

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1851

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1851-Rosalie truly did not expect that taking wedding photos would be so exhausting.

For the photos to turn out great, sometimes a pose had to be maintained for nearly ten minutes.

In the end, she could not even smile anymore. Fortunately, Byron was always joking around to make her laugh.

When she heard that there were still a few outdoor shots toward the end, she immediately protested with Byron.

“Mr. Lawrence, Ms. Jacobs, with your good looks, you just need some casual photos and you’ll be able to take wedding shots anywhere!”

The photographer was a woman. The couple in front of her was the best she had ever photographed. There was almost no need for retouching in post-production.

She suggested that if Rosalie truly did not want any more outdoor shoots, they could take her with them during their honeymoon trip and turn it into a travel photoshoot.

Rosalie immediately agreed, and Byron had no objections.

When they returned to the villa, Luther had picked the kids up. They gathered around to look when they heard that Daddy and Mommy had gone for a wedding shoot.

“Mommy, you must be the most beautiful bride in the world!”

“Daddy, where are the photos? We want to see, we want to see!”

“Wow! Daddy is pretty handsome too, but Mommy is the prettiest. Mommy is prettier than a movie star.”

It was worth the day’s hard work in exchange for the kids’ flattery.

Byron and Rosalie looked at each other and smiled knowingly.

While the family was having dinner, the three little kids were still chattering away, asking when the wedding was going to be held, where the couple was going for their honeymoon, and if they were going to have a younger brother or sister.

The couple could only sigh. Kids nowadays were so precocious. They understood everything.

Then, a car drove into the yard, but the housekeeper did not stop it. It must be somebody familiar.

It was a little surprising that Chloe appeared at dinner time.

People would generally refrain from visiting others during meal times if it was not urgent. This was simple etiquette.

However, Chloe could not hold back.

This was because she saw that Byron had announced their wedding to their circle of friends. She had seen the couple's marriage certificate and the photo of the two being so close and full of love.

She was flustered, desperate even.

The heavens did not give her the slightest chance.

She was at a loss. Her heart felt extremely uneasy, so she had to do something.

Kelly sneered. "So what if they remarry? They've divorced before! Can Rosalie be sure that she won't get divorced again? Of course, I'm the only one who can give you your next chance!"

Chloe felt she had found a savior under Kelly's plan, so she agreed to the next plan.

She was unable to restrain her impatience and rushed to Lawrence Manor during dinnertime.

She did not come to look for Byron. She wanted to change her strategy.

'Continuing to pester Byron will only make Rosalie wary and at the same time push Byron even further away from me.'

"Congratulations on receiving your certificate today, Byron and Rosalie!" Chloe suppressed all the distracting thoughts as soon as she entered the door and played the role of a good friend, sending a burst of blessings.

Rosalie and Byron invited her to join the table immediately, while the kids called out to her to eat together.

Chloe politely refused. "I woke up late today and just ate.

I've been thinking about business plans recently, so my schedule has been irregular. By the way, Rosalie, I have something to discuss with you later!"

Rosalie was surprised for a moment. She thought Chloe was here to see Byron.

She immediately nodded, put down her cutlery, and walked to the living room to entertain her.

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1852

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1852-Byron became a little curious about whatever Chloe intended to discuss with Rosalie.

However, he did not feel the need to ask. He knew the woman would tell him.

He kept it simple and took out the high-grade tea that someone had gifted him. He brewed it for the ladies, then took the kids upstairs to play chess.

Lucian and Nox's skills were improving rapidly. He must put in more effort and focus on the game.

Estie was at the side, still tinkering with her designs.

"Daddy, can I start a company? I want to make all the children's clothes I've designed. Can you guys see if you like the designs?" Estie asked suddenly.

Byron waved his hand and immediately agreed. Starting a company was not a big deal.

Estie was immediately delighted and continued to complete her designs seriously.

Byron came back to his senses after the game of chess was over. 'What did I promise Estie just now?

'Oh yes, set up a children's clothing company!

'That's also an excellent investment strategy. It's worth a try since it's my talented designer daughter.'

