My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1821-This school was no longer in use and had moved to another place.

However, the old campus had been transformed into an activity center for the elderly. The elderly from nearby communities would always come here for leisure.

Many retired teachers still lived in dormitories on campus.

Cars could not enter the compound, so the three of them went on foot. It did not take long before they arrived at the dormitory building.

It was a very old, five-story building with rows of rooms, just like the classrooms in those days.

Judging from the laundry drying outside, there were not many teachers living here anymore.

Chloe made a phone call. Then, the old principal's daughter, a plain-looking, middle-aged woman, came out to greet her.

"Hello, my dad has just woken up, so he can chat with you," There were unmistakable traces of tears in her eyes.

It was apparent that she had just cried bitterly.

Chloe walked in front with Rosalie following her. Byron was at the very back.

He asked the principal's daughter, "Do you have any medical records? What did the hospital say?"

"President Lawrence, thank you for your visit. However, my father's illness... I don't think there's any hope of recovery." The principal's daughter's face was filled with sadness again as she said that.

Byron and Chloe entered the room and saw the old principal lying on the bed. He was skinny and weak. Both the former students fell silent.

As a doctor, Rosalie sighed in her heart when she saw this.

The most fearful thing in life was falling seriously ill in old age. Not only would the patient's descendants lose their wealth from all the medical bills, but the patient would also suffer before death.

Once upon a time, the principal's eyes were full of light as he dedicated his life to education.

Now, those eyes had become cloudy. He was unable to identify people.

Byron and Chloe both took the initiative to greet him loudly, for fear that the old principal could not hear.

Finally, Byron introduced Rosalie to the old man. "Sir, this is my wife, a doctor. Let her take a look at you today."

The old principal became excited when he heard that. A smile appeared on the corner of his mouth.

The principal's daughter suppressed her sadness and grabbed her father's hand excitedly. 'Dad, let Dr. Jacobs examine you. Also, Mr. Lawrence and Miss Lincoln are willing to pay for your medical treatment. From now on, you don't have to worry about money!"

"T-This isn't appropriate! I'll be fine. I've accepted it! My students are all over the world! I'm not afraid of death, I'm not afraid of-"

The old principal's voice was hoarse and broken, but every word had conviction and was so powerful.

The principal's daughter took out the medical records and handed them to Rosalie. The light in the room was not bright enough, so she turned around and went outside to check.

Byron asked the principal's daughter to go out as well and explain the situation to Rosalie in detail.

The principal rambled on and began to ask Byron and Chloe how they were doing now.

After a while of rambling, he kept praising Byron.

This was because Byron had donated to the school many times before. Even the new campus was funded by Lawrence Corporation.

Byron felt some self-blame as he listened patiently to the old principal. "I'm sorry I haven't been doing well enough these years. I didn't even come to visit you!"

"It's okay, it's okay! Byron, your family is huge. You must be busy with so many ongoing duties. In fact, your family has made a lot of contributions to our city's economy!"

Byron nodded silently.

Outside the room, Rosalie listened to the principal's daughter's detailed explanation of the medical report. Then, she finally looked at the medical records and all the attached images. This was indeed a serious illness that required high medical fees.

However, she thought of the Greenbloom Needling Technique she was learning and figured she could pair it with her own medicine.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1822-The principal's daughter did not have much hope at all, but after looking at Rosalie's serious expression, she hurried into the room and brought out a cup of tea.

"Miss Jacobs, let's have some tea."

Rosalie took the teacup, took a sip, and continued to stare at the materials.

"Ma'am, let's change your father's living environment next. Go stay in our hospital. You don't have to worry about the medical costs. It's all free. You just need to get someone to take care of his diet and daily needs. It'll take about a month. r»

As Rosalie spoke, her eyes were clear of emotions.

The principal's daughter was astonished.

Free treatment?

She subconsciously trembled all over with excitement. One must know, in order to treat her father's illness, she did not have much money left. On top of that, she had a family to feed, and her children were still in college.

"Miss Jacobs, are you serious?" she asked, afraid that it was just a joke.

