My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1771-Byron invited Chloe to have lunch at a high-end restaurant as per Rosalie's request.

When the couple arrived at the restaurant, Chloe happened to arrive as well.

Rosalie was not too dressed up; she simply had some skincare products on. Chloe's makeup was very delicate, she looked glamorous with a touch of nobility.

However, with just one glance, Chloe could see what a natural beauty Rosalie was, despite not wearing any makeup.

The Rosalie who landed in the hospital before looked haggard. Chloe never expected her to look completely different after recovery.

Chloe was slightly jealous inside. She still had blemishes on her face that must be covered with proper makeup.

"Hello, Miss Lincoln! We meet again!" Rosalie was generous. She greeted her before Byron could speak.

"Hello, Miss Jacobs! You're so beautiful! No wonder, Byron still misses you after all these years." Chloe could not help being a little sour. 1 'What on earth?' Byron was stunned for a moment and quickly quipped." Rosalie is indeed good-looking, but I am not such a superficial person. Appearance is not everything to me."

These words made Rosalie smile and glanced at Byron.

Chloe hurriedly added. "Of course, Miss Jacobs is not only beautiful but also has amazing abilities. Not only is she a well-known genius doctor, but she is also a leader in high-end medical technology. How many women of this caliber can there be in the world?"

Rosalie quickly shook her head at the excessive praise. "Miss Lincoln, please don't say that. I just had a small achievement. This time, you've sacrificed so much for my illness. You had a fake marriage with Byron under all that pressure, and I'm concerned your family must've misunderstood you. Thank you so much!"

These words were sincere.

However, with Chloe's cautious character, she could not help staring at Rosalie when those words fell into her ears.

She thought Rosalie was testing her.

Chloe quickly responded. "Oh, don't worry, it's okay. I've already explained it clearly to my family. The marriage certificate is fake and has been destroyed long ago. You don't need to worry about it, Miss Jacobs." "Let's go to the restaurant first. This isn't a suitable place to talk." Byron suggested.

The three entered the restaurant. Rosalie entered the private room and immediately pushed the menu to Chloe.

"Miss Lincoln, today's meal is my gratitude to you. So don't be polite, you can order whatever you like. Byron and I are fine."

It was just an ordinary remark, but that felt a little harsh to Chloe.

This seemed like an act of declaration.

Chloe took the menu with a smile and ordered some dishes without further ado.

After Chloe placed her orders, she saw Byron and Rosalie sitting so close to each other. They were in an extremely intimate position, and she felt a little uncomfortable for no reason.

'Wendy Fuller must've lost because she underestimated Rosalie.

'Rosalie is not a simple character, for sure.' "By the way, Miss Jacobs, I wonder if the supplements sent over are suitable for you? I wasn't sure of the arrangement, so I chose these supplements to send over to you," Chloe asked.

Rosalie smiled and thanked her. "Thanks for your kindness, Miss Lincoln. The supplements are suitable for people like me who are just recovering from a serious illness." "That's great! I admire you, Miss Jacobs. You were heavily poisoned at the time, and you could still develop an antidote for that strange poison to heal yourself in less than a day. That was so impressive beyond belief."

Chloe made some compliments, but Rosalie saw through it and did not want to be confused by her empty flattery.

'As my best friend said, pay attention to Chloe. After all, most people would probably let down their guard with her successive gestures of favor.'

Rosalie did not want anything to happen between her and Byron.

After all, it was not easy for her three kids to recover what they had once lost.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1772-At this time, Byron did not notice anything amiss.

His mind was completely on the little woman.

“Have some water, you’ve been talking for so long,” Byron handed Rosalie a glass, and she took it with a smile.

This involuntarily made Chloe feel lonely again.

Byron did not even bother with the decorum now. He did not even ask her if she was thirsty.

She could only call out to the server. “Waiter, I’m not used to your tea. Give me a glass of water with a slice of lemon.”