Byron became serious. First, he paused the game with Lucian and Nox. Then, he called Luther and instructed him to set up the company, which would be done tomorrow.

"Estie, think about it carefully. What brand name do you want to use?"

Estie stopped and put in careful consideration. She even asked her two elder brothers for help. She thought of many names, but she was still unsatisfied. Finally, she decided to sleep on it for a few more days.

Downstairs in the hall, Chloe exchanged pleasantries with Rosalie and learned that they had also taken their wedding photos today. Chloe could not help feeling sour inside.

However, there was no adverse reaction at all on her face. Instead, she burst into a tirade of flattery and praise, telling Rosalie what a match made in heaven they were.

Rosalie noticed that Chloe was beating about the bush for so long without mentioning what she wanted to talk about. She could not help but wonder what made it so hard for Chloe to tell her.

‘Does she need money? Or does she want me to help her treat someone?’

“Rosalie, I’ve been back in Somerland for a while. I’ve been looking for investment opportunities but I haven’t found anything. This has been bugging me each day. I thought about it throughout the night and suddenly had an inspiration. So I hurried over to you once I woke up.”

“Investment? How is it related to me?”

Rosalie was a little puzzled when Chloe finally got to the point. ‘Isn’t this matter more appropriate to discuss with Byron?’

Lawrence Corporation had money, resources, and connections. They were the ideal partner that many entrepreneurs dreamed of.

“Yes, this investment opportunity can only be done by you!” Chloe could not help being slightly excited.

The idea was given by Kelly. Even if the follow-up plans were not included, this could still be an excellent investment opportunity in itself.

Rosalie was still puzzled, so Chloe continued, “The level of research and development technology in your research institute is already the highest in the country. Since you’ve been researching and developing medicines, in essence, you only need to change a little bit. You could pivot toward research and development for cosmeceutical products. Have you considered that?”

“Currently, the quality of cosmetics in the domestic market is irregular. Most consumers still prefer foreign luxury brands. This is a huge opportunity for us. If possible, the two of us could partner up and start a cosmeceutical company?”

“You don’t have to do anything and just focus on research and development. I’ll take care of the rest. In this way, it won’t delay your research and development in other areas.”

Chloe spoke quickly with much excitement. If this entrepreneurial plan was done well, the prospects may be able to surpass that of her current businesses.

Rosalie’s initial doubts were eliminated after she heard the plan. She took the suggestion seriously.

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1853

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1853- Admiration, Sophistication.

“R&D technology will be the primary productive force, so in this partnership, you’ll hold 70% of the company shares and I, 30%. You’ll be the chairperson, and I’ll be the executive general manager. The company will be affiliated with your name. This is my biggest offer for our cooperation proposal!”

Chloe did come to talk to Rosalie with an investment mindset.

She even did sufficient research on all aspects of the business. She did in-depth research, ranging from market feasibility studies to product pricing and brand building.

She expressed it all with a sense of longing and enthusiasm.

Rosalie was the most suitable partner because her research institute could study herbal ingredients. The locals trusted herbal materials the most.

She even knew that Rosalie had produced a drug for regulating endocrine, which had a great cosmetic effect and could reduce facial acne.

In the end, Rosalie decided that this investment was feasible after careful consideration.

“However, for such an investment direction, I have to set a meeting with all the executives of the research institute to make a decision. Therefore, I can’t make you any promises for the time being. My apologies!”

Rosalie could make the decision herself but found an excuse instead. The research institute staff completely trusted her.

It was just that she had to ask Byron’s opinion, who was more business-minded.

What was more, Rosalie could just cooperate directly with Lawrence Corporation without Chloe.

However, doing so would be tantamount to a backstab since this suggestion was put forward by Chloe.

Chloe nodded, suppressing the anxiety in her heart. "It's okay. After all, the interests of many people are involved. So, you can think about it for a few days before giving me an answer!"

Toward the end, Rosalie discussed some details with her.

Chloe handled it well. Indeed, she had done a lot of detailed investigations.

At this moment, she even felt a little conflicted.

She had revenge on her mind when Kelly gave her this plan.