Rosalie nodded emphatically. She raised her eyes, looked at her, and explained, "He needs to undergo an operation. I can't guarantee his life expectancy, but according to my past experience, I can say that there's an 85% chance he'll live for another five years!"

The principal's daughter's face froze on the spot, and she was completely stunned.

"Five years more? Is that what you mean?" She could not restrain her joy.

Rosalie nodded. "Yes, that's what I mean in a nutshell."

In an instant, the principal's daughter covered her face and burst into tears.

"Really? Thank you so much, Miss Jacobs! Thank you so much. You're our family's savior! My kids know that their grandpa is seriously ill, and they've lost their spirit to study hard at school. Now, I can finally tell them this piece of good news."

When the middle-aged woman burst into tears, Rosalie quickly comforted her.

Not long after, Byron and Chloe also came out.

"Sir has fallen asleep. We didn't prepare much. I heard that you have two children. One is in college and the other is still in high school, right?"

When Byron saw the crying middle-aged woman and heard Rosalie's comfort and encouragement, he understood what was going on.

Chloe learned that Rosalie was able to treat the old principal and felt happy for the principal's family.

Of course, she also envied Rosalie's ability.

The principal's daughter nodded in response to Byron.

"Your family may have run out of resources because of the old principal's illness. I'll give you one million so that your two children can finish their studies with peace of mind! Let me know if it's not enough."

"I don't have a lot of cash reserves now, but I still have 300,000 to 400,000 to spare. So, I'll chip in as well!"

Byron and Chloe both promised to give a sum of money in order to alleviate the principal's daughter's worries.

At this time, the principal's daughter was completely dumbfounded. She did not know how to respond.

Suddenly, she dropped to her knees and wailed loudly.

Rosalie had sharp eyesight and quick hands. She grabbed the woman before she could kneel down.

Byron also hurried forward to prevent her from kneeling.

“Don’t do this. The old principal has devoted his entire life to the cause of education and is overworked. We want to do this for him. In addition, we’ll mobilize other former students to raise more funds.”

“That’s right. The principal lived a clean, honest life without any greed. How can we let him be trapped by money?”

Byron and Chloe spoke up and finally dispelled the principal’s daughter’s doubts.

“Byron, I’ll contact Mary immediately. I’ll ask her to arrange a car to pick up the principal.” Rosalie’s mind was still fixated on the old man’s illness.

She picked up her mobile phone and contacted Mary, who responded and dispatched a car immediately.

Once everything was settled, the three of them bid farewell to the principal’s daughter. The principal’s daughter looked at their backs as she burst into tears uncontrollably.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1823-“Chloe, let’s have a meal together. Fortunately, you were paying attention to this matter. Otherwise, I wouldn’t know what would’ve happened to the old principal. If this situation was delayed further, things might be irreparable.”

Byron extended an invitation, but Chloe politely declined.

He did not insist further and left the school with Rosalie by car.

On the way, Rosalie received a call from her best friend. The car arranged by Mary had arrived and the principal was on the way to the hospital.

“Miss Director, you did a good job!” Rosalie chuckled and teased her.

This stirred up Mary’s complaint in an instant. “Can you stop teasing me now? I thought the director was just in charge of calling for a meeting with everyone once in a while. I didn’t expect to deal with so many things. Oh my god, do you know what time I get off work now? Also, I was looking forward to enjoying the villa you gave me. Great, I’m so busy that I don’t even know if there’s water or electricity at home... w

The rambling went on. Then, Rosalie comforted her, reminding her that the director’s salary was high and she could get in touch with more excellent doctors.

Unexpectedly, Mary secretly asked, "Where's Andrius? What is he upto recently? He seems very busy. Is he exhausted? Should he come to the hospital for a physical examination?"

Rosalie was stunned for a moment, and now she understood. Even though Andrius was a blockhead, he was still her best friend's favorite.

"Okay, your idea is good. I'll ask Byron to have him go to the hospital for a physical examination. That way, Andrius can experience your gentleness!" Rosalie agreed to help create a chance for the two of them again.

Unexpectedly, Mary sneered.

"Of course! I'll make sure to let him experience my gentleness! This time, I'll prepare a puke bag for him instead!

