planned to get you locked up in prison after I married Rosie. Unexpectedly, you asked for a death wish by poisoning Rosie."

Byron's gaze turned colder as he said coldly, "If you had remained nice until Rosie and I got married, Lancer Corporation might not have had to go bankrupt. However, sending you to prison now will be far from enough!"

Hearing this, Xander was bewildered again.

No wonder he felt Byron's investigation on Lancer Corporation was too fast and too deep.

It turned out that Byron had already investigated the Lancer family before last night and had the evidence in his hand!

Byron might have been planning this since the poison took effect on Rosalie.

When he was planning his moves, Byron was already planning his revenge.

Realizing this, Xander felt a chill deep down.

It was as if he had been coiled by a snake, making it hard for him to breathe!

No! It was not time for him to surrender yet!

After all these years of planning to build a medical empire, how could he stop here?

Xander clenched his teeth and tried hard to calm himself down. He tried to think of a way to escape from these three.

Just then, Andrius' sarcastic voice sounded.

"It's a pity that a hypocrite like you has destroyed the Lancer family's dynasty. You're profit-oriented yet have poor medical skills."

Poor medical skills?

Xander gaze was cold as he glared at Andrius. "What did you say? How dare you question my medical skills? If I'm such a bad doctor, why did you guys experiment for so many days but still failed to find a way to cure the poison?"

Andrius shrugged his shoulders in disdain. "You're way inferior to Rosalie. It looks like you still don't realize it. You want to be better than Byron in the business field and exceed Rosalie in the medical field. Mr. Lancer, you should've been quicker to realize the truth instead of stubbornly provoking them." "You know nothing! As long as..."

Xander lost his rationale and glared at Rosalie. "As long as Rosalie joined hands with me, I could create a huge medical empire! I did it because she didn't know what was best for her! As long as she did what I said, I could ensure nothing happened to her, and she could enjoy all the fame and flory with me!"

He meant to say that it was Rosalie's fault that he ended up like this.

The ferry fell silent.

Andrius, who had been mocking him, frowned.

Rosalie also looked at him coldly. “Xander, I thought you would at least feel sorry after what you’ve done. Unexpectedly, you’re still stubborn and refuse to repent.”

Xander’s face flushed red. “Repent? Why should I repent? Your mindset is too shallow. Can’t I make money practicing medicine? Look at the history of the Lancer family and the Lawrence family! Why should I let the Lawrence family suppress us? I want to turn the tables. I did nothing wrong.”