However, this investment prospect was too flawless. If it succeeded, it could even elevate the Lincolns to an extraordinary level. She would be the person with the main contribution.

Two hours later, Chloe left Lawrence Manor without saying goodbye to Byron.

Rosalie went back upstairs and told the kids to wash up and go to bed.

"That was such a long chat. You both seemed to be talking about something important, eh?" Byron was very curious.

In fact, Rosalie was a little surprised that Chloe would approach her for a partnership.

Her best friend cautioned her that Chloe was once her husband's childhood sweetheart.

Recently when they went to help the old principal, if Byron had not brought her along, Chloe might have wanted to go alone with him.

'What is she thinking? Maybe I was wrong? Could she be serious about building a career?'

Her thoughts were cluttered, but she noticed that Byron was still waiting for her response. Rosalie related the whole investment matter to him.

Byron listened carefully with a look of approval in his eyes.

"It's a good idea. In fact, I've considered it before, but I was worried that would increase your workload. Now that Chloe can undertake the specific operation, it would be a good investment direction."

As long as the woman had executive control, there was no need for Byron to fight for this business.

This was also the main reason why he was able to make many families partner with Lawrence Corporation.

"Do you mean that this is feasible enough to be implemented? That's true. My market price for medicines is indeed very low. As a result, the profit margin of the research institute is not high. I can't give the R&D personnel better benefits, and that's my pain point. However, cosmetics are different. As long as we can establish a luxury brand, we can build more factories locally and provide more employment opportunities!"

Byron's eyes changed from what Rosalie said. He could not help admiring this woman even more.

Her forethought about matters had become increasingly sophisticated.

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1854

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1854- Evidence Of Manipulation

"You talked about a big project tonight. Well, I didn't do too bad. I've also negotiated a great investment plan just now," Byron said with a chuckle.

Rosalie was stunned for a moment. 'He didn't go out at all. Who did he negotiate an investment plan with?'

As the man looked gleefully secretive, Rosalie became curious about the investment that could make him so happy.

After some probing, Byron revealed it freely.

"Of course, it's to invest in our talented designer! Estie asked me to start a company for her. She wants to build a children's clothing brand."

Rosalie was stunned. "Really? Aren't you afraid that you'll lose money? I know Estie is indeed very talented in design. However, this is too hasty. What if it brings you a loss? I don't want to put any pressure on Estie."

Byron looked straight at her.

In the end, Rosalie admitted that she was worrying too much when she thought about it.

With Lawrence Corporation's financial strength, even if Estie closes down one company a day for ten consecutive years, it would not affect the corporation at all.

"Don't worry. Let Estie slowly try things out with her designs. If it doesn't work, we could always hire other local famous designers to come over and design with her. Children's dreams are the most precious!"

Although Byron could afford to lose money at will, he was inexplicably confident in his daughter's designs.

"Yes, my baby daddy. You spoil them too much."

Now, Byron was stunned. He found this new nickname interesting.

Immediately, he took his woman into his arms. "My baby mama, today is our wedding day. Isn't it..."

Rosalie's cheeks blushed immediately, but she kept quiet.

Byron took her silence as agreement, lifted her into a princess carry, and carried her into the room.

"The kids aren't asleep yet..." she protested softly.

"They're waiting for a younger brother and sister. We need to work harder to fulfill their expectations."

On the luxury cruise ship, Chloe came to see Kelly.

"I'm going back to H Land today due to Mr. Vanderbilt's business needs. However, I left a few people behind.

They've been collecting information and can assist you. If you need any help, call me anytime," Kelly said unhurriedly.

She would not be leaving Coast City like the last time, fleeing like a disheveled abandoned dog.

Chloe nodded and knew that the people she left behind were also monitoring her.

This fragile 'alliance' was clear to both of them.

"According to my prediction, there's a high probability that Rosalie will agree to your proposal. In the early stage, you should manage things seriously and win her trust. Work so hard that even Byron will be unsuspecting of you. In the end, this will be our trump card!"

Kelly's eyes keenly captured Chloe's expression.

'This woman is still not strong enough.

'This is because she doesn't have enough hatred!

'Therefore, I have to give Chloe a little fuel.'