Rosalie felt her scalp tingling, wondering what kind of punishment her best friend would impose on Andrius.

Byron saw Rosalie laughing non-stop after she hung up the phone. He could not help but ask curiously.

She told him all about Mary's crazy idea, and Byron laughed too. "It seems that Andrius won't be able to escape now!"

"Yeah, but I think the Quirkies must be in trouble now. I never expected Andrea to go against the family."

Rosalie's worry hit the nail accurately on the spot.

At this time, in the Quirkies' living room, Andrea was packing her things as her parents tried to make her say. They also tried to intercede with Andrius.

However, Andrius' face was gloomy, and he shouted coldly, "Dad, Mom, leave her alone! She's out of her mind now. The fact that she's being used by Alistair has brought great losses to our family. She really thought that Alistair would hand over those businesses to her?"

"Yes, you're so right. You're right about everything! The Quirkies depend on you! You even robbed your own sister's business! You're a beast!"

Andrea cursed loudly, feeling livid in her heart. She raised the price to make more money and help the family business at the same time.

Unexpectedly, her brother snatched all the goods from those companies back for Byron and Rosalie's sake.

Fortunately, Alistair did not blame her too much. Otherwise, she would not know how to face him.

Now, she had made up her mind to leave the Quirkes completely.

‘The Quirkes will never provide any help, and they’re far inferior to Alistair.

‘That man will win for sure.

‘Until then, Brother can just wait and cry. How can he possibly achieve anything by just being Lawrence Corporation’s lackey all the time?’

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1824-After Andrea packed berthings, she left Quirke Mansion without looking back.

His parents persuaded Andrius to forgive his sister, but Andrius retorted in all seriousness, “I wasn’t the one who drove her away tonight. She knows she’s in the wrong and wants to run away from home! Also, please don’t spoil her anymore. Thankfully, Byron doesn’t intend to pursue the matter, or else our family would be ruined by her!”

With that said, he became upset and got up to leave.

Andrius drove with the windows down, letting the cold wind hit his face.

Suddenly, he wanted to drink but realized he did not have anyone to drink with.

Byron would never refuse, but Andrius did not want to interfere with his buddy’s happy family life now.

He could ask Luther, but he had been too busy recently.

After thinking about it, Andrius realized that he did not have many friends.

He had been too serious all these years.

For Quirke Enterprise to grow stronger and follow in Lawrence Corporation’s footsteps, every step of his planning was thoroughly calculated.

Now, the Quirkles had indeed grown stronger. Not just the medicinal materials business, but he had also made many investments with Byron. Everytime, Byron would never forget about him and offered him a part of the investment opportunity.

His sister did not understand this at all.

He parked the car on the bridge over the river, got out, and looked at the river in the distance. His mood began to slowly calm down as he felt the gust of cold wind blow.

Andrius was good at adjusting his emotions. Just when he was about to turn around, he suddenly saw a car hit the rear of his car without any scruples.

It was a lady's car.

The terrified woman screamed. Andrius took a look at the rear of his Mercedes-Benz. There was not much damage.

The woman was still in shock, and she screamed a few more times.

Andrius just watched quietly. When the woman walked out, he walked toward her with an apologetic face.

The woman had a graceful figure and light makeup on her face. She looked like an employee of some company.

She looked at the collision. Andrius' car was fine, but the bumper of her car was smashed.

"Sir, I'm sorry. I'm really sorry. I just learned to drive, and I just bought the car, so I'm not very good at driving. I saw your car parked just now. I wanted to turn, but there were other cars beside me. I was frightened, so..."

She raised her eyes and saw Andrius' face. She could not help being startled.

'This man is so handsome!'

With handsome features and a chiseled jawline, coupled with those slightly melancholic eyes, this man was undeniably attractive.

She suddenly rejoiced that she crashed into the car of a handsome guy. She hurriedly introduced herself, "Sir, my name is Beatrice Murray. Since this is a traffic accident, let's call the police. I'll compensate you for the damages to your car."