The glass of water with lemon arrived along with the food.

Chloe saw it again. Byron kept adding food to Rosalie’s plate. However, Byron did not express anything to her as a guest.

This made her feel awkward.

‘If I had known earlier, I would not have come.

‘Why didn’t I turn this invitation down? I’ve lost my posture to let Rosalie treat me to this meal.’

The atmosphere turned quiet several times, so Chloe initiated the conversation. “Byron, Miss Jacobs, why didn’t you bring the kids out for dinner today?”

She knew very well that today was not a weekend. The kids must be at school.

“The kids are at school, so we didn’t bring them today. Tomorrow is the weekend, so we’ll take them out for fun.”

Rosalie responded while putting food on Byron’s plate. She remembered that Byron liked to eat this type of fish.

Chloe could no longer stand the atmosphere, so she continued. "I wanted to see your three kids. I heard they are all very good-looking, aren't they?"

Byron suddenly became interested in the mention of his kids. He responded, "Yeah, they are. After all, it's my kids with Rosalie. How bad could the genetics be?"

The more Chloe heard it, the more flustered she was.

However, she carried on with the conversation. 'Really? Then, I must take a look next time. What gifts should I prepare for them?' "Miss Lincoln, there's no need for that. The kids don't need anything now. Plus, you must be busy after returning to Somerland, don't bother making these preparations. I'll bring them out next time and let you get to know them!" Rosalie responded. 2

Rosalie's instincts kicked in as they went through this meal. She noticed something was indeed wrong with the way Chloe looked at Byron. 1

It was a kind of concealed adoration.

The meal they had after was difficult for Chloe.

She hastily ate a few mouthfuls and declared she was full.

"Thank you, Miss Jacobs, for the hospitality of this meal. I've been really busy since returning home. I have an appointment with some classmates later. Shall we call it a day? What do you think?"

She wanted to leave quickly.

Rosalie simply nodded in agreement.

Chloe got up and was about to walk out of the private room.

She thought that Byron would see her off. After all, the man had always paid attention to etiquette.

Unexpectedly, Byron did not even lift a toe and continued to serve Rosalie food. "I remember you like this dish. Try it. This restaurant tastes more authentic."

Chloe could only leave with uneasiness in her heart.

Rosalie's eyes narrowed slightly watching her go.

After the series of incidents that Wendy caused and the fact that Xander almost killed her this time, Rosalie's state of mind somewhat changed.

She used to dodge the man's advances in fear. At that time, she did not know the man's intentions toward her sons. She was unsure what the Lawrence family would do to Lucian and Nox.

For this reason, she restrained herself and constantly persuaded herself to give up on Byron. In actual fact, she knew very well that she had a deep love for Byron.

Now, the kids had gotten their parents back. Everything was back on track. She would never allow anyone to destroy this happiness again.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1773-Rosalie thoroughly enjoyed this meal.

The dishes that Chloe ordered were all signature dishes, it was a pity that she did not taste them.

After lunch, Byron took Rosalie to the mall and bought a lot of clothes and shoes.

Still in high spirits, Byron picked out several dresses and asked Rosalie to try them on.

Every time she wears it, she could see the man's eyes dazzled brightly.

"Beautiful, you look great. This dress was made just for you." "This dress looks great too. It complements all the natural curves on your body!" "Yeah, you must get this set. You looked like you just graduated college when you wear this. You look young. Of course, I don't mean you are old! I just meant you are youthful!"

They had gone through an unknown number of outfits. In the end, there were too many shopping bags. After swiping the card, Byron asked the shopkeeper to deliver it to the villa in person.

For such a large sale transaction, the owner of the clothing store giddily agreed. Hundreds of thousands of dollars were recorded in the account at once.

After Byron left, several salesgirls were whispering and ran over to report to the boss that it was Byron, the president of the Lawrence Corporation, who came just now.

The boss was dripping in sweat when he heard it. He angrily scolded them for not reminding him earlier just now. He should have given President Lawrence a 50% discount.