"You must know what happened to the Fullers in the end. Byron and Rosalie have already made an official announcement, so their connection with the Lincolns will only deteriorate moving forward. Therefore, if you don't fight for it, all hope will be lost for your family too!"

Chloe nodded. Although she was not fond of this woman in front of her, she had to admit that Kelly was right.

No matter what, this partnership investment with Rosalie had to be carried out well.

"I understand. Everything will go according to our plan!" Chloe answered firmly.

There was an inexplicably heavy feeling in her heart as if there was no turning back.

Chloe was secretly recorded each time she came to see

Kelly. This would be evidence that Kelly would use to manipulate her.

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1855

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1855-Mutual Satisfaction

Melody rushed to the villa early in the morning.

The children were all awake, anxiously waiting for Grandma to come and feed them delicious food.

At first, Melody searched for signature delicacies from various places and bought them for the kids.

In the end, she decided to make them herself because she disliked the unauthentic flavors.

Today, she brought some osmanthus cakes.

When Rosalie woke up, she felt that her whole body was about to fall apart in pieces.

Her husband was so terribly strong she even wondered if he secretly took a performance-enhancement drug last night.

Before he woke up, she tiptoed around and changed her clothes. Then, she went downstairs to greet Melody.

“Mom, you’re here so early!”

Rosalie went downstairs and saw that the kids were stuffing their faces happily in the kitchen. Melody came over with another serving in her hand, which was obviously prepared for her.

Melody was stunned for several seconds by Rosalie’s address.

Only then did she come to her senses, and her smile

deepened. “Hey, come and try the osmanthus cakes I made myself!”

Rosalie nodded.

This change of address was quite natural. She used to call Melody that way before, only to later have it become ‘Aunt Melody’.

Rosalie did not want to be wishy-washy after they had already obtained the official papers.

As soon as Melody put down the cakes, she turned her head and hurried to her car.

When she came back, she had a big envelope in her hand, but it did not look like a thick one.

“Rosalie, this is a welcome gift for you. It’s a bank card and a real estate certificate. There isn’t much money in the bank card. It’s just purely symbolic, so it’s six figures of eight! The real estate certificate is a beach house that I found while I went shopping with a friend. You can take the kids there for vacation in the future!”

Rosalie was stunned for a moment. She thought it would be just a formality. She never expected Melody to prepare so meticulously.

She smiled and accepted it wholeheartedly. "Thank you, Mom!"

"No thank yous needed. This is a given. If you ever need anything in the future, remember to tell me anytime!" Melody was overjoyed.

She did not dare to expect that Rosalie would call her 'Mom' She was prepared to wait at least a few years for Rosalie to finally accept her.

In hindsight, her daughter-in-law was straightforward. Since the day Melody realized her mistake, her daughter-in-law had never done anything to make things difficult for her.

She could not help finding the things she did in the past to be even more absurd. 'I was so thoughtless before!'

Rosalie once again praised Melody's skills as she ate the osmanthus cake. The kids were happily enjoying the cake as well.

After Rosalie finished eating, she turned and went upstairs to the cloakroom to take out a set of clothes she had bought for Melody.

She had prepared this long ago. It was something she felt necessary to do once they had obtained the marriage certificate.

"Mom, I wonder if you'll like this outfit? The size should be just right. Perhaps you can try it on?"

Melody took the clothes with her hands trembling slightly. She felt emotional as her eyes turned slightly moist.

"Sure, I'll go and put the clothes on now. I'll go change upstairs. Just one look and I like them already!"

Rosalie did not expect this set of inexpensive clothes to make Melody so happy.

Well, the human heart was complicated. In the past, Melody would not even look at anything she gave her.

Melody got dressed and came down. The clothes fit her very well as she exuded a composed and elegant sense of beauty.

After all, Melody's appearance used to be top-tier among the elite ladies.

"The dress fits me so well. You have great taste, Rosalie," Melody praised sincerely.

"No, no, I'm not very good at choosing. If there's anything you don't like, you must tell me. I can exchange it for something else!"

"No, no, this dress is great. I like it very much."

Their mutual satisfaction saved a lot of unnecessary trouble.