Andrius glanced at the woman but immediately waved his hands. “No, it’s okay. There’s no need to waste police force on such a small accident. You’re responsible for the accident, but I shouldn’t have parked my car here. Let’s settle this ourselves.”

Then, he glanced at Beatrice. ‘She shouldn’t be injured.’

Andrius turned around and planned to drive away.

However, Beatrice was anxious. She did not want to miss such an interesting encounter.

“Sir, how about this? Let’s exchange contact information to avoid any disputes. What do you think? I’m afraid you might regret it later!” Beatrice’s reason was sufficient.

Andrius frowned lightly. “Miss, as I said just now, I parked the car at the wrong spot. However, you’re the one who rear- ended me, so you would be at fault no matter what.

Therefore, there won’t be any further dispute. I need to go now, so excuse me!”

With that, Andrius got into the car, started the car, and left quickly.

Beatrice was stunned. After a few seconds, a smile slowly appeared on the corner of her mouth. “This man seems quite mysterious. However, I remember his license plate number!”

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1825-Andrius’ car arrived at Lawrence Manor.

He came here in a hurry after receiving a call, thinking it was for something important.

When he entered the living room, he saw Byron with a calm and relaxed expression on his face. He invited him to sit down for tea.

After a brief chat about the supply material follow-up, Byron suddenly changed the topic to Andrius’ health problems.

"I'm fine. I'm not sick or in pain. No matter what, I'm also in the medicine business, so I'm naturally careful about my health. Buddy, what's your concern?" Andrius was curious.

There was a glint in Byron's eyes. "Oh, I don't mean something's wrong with your health. It's just that you've been busy with your family's business in the past few years. Shouldn't you go for a physical examination?"

Andrius nodded and agreed. "Alright, buddy. Since you said so, I'll do it."

"I've already made an appointment for you. Go do it in the hospital under your Sister-in-law. It's better to go for the services of one of our own!" Byron kept expressing his concern so that Andrius would not notice anything amiss.

Obviously, Byron was overthinking it.

As expected, Andrius had a thick head. He nodded and agreed. "Is tomorrow alright? I'll be there tomorrow morning! IV

Byron nodded but could not help imagining in his mind. * How will Mary punish this dense young man?'

"By the way, Byron, I noticed that some of our overseas customers have had some problems recently. The complaint rate of many customers has increased, and they want to lower the price. I'll continue to investigate further."

Work was Andrius' life. He never stopped prioritizing business.

Byron nodded, and his gaze changed. "There's no need to investigate. It's just Alistair Murray playing tricks to win over our clients. Don't startle the snake now. Let him have his way first. We have enough backup clients. Since some people don't want to occupy the market, we can completely replace all the agents. We'll wait for these people to breach the contract first!"

Andrius nodded emphatically as his admiration for Byron increased a little.

He was still not as good as Byron in terms of his sensitivity and focus. As soon as Byron realized the problem, he found the root cause and even had a solution.

Strategizing was the key to decisive victory even from a thousand miles away!

The two chatted for a while. Andrius still felt guilty about his sister's betrayal, but Byron did not care at all.

Rosalie settled the kids down, and when she went downstairs, Andrius immediately stood up and said goodbye without disturbing them.

“How did it go? Did he agree?” Rosalie asked.

There was a cheeky smile on the corner of the man’s mouth. “He’s going to have a physical examination tomorrow. I just feel that it would be really interesting if these two people fell in love.”

“Yeah, I want to watch that happen too. He’s better than me. I’ve worked so hard and I haven’t experienced anything that sweet!” Rosalie sighed and gave the man a woeful look.

Byron’s body tingled. He was only there to watch the plot unfold for his buddy, so how did he become implicated now?

Immediately, he restrained his expression and became focused. He pulled Rosalie over and held her by his side.” Yes, yes, my wife is right. I haven’t done enough these years, so....”

“So what?” Rosalie frowned when she realized that Byron was kneeling on one knee.

Her entire face froze!

Byron took out a small, black, elegant box from his pocket and slowly opened it.

At this moment, his eyes were intensely focused, deep, and full of tenderness.

Rosalie was stunned, but her heart was filled with excitement.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1826-“Rosalie Jacobs. May I ask if you’ll marry me again?