After strolling around the mall for a while, Byron suddenly received a call from his mother, Melody.

Melody asked him to come to the Lawrence Family Mansion because she had something to discuss with him.

Rosalie overheard. "Send me back first, then." "Okay, I'll send you home first before going to the mansion. If there's nothing else, I'll drop by to pick up the kids from school. Please rest at home and don't try to work secretly again."

On the way back to the villa, Byron's reminders never stopped.

Rosalie listened with a smile, nodded obediently, and agreed to everything he asked.

She found that after all that had happened, the man's temperament had changed dramatically too.

In the past, Byron was a man of few words.

Byron drove to the mansion after sending Rosalie back to the villa.

As soon as he entered the door, the atmosphere in the hall felt icy.

Melody, looking sullen, came up with a rapid-fire of questions. "Byron, can you explain to me what happened to the marriage certificate with Chloe?"

Byron was unmoved. He had expected that his mother would intervene in this matter.

He explained casually. "Mom, the marriage certificate was just a last-minute solution to deal with Xander Lancer. The marriage is fake, Chloe should have mentioned it too, right?" "She did, she did mention it. Did you both conspire to make light of this? That's a marriage certificate, how could you do as you please?!" Melody was frustrated.

Originally, she was full of joy that her son was finally able to cut ties with Rosalie.

Finally, she was able to have a daughter-in-law that she approved of. Although the Lincolns were not as powerful as the Fullers back then, they were still considered a pedigree family.

She was blindly happy for several days.

In the end, it turned out to be a farce.

'What was Chloe even thinking? Why would she put up an act with my son just to save Rosalie, whom she had never met before?

'This Chloe lacks a spine!' "Mom, this is not a joke. It was all to save Rosalie's life! I'm grateful for Chloe's help, and I will cooperate with the Lincolns more that would benefit them in the future!"

Byron's voice turned involuntarily cold when his mother took saving Rosalie's life so lightly.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1774-Melody's face froze, and her gaze turned cold. "I didn't mean that. I didn't say that Rosalie's life isn't important. But, have you ever considered that the Lincolns would believe that the marriage was real and announced to the public? Don't you need to consider Chloe's reputation?"

Byron did not want to have any conflict with his mother.

After thinking about it, he calmed down and replied. "I thought about it at that time. You can also ask Chloe about this matter. I only did this after asking for her consent."

Melody raised her eyebrows immediately. "Agree? Of course, she would agree. Chloe has been good to you ever since you two were little. Didn't she let you have any toys you wanted when you were a child? She is just being kind."

Byron balked.

He had a feeling that his mother was about to make a fuss about this matter.

Melody became aggressive. "Am I right? Even if Chloe agrees, you can't just mope over this matter. Have you been to the Lincolns after everything? At least go and explain to Chloe's parents." "Mom, you are right. I was indeed negligent about this matter. I will go to the Lincoln's." Byron's tone softened a little, he was indeed not thoughtful.

Melody heard her son's tone soften, but there was still an unknown anger in her heart. She continued to attack.

"Thanks to this, I had extensive discussions with Mr. Lincoln on how to hold the wedding and where to book the banquet. Great, now I'm really ashamed!"

Byron was deeply shaken. 'My mother would quickly arrange for me to marry another woman because she can't wait to get rid of Rosalie.'

However, he had to give way to the elders. So, he replied, "Mom, I was indeed rude this time. I'm sorry, alright? Could you pick a time and make an appointment with Uncle Everett? I'll thank and apologize to them in person."

Melody did not expect her son to become so gentle.

In the past, he always had a head-to-head approach, but now he was persuasively gentle.

Suddenly, she was dumbfounded and did not know how to vent her dissatisfaction.

'This Rosalie is tough indeed!' "Since you said so, then let's do so. Then again, have you not considered Chloe? She is gentle and kind, and she could greatly help you too since she came back from studying abroad."