After Byron woke up, Rosalie went upstairs to show off the welcome gift to him. She gave him a peck and prepared to go to the research institute.

She knew that everyone in the institute would follow her decision. However, she planned to hold a meeting with everyone to discuss the partnership with Chloe to see if she left any stones unturned.

Melody was responsible for sending the kids off to school.

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1856

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1856-After the research institute's management-level meeting, everyone unanimously agreed to expand toward the cosmeceutical business.

After all, this would not only improve benefits for all but accumulate more funds to conduct more expensive experiments.

With her excellent memory, Rosalie explained all the details.

Everyone was convinced, and there was nothing to add.

However, Rosalie still called Byron to double-confirm the feasibility of the business.

"No problem. Chloe is responsible for the investment anyway, while most of the benefits belong to you, so give it a try!"

Byron's answer made Rosalie feel much more at ease.

That afternoon, Rosalie called Chloe to accept the offer and asked when the funds would be available.

Chloe answered 30 million for the first phase and 70 million for the second phase. The additional funds for the third phase would depend on the situation.

Funding would be available today.

Rosalie could not nitpick this efficiency and immediately asked Linda to apply for company registration in the fastest way.

In the evening, Rosalie brought her core staff, including Mr. Loewe and his team, while Chloe brought some long-term investors from her family. Both parties held a signing ceremony at the hotel.

Just like that, their partnership simply began!

After the ceremony, a sumptuous dinner ensued.

However, the people on both sides were not from the same circle. Rosalie's side was full of scientific researchers, and they do not seem to have much in common with the investors.

After the simple meal, Rosalie asked Linda to make arrangements to send them home.

Those investors were not displeased at all. They chatted and drank, then they dispersed after a while.

In the end, only Rosalie and Chloe were left.

Rosalie raised her glass and nodded with a smile. "Miss Lincoln, I hope we have a happy cooperation."

"Rosalie, that's too formal. Just call me Chloe like how Byron does. From today, we're already partners."

Chloe secretly admired Rosalie for being able to confirm such a big investment decision in such a short time.

Rosalie was vigorous and resolute. She would not let go when she had decided to seize the opportunity.

On the other hand, Chloe could not even compare to Kelly because she was the one who came up with the whole plan.

"Great, we're in an alliance from today onward. The work will be much harder on your end soon. Our research institute will almost use up the 30 million in the first stage. The funds to build the factory in the second phase must hurry."

Rosalie briefly stated her needs, and Chloe agreed to everything.

The two drank a few more glasses. Suddenly, Rosalie received a call from Mary. Her best friend sounded somewhat dejected.

Rosalie was startled, quickly bid goodbye to Chloe, and went straight to the hospital.

She went straight to the director's office when she reached the hospital. When Rosalie opened the door and entered, she found Mary's face filled with sadness.

Mary looked up. Her eyes were bloodshot.

"What happened? Who hurt you? Tell me!" Rosalie was so distressed looking at her heartbroken best friend, who was usually optimistic.

She walked over, hugged her, and rubbed her on the shoulder.

Mary hugged Rosalie back tighter, tears streaming down her face. "Rosie, my mother... My mother may be dying..."

Rosalie was stunned for several seconds.

Then, she quickly asked, "What's going on? Tell me. Don't worry, maybe there's a way."

Mary was helpless seeing Rosalie's anxious face. "Rosie, I'm also a doctor. I know it. My mother's heart disease... She can't take it anymore."

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1857

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1857-All along, Mary rarely revealed her family's situation.

Rosalie had known her for so many years and could sense that she seemed unwilling to talk more about it, so she did not ask further.

She only knew that Mary's family was in Northwestern Somerland, and she often chatted with her mother via video call or voice note.

Of course, Rosalie also knew Mary's mother, Aunt Wilson, and had video-called her several times. Mary took her mother's last name.

"Where's Aunt Wilson now? Is she here? I'll check on her condition first. Please give me all her charts and details. Don't jump the gun and grieve too soon. Don't forget, I'm a miracle doctor!" Rosalie urged.