“In the past so many years, I’ve let you down and owed you! You’ve never experienced the romance of love and the happiness of a blissful marriage. Life has forced you to grow and made you mature way beyond your age. You’ve suffered enough for the kids, and you’ve waited so many years for me. I was ignorant, and everything is my fault.

“There’ll probably and always be obstacles in your heart. You must be confused and may even wonder if I’m choosing to be with you because of the three children. Let me tell you, not at all! Everything about you is endlessly attractive to me. In my heart, I wouldn’t want to spend the rest of my life with anybody else. I love you, Rosalie Jacobs! So, please, marry me again!”

Byron's affectionate confession, his serious expression, his sincere eyes...

Rosalie's heart softened as her body could not help but tremble.

Tears could not stop flowing in an instant.

She thought, 'Am I going to get back together with Byron without any announcement?'

However, she kept feeling that something was missing.

However, she reminded herself, 'I shouldn't mind it. I'll just try to enjoy the love that Byron has for me, and that'll be enough.'

Even so, after laying on the man's arm for countless nights, she could not restrain herself. She wished for a solemn ceremony every time she looked at his sleeping face.

She did not want to be confused anymore.

Now, she could see everything clearly right in front of her eyes.

Everything seemed a little plain, and there was no audience.

Even so, she was satisfied. She smiled, nodded heavily, and slowly stretched out her hand. Her ring finger was slightly raised.

The man also smiled. That smile seemed to make Rosalie see the joy of getting a toy he liked when he was a child; of solving a math problem when he was still a youth; and of being in charge of a huge business empire when he was an adult. His smile was invincible and carefree.

Byron finally put the diamond ring on the woman's ring finger solemnly.

Immediately, they kissed.

"Get up quickly. If someone sees it, your image will be ruined!" Rosalie looked at the diamond ring and smiled sweetly.

Byron got up slowly, wrapped her in his arms, lowered his head, and kissed her deeply on the forehead.

At this time, all the lights in the hall suddenly went out.

Rosalie thought there was a power outage, so she looked around and was about to ask the man why the backup power supply had not been activated.

In the next second, the ceiling above the living room suddenly turned into a bright starry sky. All the brilliant light spots were meant to be stars.

Immediately afterward, many figures appeared.

“Congratulations to my best friend, who’s finally marrying Mr. Byron Lawrence again!” Mary was the first to appear. She held a bright bouquet in her hand and handed it to Byron.

Byron handed the bouquet to Rosalie. Immediately afterward, Rosalie was hugged by her best friend.

Mary could not stop crying as she whispered in Rosalie’s ear, “Finally, I see you happy!”

Rosalie’s tears, which had stopped, suddenly burst forth again.

Immediately afterward, there were a lot of explosions.

Countless fireworks rose into the sky outside and trickled like rain.

The three little kids were not asleep yet. They all smiled and ran toward Daddy and Mommy.

“Daddy, Mommy finally agreed to your marriage proposal!”

“Mommy, are you happy?”

“Mommy, we lied to you. We haven’t slept yet. Daddy asked us to prepare this. Don’t blame us, okay?”

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1827-How could Rosalie be angry? She bent down and happily kissed the three little kids.

At this time, Benedict and Melody appeared and gradually came over.

Both of them were dressed formally. Benedict wore a suit and leather shoes, and Melody even wore an evening gown.

"Rosalie, this is what our family owes you. It's only right for Byron to propose to you, and all the proper procedures that should be followed must be completed. We're also very happy that you said yes to Byron!"

Benedict's face was full of joy. He could no longer disappoint such a good daughter-in-law.

Melody's face was slightly embarrassed, but she still walked up to Rosalie with a look of apology in her eyes. "Rosalie, it was all my fault in the past. I was so wrong. I hope you can forgive me. Give me a chance to remedy my past mistakes. Now, I'm really happy from the bottom of my heart. It's also my blessing that you can marry Byron!"

At this time, Rosalie was immersed in incomparable happiness. She did not have the time to get angry with Melody.

Byron nodded in agreement with his father's request. "Later, we must take wedding photos, have a wedding ceremony, and go on a honeymoon trip! Nothing less than that!"