His mother's incessant need to still mess around with his private life touched a raw nerve in him. Byron's face turned viciously angry.

Frightened, Melody was taken aback.

"Mom, don't ever say such things anymore."

This was Byron's bottom line.

Melody's face was awkward. She tried to ask again after a while, "Rosalie should be better now, right? I didn't say she is unsuitable. She is indeed capable, and her medical skills are superb. However, her two sons would always belong to another man. This is huge damage to our family's reputation."

Byron's pupils dilate immediately as he looked directly at his mother.

"By the way, I almost forgot to tell you about this. Those two kids, Lucian and Nox, are actually me and Rosalie's kids! They were born together with Estie. They are triplets!"

Melody was stunned on the spot.

She looked at her son. There was not an ounce of glib or deceit in her son's serious expression.

His gaze was not dodging, but incomparably dignified.

"What did you say? How could those two kids be yours? No, it's impossible

Melody could not believe it.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1775—"Mom, that's the truth! Whether you believe it or not, Lucian and Nox are both my sons. They were born along with Estie six years ago. Rosalie thought that Estie died young by mistake. At that time, Grandpa must've arranged for someone to pick Estie up. That person never expected Rosalie to give birth to triplets and took two away with her."

Sometimes, the truth can be so absurd.

Yves' revelation, Rosalie's acknowledgment, coupled with the undisguised closeness of the bond between the boys and himself, Byron could fully confirm the truth of the matter.

However, Melody could not believe it.

She suddenly raised her voice sharply. "Byron, you can't just believe everything that woman says. What now? Is this a new version? The godsons you adopted a while ago is not enough. Is she still trying to trick you into admitting them as your blood? That woman can really spew nonsense!" 1

Melody's perception of her son changed as she spoke.

'I wonder if he was bewitched by Rosalie. With such powerful medical skills, it's not difficult for her to use psychotropic drugs to make people lose their minds.' i "No, it's not. Mom, I know it's hard for you to believe this. But it's true!"

Byron did not expect that he could explain things clearly in one go.

"Byron, you have to think carefully. That woman's scheming is too scary. It's fine to have a godson. If you admit them as your real sons, does that mean they want our family's entire inheritance?"

Melody already had a bad opinion of Rosalie. Such remarks now made her think that Rosalie conspired to take their wealth from the start.

"This is really scary! Six years ago, she was abandoned by the Lawrence family and now she is trying to take revenge upon our family. Hell hath no fury a woman scorned!"

Melody kept talking to herself. If she could, she would instill her opinions into Byron as soon as possible. 1

Byron's face looked increasingly terrible at this point.

There was iciness between his eyes as he squinted slightly. He gritted his teeth and unclenched them again.

“Mom, you’d better shut up. Do you take your son for a fool? Also, don’t judge Rosalie in front of me from now on. I know what kind of person she is.”

With a heavy tone, Byron became impatient and did not want to communicate with Melody anymore.

Melody still refused to give up. As her son was about to leave, she quickly stopped him. She sounded deep in grief. “Son, you can’t listen to that woman for everything!”

Byron ignored her. He glanced at Melody coldly, shook off her hand, and walked away from her.

In an instant, Melody became frustrated.

“Rosalie Jacobs, you are really something! I underestimated you too much!” “This woman is a witch. No, I absolutely can’t. How can such a woman enter the Lawrence family?!”

Melody muttered to herself as if her heart was on fire. She was so angry that she felt uncomfortable everywhere.

“What should I do? How can I get rid of Rosalie quickly? Those two b* stards could never be descendants of the Lawrence family! They do not look high-born, no matter how you look at them. Why did my son believe her?” 1

She felt that she was going to have a heart attack, so she hurried to the coffee table and took a sip of water.

Chloe, who dropped by unexpectedly, was taken aback by her flustered appearance.

The young lady had her hands full with shopping bags. She entered the door and exclaimed, “Aunty Melody!”