Of course, Mary knew that. Rosalie's medical skills had solved many difficult and mysterious diseases. Rosalie had even saved many patients who were declared incurable by the hospital.

Moreover, her best friend had also acquired ancient medical skills.

However, Mary dared not have hope. According to her medical knowledge of so many years, her mother's illness seemed bleak.

Her mother's heart had been gradually failing, followed by problems with other organs throughout the body that rendered her unable to recover.

Mary feared that her hope would turn into despair again.

She did not want to put a lot of pressure on Rosalie either.

"Rosie, I've already picked my mom up. She's in our hospital. Let's go, I'll take you to see her."

Wiping away her tears, Mary calmed down and led Rosalie to the inpatient department.

Entering the ward, Rosalie was startled when she saw the sleeping Aunt Wilson. "Why is Aunt Wilson so thin?"

Contrary to their video call two months ago, Aunt Wilson's entire face had shrunk tremendously. Both her eyes were deeply sunken into the eye sockets. The skin on her bare arms was thin and loose.

Mary felt a sting in her nose as her voice choked up. "That was the last video call two months ago, then my mother started to refuse video calls and kept sending voice messages. I'm so stupid! I didn't expect that she was hiding the exacerbation of her heart disease. I always thought she was stable."

Rosalie felt a heaviness in her heart seeing how haggard Aunt Wilson had become.

She thought she could say hello to Aunt Wilson and ask how she felt.

Right now, Aunt Wilson's deep sleep may be approaching the level of unconsciousness. Rosalie may not get the chance to ask her verbally.

Without another word, Rosalie stepped forward and began to check her meridians.

Rosalie shuddered upon contact. Aunt Wilson's skin was terrifyingly cold.

As she grasped the woman's paper-thin wrist, Rosalie's heart ached.

Her pulse was so weak that it almost disappeared.

Rosalie's heart trembled. Aunt Wilson was indeed on the verge of death.

However, Rosalie did not exclaim but turned her head to Mary. "Don't worry, Mae. There's still a chance. Let's not disturb Aunt. Let's go back to the office to look at the charts. IV

Mary nodded, gently took her mother's hand, and put it under the blanket.

The two returned to the office and began to review all the examination reports. Rosalie looked very carefully, while Mary explained that her mother had been ill for many years with good and bad days.

To prevent her mother's heart from being too strongly triggered, Mary would downplay her own emotions every time before telling her mother.

After Rosalie carefully checked all the images for half an hour, she suddenly found something wrong with the position of the heart.

"Mae, come and have a look. What's going on with this position? Why is there a small spot?" she exclaimed quickly.

Mary leaned over and looked carefully for a while, but she did not notice anything wrong.

"This should be a normal occurrence during radiography. Maybe it's a change caused by the accelerated blood flow during a certain period." Mary could not see anything amiss.

Rosalie frowned heavily. 'Indeed, such phenomena do exist.'

However, she felt the tiny spot in Aunt Wilson's radiography seemed a little different.

The thing was, she could not pinpoint what was wrong.

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1858

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1858-The Cold-Hearted Man

After a while, Byron called.

Rosalie walked out of the office and explained the situation.

"Aunt Wilson's life is on the line now. I may not go back tonight. I must find out the problem and solve it as soon as possible to save Aunt Wilson's life!" Rosalie said in a heavy tone.

“Okay, call me right away if you need me. I’ll take care of the kids. You don’t have to worry about anything. Take care of yourself!”

Her husband always supported her firmly no matter what. Rosalie felt warm inside. Her spirits lifted, and she reentered the office.

Mary was no longer looking at the information but staring blankly at a photo she had taken with her mother on her phone.

Before Rosalie could speak, the tears in Mary’s eyes began to fall silently again.

“Rosie, I’m so useless. I can’t find any way to save my mother! I’m a loser!”

She blamed herself, and her face was full of grief. Her tears could not stop as her sobs turned into wails.

At this time, Rosalie could only hug her best friend tightly because there was nothing she could say to comfort her.

Rosalie’s eyes were damp and close to tears.