Mary immediately interjected. She pouted and sternly reminded him, "Most definitely, you must! The Lawrence family is not short of money, so you must give my Rosalie the best. Do you understand?"

Byron nodded obediently.

This sudden marriage proposal made Rosalie's heart more stable and grounded.

This night, Rosalie fell into a deep sleep due to the unknown amount of passion.

In her dream, she was pregnant again with the fourth baby. She could not see the child's face clearly, but they had a sweet angelic voice. They called out, Mommy, Mommy, hurry up. I want to play with my brothers and sisters.'

Contrary to Rosalie's sweetness, this night was a stormy one for Andrea.

She packed her luggage and put it in Alistair's villa. Then, she waited and waited, but Alistair did not arrive.

The estrangement from her brother and the conflict with her parents made her collapse mentally.

She ran to the bar, got very drunk, and waited for Alistair's call, but the phone never rang.

Even her parents stopped calling her. She could only think that it was her brother's cruelty!

Stumbling out of the bar with nowhere to go, Andrea could only take a taxi and return to Alistair's villa.

Before she walked in, she saw Alistair's car returning, but there was a beautiful figure in the passenger seat.

Although Andrea's drunken eyes were hazy, she could see that the woman was very young and full of youthful vigor. She had an alluring figure.

At this moment, she was devastated. Her eyes were fixated on the woman.

The weather was cool, so Alistair immediately took off his coat and put it on for the other woman.

There was a smile on her face. The other woman looked pampered and adored.

Andrea could not take it anymore. This was the man she had been waiting for all her life, but she never expected he would be such a scumbag.

She could let it go when Alistair got entangled with Wendy. She took it as just a revenge ploy against Byron.

Now, Andrea felt that she was the stupidest woman in the world.

She was willingly used by him and had willingly given herself to him. She willingly turned against her own family and cut ties with her brother for his schemes.

She walked over quickly. The alcohol in her head was suppressed by the huge anger boiling within her.

She stepped forward. Before Alistair could react, she slapped that woman's pretty cheek hard.

Immediately, she looked at Alistair angrily and roared angrily.

"Alistair Murray, how could you do this to me? You're a heartless man!"

She yelled as her tears kept falling.

Andrea had completely collapsed at this moment. She raised her hand, wanting to slap the scumbag hard as well.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1828-Andrea's hand was tightly grasped.

Alistair's eyes seemed to shoot fire as he roared angrily." Andrea, what are you doing?"

"Sl*t! Scumbag! Cheaters!" Andrea was not afraid. Her eyes were full of hatred.

She cursed angrily and looked at the young woman, wishing she could strangle her to death.

There was a crisp sound.

Alistair slapped Andrea hard.

"Are you nuts? She's my sister." Alistair gritted his teeth and shouted coldly.

He immediately looked at his sister Beatrice.

Beatrice covered her face. She had never been slapped in her life. The pain caused her to tear, and she stared blankly at the drunken Andrea.

"Brother, is this your... girlfriend?" Beatrice's eyes reflected deep disgust.

Andrea was stunned by the slap and also by Alistair's statement.

She completely sobered up. She froze in place, unable to speak for a longtime.

Alistair brought his sister into the villa, coaxed her gently, and put some ointment to soothe her face.

'That woman is his sister?

'Upon closer look, they did have similar eyes!'

Andrea suddenly felt weak all over as she fell limply to the ground.

"Brother, what's up with all this luggage? Is it your girlfriend's? Wow, she's so 'friendly' to me and gave me a slap during our first meeting. If Mom and Dad find out, this girlfriend of yours can forget about entering our door!"

Beatrice came to Coast City under her brother's arrangement in order to help him take care of the future business expansion.

If Beatrice had not run into that handsome guy on the bridge by chance tonight, her mood now would definitely be more irritable.

"I'll make her apologize to you for sure! She wasn't aware and thought I was with another woman. Isn't it normal for girlfriends to react like this?" Alistair comforted her by saying everything he could.

Finally, Beatrice gave her brother a license plate number.

