My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1788-The dolphin show began, and all three were excited, though it was not their first time watching it.

The keeper's interaction with the dolphins was good, and the audience applauded the performance.

The dolphins were also lovely, constantly spraying water to the front row of the audience. The three kids kept waving at them, and the dolphins seemed to sense their enthusiasm as they swam closer.

Estelle touched a dolphin's head and smiled. "Daddy, Mommy, its head is so soft!"

The little dolphin also made a sound as if it was greeting Estelle.

Then, Estelle immediately communicated with the dolphin. " Little dolphin, come here. I'll introduce you to my two brothers."

Lucian and Nox stood up and approached Estelle. They also touched the little dolphin. The dolphin's parents were nearby but did not seem anxious about it.novel.xo

The keeper encouraged them, saying, "It seems that our calf likes these three kids. Humans and animals can be close too! We must be kinder to marine life in the future. They're also a part of the big family on Earth."

Just then, a child behind the triplets moved forward. "Daddy,

I want to touch the dolphin too!"

A fat middle-aged man squinted at Rosalie and said unkindly, "Can you ask your children to step aside and let other children touch the baby dolphin?"

Byron frowned and glared at the fat man coldly. His oppressive temperament scared that man.

Rosalie rejected him, saying, "Sorry, we chose these seats ourselves. You didn't choose to sit in the front row because you were afraid of the dolphins squirting water at you. You might want to get close to the dolphins now, but the dolphins might not want to be close to your kid."

The fat man froze, but he did not want to admit defeat. He glared at Rosalie angrily.

Byron had his eyes on this fat man. If he dared to do anything unreasonable, he would ensure that the fat man regretted it.

The performance time was limited. Looking at the calf that was unwilling to leave the three little ones, something struck the keeper's mind. She asked, "The calf will be performing later. Do you guys want to perform with it?"

"Yes!" Estelle shouted.

Lucian and Nox looked at their parents to get their permission. After getting their parents' approval, they nodded to the keeper.

"Okay then. Let's invite the three kids up the stage to perform with the calf. Ladies and gentlemen, let's give the kids applause to encourage their brave choice!"

Instantly, a burst of warm applause came from the audience seats.

It was not out of courtesy. They liked the kids because the kids looked adorable.

However, a voice of disapproval came from the crowd. "If it's a performance, I'm sure my son can join in. You won't reject my son as that would be discriminatory, right?"

The fat man practically admitted that his son was not goodlooking.

The keeper hesitated. She looked at the kid, who seemed a little big-sized. She was worried the calf might be afraid and it might cause unnecessary trouble.

"I can play with the baby dolphin. I won't do anything to it. It's alright!"

Then, the boy headed toward the stage from the audience seat without being invited.

The keeper looked at him and finally agreed. "Yes, but please follow our instructions! You can do that, right?"

The fat boy patted his chest as he looked at the keeper with disdain. "It's just a little dolphin. I'm not going to do anything to it. There's no problem at all!"

He then looked back at his father. The fat man also looked cocky. He glanced at Byron and Rosalie with a smirk.