“Rosie, my mother has had a difficult life. Her life is so tough! That cold-hearted man abandoned us both and ignored us for more than 20 years. He only gave us money and never even visited us. I don’t understand why my mother is still foolishly waiting. That man will never change his mind. He’s the most disgusting man in the world!”

In grief, Mary slowly brought up her family.

She grew up in a single-parent family. Her mother fell in love with the heir of a prominent family when she was young, and the man promised to marry her.

In the end, her father was at a disadvantage in the process of inheritance because of a power grab among the other brothers. Therefore, to consolidate his position, her father chose to marry a young lady from a wealthy family.

“At that time, my mother was already pregnant with me. She didn’t want to get rid of me, so she endured everything and gave birth to me. To protect me and avoid being targeted by that family, she was even unwilling to let me visit her at home over the years. She has always kept me away, so I’ve been staying in Coast City and rarely go back.

“Rosie, my mother has had such a difficult life! I was deeply moved when I saw that you were finally able to get together with Byron. My mother didn’t have such a good life!”

Rosalie felt mixed feelings. Her face was filled with sadness when she heard her best friend reveal the secret she had hidden for many years.

Mary stopped crying while talking. Rosalie picked up a tissue and wiped away Mary's tears.

"Mae, don't you forget who we are. Now is not the time to be sad. We still have a chance. Believe me!" Rosalie sorted out her emotions and finally put on a resolute expression.

Mary raised her head and nodded heavily.

"Contact all the surgeons in the hospital to work overtime now. In addition, let's take another set of CT scans.

However, let Aunt Wilson lie on her back this time. I want to find out what's going on with the spot on the back of the heart. Maybe that's our chance!"

Mary kicked into action immediately after Rosalie's order.

At the same time, Rosalie made preparations. She called Byron and asked him to go to the study and find the Greenbloom Needling Technique Manual. Luther was tasked to send it to the hospital.

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1859

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1859-It was late at night, yet there was a row of surgeons waiting outside the operating room.

They never complained even though they were working overtime in the middle of the night. However, Rosalie felt bad, so she announced that the overtime pay would be tripled tonight. There would also be an increase in everyone's bonus.

At the same time, she did not forget to order a lot of takeaways for the doctors' supper.

On the other side, Mary carefully lifted her mother and lay her down on her stomach to begin the CT imaging.

Not long after, the new CT scans were handed to Rosalie.

At this time, Byron rushed over as well. He brought along the Greenbloom Needling Technique Manual.

"Don't worry, I've asked my parents to take care of the kids. Tonight, I'll be here with you. You must be tired. I thought you'd need a pick-me-up."

Byron's arrival boosted Rosalie's confidence. Her heavy heart eased a little, and she became more focused.

Byron brewed some tea and helped to cool it down for her.

However, Rosalie's attention was already attracted by the scans. The CT imaging done from the back was indeed clearer.

That dark spot was problematic, indeed!

That was not an ordinary scar. Images from several angles were stacked together, which formed a tiny oval mass.

"Sure enough, it's a tumor!" Rosalie found the root cause.

However, she could not be happy at all.

This small tumor grew on the aorta of the heart.

Almost no doctor would dare to perform surgery in such a location. No matter how careful one could be, blood vessels may burst at any time and cause massive bleeding!

Rosalie's face was solemn. Byron brought her tea, but she held it in her hand for a long time, even forgetting to drink it.

At this time, Mary also hurried over.

She did not know how to react when she saw Byron, so she just nodded slightly.

"Mary, don't worry. Aunt will be alright." Byron comforted.

Mary's eyes were full of gratitude.

Rosalie quickly handed the image for Mary's review. It was confirmed that a small tumor had blocked the blood in the aorta, resulting in long-term insufficient blood supply, which led to heart failure.

Mary had the exact reaction as Rosalie's. Her face became gloomier than ever.

"It's too dangerous! How can we operate this way?" Without even managing to bask in any hope, Mary's eyes showed despair again.

"It'll be a slow death if she doesn't have surgery! If she does, she might not be able to get off the operating table tonight!" Suddenly, Rosalie raised her voice. Even Byron was slightly startled.