"Brother, if you help me investigate this license plate number as soon as possible, I won't be angry with you. However, I'm still very angry with your girlfriend!"

Alistair readily agreed. Investigating a license plate was really easy.

"This car hit your car? Like a hit and run? You can just call the police. However, it's not impossible for us to settle this in private."

When Alistair went to pick up his sister, he saw that the front of the car was damaged. Now, he was being asked to investigate the license plate, so it must be to investigate the person involved in the crash.

"No, no, don't get me wrong. I'm not like your girlfriend, who just does things mindlessly. As I said, just find out the owner of this license plate for me. You don't need to worry about the rest. I crashed the other party's car. I just want to pay for the damages!"

Beatrice kept quiet for a while. She was slapped for nothing. If her brother misunderstood, he might just ruin her chance at love.

Now that his sister's mood had stabilized, Alistair walked out of the villa with a cold face. He saw Andrea who was sobbing in the courtyard.

As he walked over, Andrea slowly raised her head with tears in her eyes.

"Drunk, delirious, and assault. My sister and I both got slapped, but we only slapped you back once. How do you feel? Do you feel wronged?" His face was gloomy, and his eyes were cold.

"I'm sorry, I was wrong. I'm sorry, I'm really sorry. I didn't ask and hit her right off the bat. It's my fault... Please forgive me."

Andrea kept begging for mercy in an extremely humble tone as she watched the man's expression change.

In the end, Alistair shook his head slightly, stretched out his hand, and pulled her up.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1829-Rosalie woke up very early in the morning.

She had to rush earlier to perform surgery on the old principal.

One's blood pressure in the morning would be relatively low. The surgery for the old principal's illness needed to be performed when his blood pressure was low. Otherwise, the risk would increase.

Byron was still in a deep sleep. He reached out subconsciously to hug her.

Rosalie got up carefully and washed up. She went downstairs and saw the leftover fireworks in the hall and the roses on the table.

She smiled as she looked at the diamond ring on her ring finger again. Her state of mind returned to calmness like before.

Every day of marriage was filled with simple happiness.

Mary arrived by car to pick up Rosalie because the two of them had to work together to perform the operation.

Rosalie urged her to have breakfast. Mary mentioned that after she owned the villa, she hired a chef after much deliberation. Now, she could eat on time every day.

The two discussed the patient's medical condition on the way to the hospital.

The operation was relatively complicated, and it lasted from seven in the morning to half past nine. The two of them devoted their attention to the two and half hour battle.

In the end, they walked out of the operating room and delivered the good news to the principal's daughter.

"Thank you so much, Dr. Jacobs and Director Wilson. I really don't know how to repay you!" The principal's daughter simply wanted to kneel down to express her gratitude, but luckily, Rosalie stopped her.

Rosalie gave the principal's daughter repeated advice, said goodbye to Mary, then went to the research institute.

Downstairs, she happened to bump into Andrius.

“Hi, Sister-in-law. I’m here for a physical examination!”

Andrius could not understand why Rosalie was smiling so strangely.

He went to the counter, paid the fee, and informed them of the tests he wanted to go for.

His choice was simple. It was a basic complete physical examination. He would do tests on the heart, liver, spleen, lungs, and kidneys; a CT examination or a color ultrasound; get his height and weight checked as well as a simple electrocardiogram; and an added blood routine.

However, Mary had already pre-empted the medical examination department staff. They had to add more checks and examinations as soon as possible when someone named Andrius Quirke registered!

“Mr. Quirke, you’re usually sedentary, and your diet is probably quite irregular. I suggest you add two more—a gastroscopy and a colonoscopy. What do you think? A gastroscopy can prevent many years of problems, and a colonoscopy so you don’t have to worry about bowel problems for the next five years!”

Andrius accepted the suggestion easily.

Mary saw his physical examination items from the computer. The corner of her mouth was raised. She was gleeful about the impending revenge.

“Haha, an ordinary gastroscopy. I’ll do it! As for colonoscopy... Well, that’s too private. Okay, I’ll let someone else do it and arrange a painless one.”

Mary hustled along as she changed into full-body protective gear, including a white coat, a head cover, and a mask. No one would recognize who she was.