Firm determination flashed across her eyes. She gritted her teeth and said to Mary, 'Til do it. I'll do this surgery, and all the surgeons will cooperate. Mae, I'll be responsible for Aunt's fate!"

There was a heavy sadness in the voice.

Mary raised her eyes but kept shaking her head. "Rosie, you can't put this pressure on yourself! This is not your responsibility! Rosie, I know you mean..."

Toward the end, her voice began to choke again.

Rosalie could not care about comforting her now. She drank a few sips of the tea, got up, walked out of the office, and rushed to the operating room.

Byron followed, so Rosalie asked for his help. "Byron, please help me take care of Mae. I'm afraid that she'll be too emotional and interfere with the surgery. She'll never be able to do this surgery. I have to do it!"

The man nodded heavily, admiring the woman's comprehensive consideration.

Indeed, if Mary lost control of her emotions, she might possibly prevent the operation.

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1860

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1860-A heart surgery from the back was extremely dangerous, even for the most common operation.

Furthermore, this was surgery on the aorta to remove such a small tumor. All the surgeons present would have to consider their psychological state and the accuracy of their surgical skills.

When Rosalie arrived outside the operating room and told them the surgical plan, everyone's expressions were the same. They were all solemn.

"Dr. Jacobs, can this be done? Generally, we'd advise patients to take conservative treatment in this case."

"Yeah, it's too difficult. What happens if something goes wrong? Dr. Jacobs, that's Director Wilson's mother. Your psychological burden must be immensely heavy. Please consider carefully!"

"It's not difficult if we just assist. However, not many people in the country can do such an operation."

Rosalie remained unmoved amidst the whispers. Her heart was at peace.

Concentration was the first element of surgery.

She did not object to everyone's doubts but instead smiled encouragingly. "Don't worry, everyone. Don't forget, I'm Miracle Doctor Jacobs. I still have ancient medical skills!"

With that, a silver needle appeared in her hands, and she took it back in the blink of an eye.

The doctors seemed to have met a hidden medical expert upon looking at her gesture.

Rosalie was not doing it for a show. She only wanted to make everyone feel at ease and avoid mistakes during the operation.

"Send the patient into the operating room!" she said to the nurse on duty.

"Everyone, get ready for the surgery. Push aside any distracting thoughts. Just give it your best!"

Following Rosalie's order, the operating room kicked into action. All the lights were turned on, and the doctors got ready in a complete set of scrubs.

In the end, Rosalie glanced at the depths of the corridor. Her best friend did not come over. It was probably because she was truly afraid to face this!

The surgery commenced!

Half an hour...

One hour...

Two hours...

Mary finally could not bear it anymore and ran out of her office in a hurry. Byron almost did not realize.

He hurried to catch up with her.

Byron stopped in front of Mary as they both arrived outside the operating room.

"Don't worry, Mr. Lawrence! I won't be so irrational. I just want to get closer and wait for the good news from Rosie. My mother will be fine, right?" Mary looked emotional.

Byron did not know what to say. He just nodded in response and watched her sit down on a chair.

Mary started to clasp her hands together, muttering silent prayers.

She was just an anxious and helpless daughter at the moment.

Byron vaguely heard a burst of panic in the operating room.

Yes, voices exploded in the ears of all the doctors.

“A blood vessel ruptured. The bleeding wouldn’t stop-“

“Dr. Jacobs, what should we do?”

“Hurry up, hemostat! There’s too much blood. This won’t do. It’ll cause an infection!”

The sweat on Rosalie’s forehead had just been wiped off, but beads of sweat the size of beans broke out immediately.

All the doctors beside her were already panicking.

Not her, though. She quickly used the hemostat and picked up the silver needle at the same time!

Another 20 minutes passed.

All the doctors looked at Rosalie dumbfounded.

The bleeding had stopped!

The tumor was removed!

The blood vessels started to seal shut!

The blood flow in the heart increased greatly, and the beating frequency of the heart continued to increase, pumping stronger each time!

Under the mask, Rosalie’s mouth curled into a faint smile.

Then, the exhaustion finally hit all over her body.

After she finished the heart bypass, the other doctors took over the final suturing to sew up the incision.

The operation was a success!