Well, Andrius’ first examination was a gastroscopy, which he did on an empty stomach. She rushed to the gastroscopy room and quietly replaced the doctor on duty.

This was the first time Andrius had experienced the pain of an ordinary gastroscopy.

He vomited plenty of times and regurgitated a puddle of bile.

At first, Mary looked at his pained appearance and asked the assistant next to him to comfort him.

However, as the inspection progressed, Mary’s eyes gradually turned heavy.

'This is... serious gastritis!

'What's going on with this man? Why didn't he say anything about this?' Mary's expression gradually turned grim. After the inspection, she no longer had the intention to tease him. She hurriedly went to check the pictures taken by the gastroscop.

"How could he have such severe gastritis? This will be bad if this continues. It might even turn into stomach cancer!

What's going on with this man? Why isn't he taking care of himself properly?"

After she muttered to herself, she immediately asked the doctors in the colonoscopy department to do a careful examination.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1830-Not long after Rosalie arrived at the research institute, Mary called just as she was about to change clothes and enter the laboratory.

"Rosie, this Andrius dude has serious gastritis! In fact, the situation doesn't look good. There are so many polyps, accompanied by some lacerations from erosion. I was too careless just now. I even forgot to cut some polyps for testing!"

Mary's tone was full of concern.

"Don't worry, just send the pictures to my phone and I'll take a look. Also, you might be overly concerned. It may not be as serious as you think. Besides, I have other ways to help him recuperate. Why are you so scared?"

As Rosalie spoke, Mary quickly hung up the phone and sent over all the inspection charts.

Rosalie checked for a long time too. It was indeed very serious.

She could not help but sigh. 'Andrius is overworked. This may be due to long-term irregular diet, plus alcohol consumption and the like, leading to such serious condition.'

Fortunately, such a condition was completely manageable in Rosalie's opinion. Firstly, she would give him Western medication for some antibacterial treatment, then pair it with traditional medicine for conditioning.

As long as he strictly followed the doctor's advice, he could recover well in about three months.

Rosalie replied to Mary, telling her to relax and not to worry so much.

In the office, Mary felt a little more at ease when she heard that Andrius could recover completely.

Andrius, who was undergoing a physical examination, seemed to be fine and completed all the examinations.

Mary looked at the results of all the other examinations, and there was no problem. Even the colonoscopy was fine.

Only his stomach was in serious condition.

She immediately asked the staff of the medical examination department to keep Andrius.

"Mr. Quirke, the director wants to see you."

It did not occur to Andrius who was the director until he saw Mary.

"Miss Wilson, I forgot that you were promoted to be the director. Wow, I can see that you're doing very well. The entire medical examination process that I experienced today was really good."

Andrius thought, 'Complimenting others as an opening remark will seldom be wrong.'

Mary did not appear flattered, but she did invite him to sit down.

"However, I have one tiny suggestion. The doctor in your gastroscopy department was a bit rough. Perhaps you could kindly remind her!" Andrius could not figure out why Mary's face was so serious.

'She probably has to put up a front because she's just been promoted to director?'

In the spirit of making some suggestions to improve the hospital's standards, he took the initiative to share his slightly unpleasant experience during the physical examination.

Mary was stunned for a moment. She did not expect to receive a complaint about herself from him!

'How dare this guy complain about me?'

Mary took out his examination report and said plainly, "Mr. Quirke, I'd like to ask for some specific information. Does your family have a genetic history of stomach problems?"

Andrius shook his head. 'She's seemingly ignoring my suggestion. Could she be the type of person who never takes suggestions?'

"Then, did you come into contact with contaminated food in your diet or any radioactive substances?" Mary asked again, her face still tense.

Andrius shook his head again before finally realizing that there might be something wrong with his gastroscopy.

He asked, "Miss Wilson, is there something wrong with my stomach?"

"Yes! There's a very serious problem. You haven't been taking care of your health well enough. The condition of your stomach may develop into stomach cancer if you delay treatment. Do you know that?"

Mary's tone immediately startled Andrius.

"Is... Is it really that serious?"
